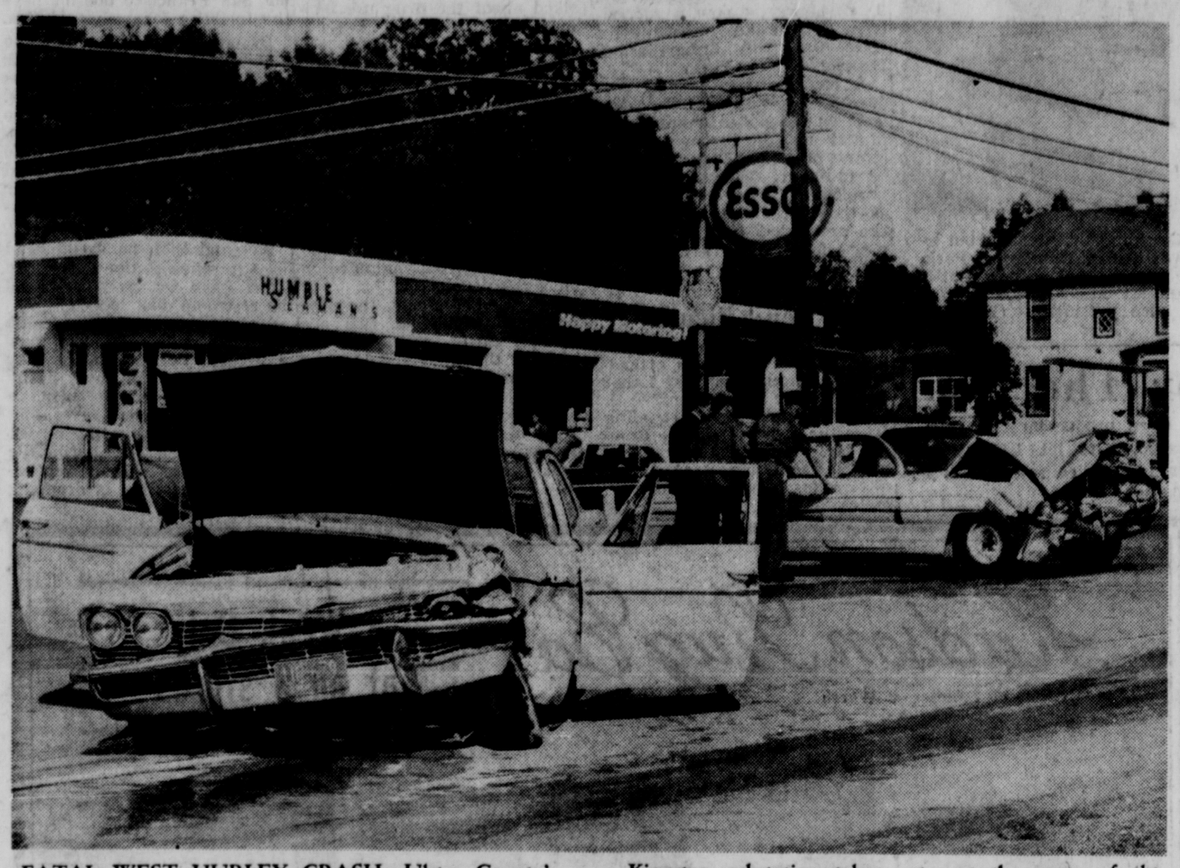
Crash Kills Kingston Woman



FATAL WEST HURLEY CRASH—Ulster County's 30th highway fatality of 1967 occurred Wednesday afternoon at the intersection of Routes 28 and 375, West Hurley. A 79-year-old Kingston woman was fatally injured and her husband seriously hurt at 3:20 p. m. Wednesday, when their car was involved in a collision at the intersection of Routes 28 and 375, Town of Hurley.

A Saugerties man was injured at 3:45 p. m. when his car went out of control and hit a tree off Route 9W at the junction of Glasco Turnpike.

Died a Hospital

Kingston State Police said Mrs. Florence Kidd of 678 Broadway died at Kingston Hospital of multiple injuries. Her husband, Henry B. Kidd, 77, who operates Kidd's Bicycle Repair Shop at the Broadway address, was taken to Kingston Hospital in serious condition. He suffered a fractured pelvis and other injuries.

Mrs. Kidd's was Ulster County's 30th highway fatality of 1967. The 30th highway death in 1966 occurred on July 25 when a Highland man lost his life in a bus-car collision on Route 299 at New Paltz Road, Town of Lloyd.

Yesterday's fatality on Route 28 was the second recorded in Ulster County this month. August was the worst month this year for highway deaths in the county. Ten persons lost their lives in accidents last month, including five teenagers who died after the car in which they were riding went out of control and crashed into a culvert on Route 28, Town of Shandaken.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser investigated the fatality at West Hurley yesterday afternoon with Kingston troopers. He withheld a finding pending further investigation.

Trooper Robert Mackey said Mr. and Mrs. Kidd were traveling south on Route 375 and the other car driven by Victor Kappel, 27, of Lanesville, was proceeding west on Route 28 when the collision occurred.

Trooper Norman Kilfoyle, who invesigated with BCI Investigator Joseph Ventriglia, cited Kidd for failure to yield the right of way.

Mrs. Kidd is survived by her husband and three sisters, Mrs. Genevieve Todd of Kingston, Mrs. Daisy Kamp of Fort Ann, and Mrs. Zola Hackett of Arizona. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Mrs. Kidd was born April 8, 1888, a daughter of the late William and Eugenia Green Graffen. Friends may call at W. N. Conner Funeral Home Inc., 296 Fair Street, Friday 2-4 and 7-9 p. m., where funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

At 3:45 p. m. yesterday, Albert Treu, 37, of 6 Austin Avenue, Saugerties, was injured when his car left Route 9W at Glasco Turnpike and hit a tree.

Trooper Mackey said Treu told investigators he was driving south when an unidentified car passed a stop sign at the intersection and Treu swerved to avoid a collision and hit a tree.

Treu was taken to Benedictine Hospital by the Saugerties Ambulance Service. He suffered a possible fracture of the nose and bruises, authorities reported.

Travia's Plan OK'd On Welfare Costs

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Constitutional Convention turned its attention to a new judiciary article today after awarding a major victory on the welfare issue to President Anthony J. Travia.

Travia marshalled his Democratic majority Wednesday to force approval of a provision that would require the state to take over the cost of local welfare programs, estimated now at $528 million a year.

Republicans protested that state assumption of welfare costs primarily would benefit New York City, since upstate taxpayers would have to produce most of the revenue to foot the welfare bills.

But Travia delivered a solid Democratic vote for the proposition, and six GOP delegates gave their support, as it won approval by a vote of 103-71.

Chiming in from the sidelines, Gov. Rockefeller warned that a major tax increase might be required to finance the takeover. GOP Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges also suggested that the move might jeopardize voter approval of the remodeled Constitution.

Pressing a drive to complete action on the new charter by Sept. 26, Travia scheduled a vote today on the article setting forth the organization and functions of the state's judicial system.

Basically it would retain the present system, with the Court of Appeals at the top, followed in descending order by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court, the Supreme Court, the surrogate's, family and county courts and the criminal and civil courts in New York City.

Delegate H. Clark Bell Fears Rising Taxes in Welfare Plan . . . See Story on Page 6.

It also would provide for a new state - financed system of district courts, to replace the present city, town and village courts, including justices of the peace, provided the voters agree to the substitution in local referendums.

Other changes include a new system for adding judges to the major courts, mandatory direct primary elections for all judicial offices and a gradual, 10-year takeover by the state of the cost of operating the major courts.

Travia and other convention leaders regarded approval of the judiciary article as a major hurdle in the convention's self-imposed timetable.

So far the convention has taken final action on only three of the 15 articles expected to comprise the new Constitution. But most of the others are ready and ticketed for final approval next week.

In other action at Wednesday's session, the convention:

— Gave final approval to the convention's preamble, a general statement of constitutional principles. There was no dissent.

— Passed an amendment that would relax educational requirements for some promotions in the civil service system.

— Rejected an amendment that would have written into the Constitution a provision requiring state and local governments to pay government employes wages equal to those they would receive as union members working in private industry.

The welfare - takeover plan was proposed initially by Travia and was recommended to the convention later by a five-

Torraca Defends Record

Barnovitz Attacks Conviction Rate

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

"Since the release of the report . . . which shows Ulster County to have the lowest felony-indictment-conviction ratio of all 62 counties in New York State, there has been a total silence on the part of the Ulster County District Attorney."

So said David M. Barnovitz, Democratic - Liberal candidate for District Attorney, commenting today on the study made by the important N. Y. State Joint Legislative Committee on Crime. Its Causes, Control and Effect on Society.

The committee, chaired by State Senator John H. Hughes, a Syracuse Republican, issued its report in July and showed that, in a six year period (1960 through 1965) Ulster, with a 12.5 per cent ratio of indictments over convictions, was seven percentage points below the second lowest ratio in the state.

A Hughes' committee spokesman also informed The Freeman that for an 11 month period in 1966, the Ulster ratio stood at 13.4 per cent.

District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca responded to the charges by saying that Barnovitz "is not only inexperienced but somewhat naive in his approach to the criminal process of the law," and he attacked the "computer logic" of the candidate.

Barnovitz said, "It is time the public be informed why Ulster County has the lowest felony indictment - conviction ratio in N. Y. State, why the surrounding counties of Dutchess, Delaware, Greene, Orange, and Sullivan, each with prosecution staffs comparable to Ulster's, are so far ahead of Ulster County in their . . . ratios?"

The Kingston attorney also asked why the District Attorney (Joseph P. Torraca) "urges grand juries to hand down felony indictments if he has no intention of prosecuting them?"

Democrat - Liberal Barnovitz further went on to ask "why the District Attorney permits felons to make deals and plead guilty to lesser offenses," and why "individuals not guilty of felonies are harassed with felony indictments in the first place?"

The candidate concluded by saying that "the administration of criminal justice is of vital concern to all citizens. They are entitled to know why Ulster County lags so far behind."

District Attorney Torraca, seeking reelection under the Republican banner, told The Freeman, "I intend to reply to the charges and statistics in due course, but in the meantime I can only say that candidate for District Attorney Barnovitz is not only inexperienced but somewhat naive in his approach to the criminal process of the law."

The D.A. said, "While I realize that he (Barnovitz) has only tried, to my knowledge, one criminal case in the court of record, I invite and challenge him, and in view of his limited experience in criminal matters I also invite whatever Democratic or Republican district attorney in the entire State of New York, to review any of my files that have been disposed of while I have been district attorney, and see if they would have been disposed any differently."

"I can categorically state that, "As far as statistics are concerned, I realize that we live in a computer-type age, but I'm still old-fashioned enough to judge each criminal matter on its own individual basis. When you deal with human rights and liberties and victims of crime, in my judgment," Torraca continued, "this is the only way to properly administer justice."

The district attorney concluded by saying that he had no intention of being "a computer or statistic-conscious district attorney."

Wallkill GI Killed; 12th County Victim

Marine Lance Cpl. Richard W. Crawford, 19, of Wallkill was killed Sept. 6 in action in Vietnam, according to word received by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Tracy J. Crawford. He died of a gunshot wound inflicted while he was on a patrol near Kuang Thien, the Marine Corps said.

Crawford was the 12th Ulster County resident to be killed in action in Vietnam.

Crawford was born in Walden and attended Wallkill Central High School. Before he graduated he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps, but did not report for assignment until July 27, 1966. He received his recruit training at Parris Island, S. C., and his advanced training at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

He left the United States on Jan. 6, 1967 and arrived in Vietnam on Jan. 23.

John Gardiner, principal of Wallkill High School, said today, "Richard was the kind of a young man you would like to see in school. He had a fine academic record."

William Diedrich, guidance counselor at the high school, said Crawford wrote about the demonstrations in this country protesting United States involvement in Vietnam, in a letter dated in May. Diedrich quoted Crawford as writing, "It is up to us young people who care about the United States not to let those protesters rule the United States.

Crawford wrote, "I think it is my duty as an American to try to get a college education. I'll be glad to settle for a small junior college and then go on to a higher college when I come home." Diedrich said the Marine was convinced that the United States and its goals was "well worth fighting for."

"He was in my prayers all the time," Diedrich said.

The guidance counselor said Crawford majored in a two-year program in data processing in BOCES, and received a regents high school diploma. He played baseball the four years he was in high school and was a member of the cross-country teams.

Survivors include the youth's parents, who reside on Borden Road, Wallkill; a brother, Robert, 22, and his maternal grandfather, Jesse H. Jones, who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Crawford.

Welfare Hike Sought

Supervisor Clarence C. Raichle, 12th Ward Republican, believes that New York State should assume all costs of welfare within the county and the question should be decided by the Legislature in Albany.

"Medicaid alone is increasing the local welfare budget to a frightening degree," Raichle said.

"At this evening's meeting of the Board of Supervisors, a resolution will be filed asking for approval of $715,000 so that the department can carry on the program and the other aspects of welfare for the rest of the fiscal year," Supervisor Raichle pointed out.

Ulster County Department of Social Service is not alone in asking for more money, Raichle pointed out. Orange County is seeking $2 million to complete its fiscal year. Compared with four neighboring counties, Ulster has the lowest per capita per person monthly cost for Medicaid. Ulster is $60.74, Sullivan $118, Orange $78 and Dutchess $98.

In Ulster County, Raichle said there are 9,450 persons presently under Medicaid benefits and many more applications are being processed.

"In light of the monies requested at tonight's meeting, it is reasonable to project that next year's welfare budget could rise to $7 million or more," Raichle said.

Long sought state approval of the infirmary at Golden Hill would substantially reduce the cost for about 40 patients who are presently in local hospitals, Raichle said.

"We of the board, must find some way to finance the coming building program by means other than burdening the local taxpayer, those owning real property," the 12th Ward supervisor said. Raichle feels that landowners are already overburdened by taxes.

"Reports have been made that the county is in need of a new jail and a new infirmary and county residents will be expected to proportionately support these building programs," Raichle concluded.

B.C.'ing You In Freeman

If prehistoric life really happened as described in Johnny Hart's B. C. comic strip, our archeologists are in for a traumatic shock when they discover it.

Freeman readers can laughingly discover B. C. starting Monday when the strip joins the comic page as a regular feature.

JOHNNY HART

Prehistoric protests without a cause, stone age golf, played with axes and the first wheel, (but no one knows what its for) that's the world of B. C.

Against a background of talking flowers, jealous ants and anteaters whose lightning tongues go "Zot" everytime they catch their prey, a young, thoughtful, curly-haired cartoonist named Johnny Hart has created his own idea of what prehistoric man was really like.

B. C. characters, some of whom are based on Hart's boyhood friends, cavort in about 300 newsapers throughout the world. One of those boyhood friends, Robert G. Fairbrother, is the brother of Freeman staffer Jean Dolan.

Hart lives quietly near a golf course with his wife and two daughters in his native Endicott. But his power to pixilate has extended far beyond his modest studio with its putting green rug.

Fan clubs for Johnny's Neanderthalic character, Grog (who was born in a glacial ice cube), have sprung up from Cleveland to Nova Scotia.

The Irvine Campus of the University of California has adopted B. C.'s anteater as its mascot, "Zot!" as the school cheer and the Zeta Omega Tau (that's Zot too) has been formed.

For B. C. lovers, the strip provides a small window on the dim beginning of the race that somehow makes today's perplexities easier to live with.

At least we aren't faced with the knotty question of what to name the newly-invented round thing that rolls.

"Typically, B. C.'s man calls it "fire."

If prehistoric life really happened as described in Johnny Hart's B. C. comic strip, our archeologists are in for a traumatic shock when they discover it.

Freeman readers can laughingly discover B. C. starting Monday when the strip joins the comic page as a regular feature.

JOHNNY HART

Prehistoric protests without a cause, stone age golf, played with axes and the first wheel, (but no one knows what its for) that's the world of B. C.

Against a background of talking flowers, jealous ants and anteaters whose lightning tongues go "Zot" everytime they catch their prey, a young, thoughtful, curly-haired cartoonist named Johnny Hart has created his own idea of what prehistoric man was really like.

B. C. characters, some of whom are based on Hart's boyhood friends, cavort in about 300 newsapers throughout the world. One of those boyhood friends, Robert G. Fairbrother, is the brother of Freeman staffer Jean Dolan.

Hart lives quietly near a golf course with his wife and two daughters in his native Endicott. But his power to pixilate has extended far beyond his modest studio with its putting green rug.

Fan clubs for Johnny's Neanderthalic character, Grog (who was born in a glacial ice cube), have sprung up from Cleveland to Nova Scotia.

The Irvine Campus of the University of California has adopted B. C.'s anteater as its mascot, "Zot!" as the school cheer and the Zeta Omega Tau (that's Zot too) has been formed.

For B. C. lovers, the strip provides a small window on the dim beginning of the race that somehow makes today's perplexities easier to live with.

At least we aren't faced with the knotty question of what to name the newly-invented round thing that rolls.

"Typically, B. C.'s man calls it "fire."

China Turmoil Is Continuing

HONG KONG (AP) — Thousands of opponents of Mao Tse-tung attacked Red Guards celebrating in the Canton stadium Tuesday, arrivals from the Chinese mainland said today.

One visitor said more than 30,000 persons were involved in the clash and that gunfire echoed throughout the city for several hours until the Chinese army intervened.

It was not known how many casualties occurred.

Visitors said anti-Maoists have been hijacking government-owned river boats at Kongmoon, near the Portuguese colony of Macao and holding them as bargaining weapons with the Red Guards. The boats were reported laden with food bound for Macao and Hong Kong.

Visitors also reported sporadic clashes between Maoists and anti-Maoists in other parts of Kwangtung.

Most visitors predicted the Red Guards would eventually win, however, as the army usually took their side during serioue clashes.

Chinese Nationalist sources in Taipei claimed new clashes have flared from Szechwan Province in the southwest to Manchuria in northeastern China.

The report said almost the entire area of Manchuria, which is about twice the size of France, was embroiled, including the important port of Dairen and the nearby naval base of Port Arthur.

The report, distributed by Nationalist China's Official Central News Agency, also gave these reports of the situation in other areas:

Shen I Province: Fighting has broken out at Sian, Sienyang and other cities and traffic has been disrupted. Anti-Maoists at Sienyang, 20 miles northwest of Sian, strafed their opponents with machine guns last Friday, inflicting hundreds of casualties.

Hunan Province: Clashes are taking place in the provincial capital of Changsha, Hengyang and Changteh, scores of persons were killed or wounded on each side in a clash last Friday at Changsha.

Yunnan Province: More than 100 anti-Maoists were wounded in a clash Sunday at Kunming, the provincial capital. Artillery and machine-gun firing can be heard day and night at Kutsing, 80 miles northeast of Kunming.

The report said fighting was continuing in Tibet and in the provinces of Hupeh, Kwangtung and Szechwang.

In Kiangsi Province, anti-Maoists were said to be killing students, workers and other persons supporting Mao.

The report said Chinese Communist troops were not interfering with these activities on the ground that the situation was beyond thei control.

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will be the guest speaker for the first monthly meeting of the Mid-Hudson Chapter, National Association of Accountants, on Monday.

Resnick will speak on Where Does Financial Control Fit in Today's Government? at the dinner meeting scheduled for 6:30 p. m. at the Hedges Restaurant in West Park. A social hour is scheduled at 6 p. m.

Congressman Resnick was first elected to Congress Nov. 3, 1964, and is now a second-term Democratic representative from the 28th Congressional District of New York.

A former inventor and successful businessman, he has been an outspoken champion of liberal causes throughout his tenure of office. Because of his broad-based interest in the problems of the area, as well as the National scene, he has the unusual distinction of winning support from a wide variety of groups.

Sandal Set Suffers From Variety of Ills

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Whatever the hippie life does for its believers, it is not healthy.

Dr. David Smith, who operates a free medical clinic in the Haight-Ashbury district, said today that upper respiratory infection is almost universal among the sandal set "and there's an awful lot of hepatitis and venereal disease."

Smith, who also heads the drug abuse screening unit at San Francisco General Hospital and teaches at the University of California Medical Center, also talked about the drug use incidence.

"Here the figure is 100 per cent," he said. "I haven't seen a kid in the clinic who hasn't used drugs, and most are using them right now."

"We are seeing an awful lot of Meth (methamphetamine, a stimulant) problems now," he continued, noting the clinic has been seeing 10 to 20 Meth cases daily, "mostly young kids who are hallucinating, very paranoid and suffering from malnutrition and sleep deprivation."

Of 20 Meth patients, the physician estimates that five are suffering toxic psychoses, so disturbed that they should commit themselves to a mental hospital for long-term therapy, "but usually don't."

Part of the upper respiratory infection problems undoubtedly result from San Francisco's chilly summer weather and the fog, which also must have contributed towards keeping the hippie population down.

"The cold climate (in Haight-Ashbury), particularly during July and August, discourage the hippies from remaining," says Police Chief Thomas Cahill who had worried publicly over a prediction that some 100,000 hippies would invade the city for a "summer of love."

Both the chief and Mayor John F. Shelley appealed publicy to parents to keep their kids home and the Board of Supervisors passed a resolution yanking the welcome mat and pointing out San Francisco doesn't have the facilities for such an influx.

Despite city protests, some hippies did sleep in Golden Gate Park, as well as in the streets and in crowded communal pads.

The newly arrived hippie who crawled behind a clump of rhododendron bushes for some postmidnight shut-eye learned that the park's hidden sprinkler system was turned on at daybreak.

Wet and cold, he would head for a gasoline station across the street from the park—and find the restroom door locked.

Just how many hippies came and how many are here now may never be known since they wander and are not easily counted. However, city officials and resident hippies agree that about as many have moved out as arrived each week during the summer. With schools reopening, the population is dropping now.

State Harvest Outlook Excellent For The Year

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Because of ample moisture and a generally good crop growth last month, New York State farmers can expect to reap an excellent harvest, says the New York Crop Reporting Service.

The state agency reported Wednesday that the outlook was especially good for cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes and sweet corn.

The report also forecast an increase in lettuce crops, with good supplies until late next month, from 858,000 hundredweight last year to 944,000 hundredweight this year.

Onion production also is expected to be higher than last year's crop which yielded 3,602,000 hundredweight.

The report also estimates that larger crops will be harvested this year in celery, green peppers and snap beans.

Smaller crops, however, were predicted for cucumbers, from 264,999 to 255,000 hundredweight, carrots, from 816,000 to 792,000, and cantaloupes, from 86,000 to 72,000 hundredweight.

The state spinach crop is expected to remain at 36,000 hundredweight, the report said.

The estimated cabbage yield this year includes 4,080,000 hundredweight from farms in Upstate New York, and 394,000 hundredweight from cabbage producers on Long Island.

The agency also said it expects heavy supplies of tomatoes in early October, with late-summer production totaling 525,000 hundredweight, as compared to last year's 420,000 hundredweight crop.

Corn production this year is expected to hit 1,104,000 hundredweight, compared with 900,000 in 1966.

Insurance Firms Ready To Aid Slum Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1-billion slum investment promise by the life insurance industry has boosted President Johnson's battered rent supplement program.

Life insurance leaders announced at the White House Wednesday they will make $1 billion of their $16 billion in annual investment money available for use in the city slums.

And Gilbert W. Fitzhugh, board chairman of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., said "the rent supplement program is probably the area into which we will move most rapidly."

Immediately, the move will provide the rent supplements program with private long-term mortgage money which has been lacking. This will counter critics of the rent supplements program who have argued supplements were not feasible because private firms wouldn't invest in the buildings.

The move also could give rent supplements a lift in Congress, where the program is fighting for its life. A House-passed bill would kill it by denying expansion funds. The Senate Appropriations Committee gave new hope to supporters of the program by voting it the full $40 million the administration asked.

Rent supplements are the difference between a determined reasonable rental and the 25 per cent of their income which qualifying families pay.

Wednesday's announcement also gave the President his second announced new thrust into the low-income housing field in as many days. Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, said Tuesday it would be possible to double last fiscal year's output of public housing units to about 70,000 this year.

And less than a month ago Weaver announced a new plan to bring private enterprise into construction and management to speed production of low-income public housing.

In addition to providing mortgage money for the rent supplement program, the life insurance companies will make such money available for residents of blighted areas to buy or improve their homes.

Fitzhugh, chairman of the Urban Problems Committee of the American Life Convention and Life Insurance Association of America, also indicated the industry will finance some commercial developments in the slums.

Money for these purposes now is extremely scarce—and what is available draws burdensome interest rates, federal housing officials said in a series of interviews, explaining that private lenders consider blighted areas bad risks.

Five in County Seek Dual-Post Elective Positions

There are five county legislator candidates in Ulster County who will also seek reelection to their posts as town supervisors under the controversal Local Law 1 formula. Three are Republicans and two are Democrats.

The Republicans are Gerard DeFelicis of Rosendale, William R. West of Woodstock, and Peter M. Williams of Saugerties.

The Democrats include George M. Barthel of Wawarsing and George Majestic of Gardiner.

Under Local Law 1, an individual may hold two elected positions at the same time or, specifically regarding the present controversy, a town post and a county seat.

The reason for the controversy exists in the fact that the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court handed down a ruling last year which stated that a man may not, in fact, hold a county and a town post simultaneously.

The decision may not be applicable to Ulster, however, because the court was dealing with a county that was operating under a county charter, while Ulster has no county charter.

The five supervisor-legislator candidates are banking on Local Law 1 being upheld by the courts, but if it is not they will probably be made to vacate what would be considered the lower elected post — that of town supervisor.

It is known that some other town officials, besides the five, wanted to make the run for both posts but, shortly before town caucuses, decided against it.

Republicans Douglas V. Dye (Town of Kingston), Peter J. Savago (New Paltz), and Joseph Martorana (Plattekill), along with Democrats Thomas J. Shay Jr. (Lloyd), Michael Canosa (Marlboro), and Roger Mabie (Esopus) chose not to test the legality of the formula.

They are all running for county legislator.

Just recently, a proposal in the State's Constitutional Convention received initial approval on the matter of town supervisors being barred from serving on county legislative units.

The vote, 95 to 79, ran along straight party lines with the Democrats in the majority.

The proposition must win approval a second time, however, before it can be put into the model Constitution. This may just prove to be a formality because of the vote.

The final approval will continue to rest with the voters, whose assent will be a necessity before any draft constitution or any of its provisions can be put into effect.

According to the Associated Press covering the Convention, the vote "marked a major gain . . . in (Democratic) efforts to abolish the long-standing system of county boards of supervisors."

GEORGE M. BARTHEL

WILLIAM R. WEST JR.

Bell Proposal

Kingston attorney and Constitutional Convention delegate H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) will offer an amendment to the upcoming Constitution which would allow county legislators, and other members of local legislative bodies, to be able to hold both posts.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the proposal will get winning support from the [illegible]tion.

It was the Monroe County Legislature which, last year, brought the successful court action against Town of Irondequoit Supervisor Harold L. Knauf, who was also a county legislator.

By January 1, 1967, the town post was considered vacant, and Knauf remained as county legislator only.

Barthel Remarks

Barthel of Wawarsing told The Freeman that he decided to run for both offices because of the advice given to him by an attorney from the Office of Local Government.

"He (the attorney) felt that Local Law 1 would supercede County Law 411," Barthel said.

County Law 411 has it that a man cannot hold an elective office in the county and any other elective office.

Supervisor Barthel also pointed out that, under existing laws, a State assemblyman can also be a supervisor of a town."

The Democrat said that "town budgets and county budgets are tied closely together. Any supervisor-legislator, especially in rural areas, would be able to render better service to a community," serving in both positions.

Should Local Law 1 be voided in the courts, Barthel stands to lose quite a bit of money and influence.

The Wawarsing supervisor makes $7,000 a year, being a full-time official, plus another $2,000 in his position on the county board of supervisors — a total of $9,000.

As county legislator he would only make $2,000.

Another difficulty that faces the two Democrats rests in the idea that, should the supervisors be forced to give up their posts by court order, the town boards may be in a position to appoint a supervisor.

Both Majestic's and Barthel's town boards are predominately Republican.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux had informed The Freeman on September 9 that although there are many variables to the issue "it will have to go to the Court of Appeals," for a final ruling.

Attends Conclave

Robert M. Schnitzer, administrator of Kingston Hospital, is among the more than 180 representatives of hospitals in New York State and their allied organizations attending a conference on management engineering in hospitals.

Hit Missile Sites

B-52s Strike Red Lair

SAIGON (AP) — High-altitude B52 bombers struck inside North Vietnam today at hidden sites where the Communists were preparing to put up missile stations in an effort to halt the damaging blows from the Stratofortresses along the demilitarized zone.

The B52 raid three miles inside North Vietnamese territory was one of three heavy strikes during which the big bombers unloaded some 450,000 pounds of bombs from the demilitarized zone north.

The heavy pressure in South Vietnam's northern provinces was reflected in last week's casualty figures announced today by the U.S. Command. The number of American and Communist combat dead were the highest in two months, and at least two-thirds of the Americans were around the coastal town of Tam Ky and 150 miles to the north on the fringes of the DMZ.

The U.S. Command said 242 Americans were killed last week, 1,490 were wounded and seven were missing. South Vietnamese forces reported 250 killed, while Communistdead totaled 2,103 killed.

Since the South Vietnamese presidential election Sept. 3 brought an end to two-month lull in ground fighting, the Communists have repeatedly committed big units to battle in the north and hurled continual mortar and artillery barrages at the Marines holding the line south of the DMZ. The sandbagged, underground fortress at Con Thien has been a repeated target.

Today's B52 raids smothered the jungle routes leading down to Con Thien and blasted suspected artillery gun posts as well as the area north of the zone where preparations were spotted to install the big SAM missiles which can reach an altitude of 70000 feet.

Earlier this year the Communists succeeded in bringing down the big missiles, forcing the Air Force to pull back its high-altitude bombers to targets below the zone.

The Air Force is determined that won't happen again, and is making heavy raids on all suspected missile activity in the southern part of North Vietnam.

The fighting in the north was mainly a series of smaller skirmishes, but in the southern Mekong delta American infantrymen, artillery and air power killed 9 guerrillas in a running fight through muddy rice paddies.

Although the weather over North Vietnam was spotty, American pilots managed an almost average number of 137 missions Wednesday. Some were night radar strikes and others sudden raids through chance openings in the clouds.

There was no report of any lost planes, but returning pilots reported meeting swarms of SAM missiles and flights of swept-wing MIG17s in the Hanoi-Haiphong area. The MIGs skirted the bombing formations in efforts to draw them from targets but stayed far enough away to avoid aerial combat.

Bills for School Taxes in Mails

Mrs. Edna S. Morgan, treasurer-collector of Kingston School District Consolidated, said today that all tax bills for 1967-68 have been put in the mail for delivery to taxpayers of the district.

Mrs. Morgan advised property owners that if they do not receive a tax bill they should immediately notify her office at George Washington School and a bill will be provided. She said anyone who does not have a tax bill will not be relieved of interest charged for delinquent tax payments.

The tax levy for 1967-68 is $4,941,327. All taxes are payable in two installments. The first is due on or before Oct. 16, 1967 and the second on or before Dec. 15, 1967.

Five in County Seek Dual-Post Elective Positions

There are five county legislator candidates in Ulster County who will also seek reelection to their posts as town supervisors under the controversal Local Law 1 formula. Three are Republicans and two are Democrats.

The Republicans are Gerard DeFelicis of Rosendale, William R. West of Woodstock, and Peter M. Williams of Saugerties.

The Democrats include George M. Barthel of Wawarsing and George Majestic of Gardiner.

Under Local Law 1, an individual may hold two elected positions at the same time or, specifically regarding the present controversy, a town post and a county seat.

The reason for the controversy exists in the fact that the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court handed down a ruling last year which stated that a man may not, in fact, hold a county and a town post simultaneously.

The decision may not be applicable to Ulster, however, because the court was dealing with a county that was operating under a county charter, while Ulster has no county charter.

The five supervisor-legislator candidates are banking on Local Law 1 being upheld by the courts, but if it is not they will probably be made to vacate what would be considered the lower elected post — that of town supervisor.

It is known that some other town officials, besides the five, wanted to make the run for both posts but, shortly before town caucuses, decided against it.

Republicans Douglas V. Dye (Town of Kingston), Peter J. Savago (New Paltz), and Joseph Martorana (Plattekill), along with Democrats Thomas J. Shay Jr. (Lloyd), Michael Canosa (Marlboro), and Roger Mabie (Esopus) chose not to test the legality of the formula.

They are all running for county legislator.

Just recently, a proposal in the State's Constitutional Convention received initial approval on the matter of town supervisors being barred from serving on county legislative units.

The vote, 95 to 79, ran along straight party lines with the Democrats in the majority.

The proposition must win approval a second time, however, before it can be put into the model Constitution. This may just prove to be a formality because of the vote.

The final approval will continue to rest with the voters, whose assent will be a necessity before any draft constitution or any of its provisions can be put into effect.

According to the Associated Press covering the Convention, the vote "marked a major gain . . . in (Democratic) efforts to abolish the long-standing system of county boards of supervisors."

GEORGE M. BARTHEL

WILLIAM R. WEST JR.

Bell Proposal

Kingston attorney and Constitutional Convention delegate H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) will offer an amendment to the upcoming Constitution which would allow county legislators, and other members of local legislative bodies, to be able to hold both posts.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the proposal will get winning support from the [illegible]ion.

It was the Monroe County Legislature which, last year, brought the successful court action against Town of Irondequoit Supervisor Harold L. Knauf, who was also a county legislator.

By January 1, 1967, the town post was considered vacant, and Knauf remained as county legislator only.

Barthel Remarks

Barthel of Wawarsing told The Freeman that he decided to run for both offices because of the advice given to him by an attorney from the Office of Local Government.

"He (the attorney) felt that Local Law 1 would supercede County Law 411," Barthel said.

County Law 411 has it that a man cannot hold an elective office in the county and any other elective office.

Supervisor Barthel also pointed out that, under existing laws, a State assemblyman can also be a supervisor of a town."

The Democrat said that "town budgets and county budgets are tied closely together. Any supervisor-legislator, especially in rural areas, would be able to render better service to a community," serving in both positions.

Should Local Law 1 be voided in the courts, Barthel stands to lose quite a bit of money and influence.

The Wawarsing supervisor makes $7,000 a year, being a full-time official, plus another $2,000 in his position on the county board of supervisors — a total of $9,000.

As county legislator he would only make $2,000.

Another difficulty that faces the two Democrats rests in the idea that, should the supervisors be forced to give up their posts by court order, the town boards may be in a position to appoint a supervisor.

Both Majestic's and Barthel's town boards are predominately Republican.

County Attorney Abram F. Molyneaux had informed The Freeman on September 9 that although there are many variables to the issue "it will have to go to the Court of Appeals," for a final ruling.

Hit Missile Sites

B-52s Strike Red Lair

SAIGON (AP) — High-altitude B52 bombers struck inside North Vietnam today at hidden sites where the Communists were preparing to put up missile stations in an effort to halt the damaging blows from the Stratofortresses along the demilitarized zone.

The B52 raid three miles inside North Vietnamese territory was one of three heavy strikes during which the big bombers unloaded some 450,000 pounds of bombs from the demilitarized zone north.

The heavy pressure in South Vietnam's northern provinces was reflected in last week's casualty figures announced today by the U.S. Command. The number of American and Communist combat dead were the highest in two months, and at least two-thirds of the Americans were around the coastal town of Tam Ky and 150 miles to the north on the fringes of the DMZ.

The U.S. Command said 242 Americans were killed last week, 1,490 were wounded and seven were missing. South Vietnamese forces reported 250 killed, while Communistdead totaled 2,103 killed.

Since the South Vietnamese presidential election Sept. 3 brought an end to two-month lull in ground fighting, the Communists have repeatedly committed big units to battle in the north and hurled continual mortar and artillery barrages at the Marines holding the line south of the DMZ. The sandbagged, underground fortress at Con Thien has been a repeated target.

Today's B52 raids smothered the jungle routes leading down to Con Thien and blasted suspected artillery gun posts as well as the area north of the zone where preparations were spotted to install the big SAM missiles which can reach an altitude of 70000 feet.

Earlier this year the Communists succeeded in bringing down the big missiles, forcing the Air Force to pull back its high-altitude bombers to targets below the zone.

No Way to Win War

The Vietnam war has long been considered a "crazy war," to use an expression, in that the United States doesn't put its best foot forward to try to win it. Most every move we make is one of half measure. Our hit-and-miss, on-and-off air war offers the best example. We have truces that never bring about the expected peace offers, then we resume bombing, but never in any established pattern. Sometimes Hanoi is attacked from the air, other days it is off limit.

To just what extreme the United States keeps its wraps on its fliers is best indicated in a graph in U.S. News & World Report. The graph begins with the premise that of total targets, half are off limits. Then comes the breakdown: It fascinates one to see that 75 per cent of air defenses are untouchable, fascinating because here is where the means of shooting down our boys are to be found. Industrial complexes, which turn out the means to fight a war, enjoy an even higher percentage of protection, 80 per cent. It will come as a surprise to most no doubt to find from the graph that even transportation (land and sea), by which troops and supplies are moved, is 60 per cent inviolate.

For some reason that the graph doesn't explain our pilots can really pour it on when they are assigned to oil and gas depots. Only 12 per cent of these war supporting targets are off limits. But to confuse matters, no naval bases may be bombed, nor may hyroelectric plants, which furnish the powder under which North Vietnam's war plants operate.

All in all, the restrictions are a puzzle to the layman, and, from some reports on the scene, they also confound some of military people there, and particularly the fliers themselves. It is assumed that all restraints are for political reasons, meaning in plain English that the port of Haiphong, for example, is off limits because we might drop a bomb on a Russian ship and start World War III. What is the Russian ship doing there, one might ask? Why, bringing in war material, of course, that the North Vietnamese and the Cong will use to kill our boys.

To paraphrase a current advertisement: Is this any way to win a war?

Wiping Out the Slum

Robert Moses has been a city planner for more than 40 years and has some of the greatest accomplishments to his credit in this country in his many roles as bridge and tunnel authority, city and state park commisioner, and highway director. His work has been largely in New York but his reputation is nationwide.

Testifying before the National Commission on Urban Problems, Moses called the nation's housing record "a reproach and a target for domestic abuse and Communist ridicule" that nothing but massive change will correct.

Moses had a plan for the massive change he thinks necessary. He said the nation could wipe out its slums in 10 years at a cost of $50 billion. The money could be raised, he said, by putting a ceiling on Vietnam war costs and foreign aid. He asked whether the nation has the means to contain Communism in areas abandoned by Britain and France and said the United States may be too noble and generous in sharing its wealth with foreign countries.

As we said above, Moses is a superior city planner. He may be able to eliminate slums in the nation in 10 years at a cost of $50 billion. But not at the cost of the war in Vietnam, because until that war is brought to an honorable conclusion our first responsibility is to the armed forces sacrificing their lives that we may be able to do such grandiose things as Moses plans.

Let's concentrate on ending the war and the money and manpower that peace will release can do a lot of things needed in this country. Clearing the slums may be one of them, but the $50 billion should not come from a ceiling on war costs. The fighting men come first.

Exhibitors from 19 countries are displaying their wares at the Inventors' Show in New York. There are many products which one day will be common commodities, which such novelties as a power tool for drilling on the moon's surface to a musical shoe heel. It is an opportunity for the basement genius and the established manufacturer both.

After 229 years of left-side driving, both carriage and automobile, Sweden switched to right-hand driving. When Iceland makes the switch May 28 next, only Ireland and Britain will remain left-side drivers. Britain is considering a switch when the channel tunnel makes a direct traffic link with the continent. That would leave the Irish the single remaining holdout, a state that is characteristic.

David Lawrence Says
Military Not Permitted To Conduct the Viet War

WASHINGTON — Someday, when the story is written telling what really went on behind the scenes in Washington during the Vietnam war, there may be a clearer idea of the current differences between civilian control and military authority than is discernible today.

It's an open secret that the military chiefs believe that lives have been wasted and that in the fufture there will be more casualties than are necessary if the supercautious and procrastinating policies of civilian officials keep on frustrating the American military effort in Vietnam. This is not to say, of course, that those inside our government who believe in the supremacy of the civilian authority are failing to render a conscientious judgment. It does mean that misconceptions of military strategy are all too prevalent.

Thus, McGeorge Bundy—formerly special assistant to President Johnson, and now chairman of the President's Advisory Commission on the Middle East — wrote a letter to The Washington Post the other day criticizing the summary report of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee of which Senator John Stennis, Democrat, is chairman. He concedes the Patriotism and dedication of the senators, and says their "unanimous recommendation of wider air action seems impressive." But he disagrees with the argument they have in support of it.

Mr. Bundy's chief point is that military men are merely "urging the value of their own chosen instrument—in this case military force." But he thinks that, in reaching its conclusions, the subcommittee "pushes aside all political and diplomatic considerations—and all risks of wider conflict." He adds:

"The subcommitte tells us simply to 'take the risks that have to be taken and apply the force that is required.' It thus neglects to examine what its own report calls the 'serious and legitimate question' of policy 'over and above purely military considerations.'"

Mr. Bundy declares, moreover, that the subcommittee "gives lip service to the principle of civilian control," but that it tends to deny the principle itself. He says:

"The subcommittee recognizes the right of the commander-in-chief to set 'broad policies and objectives,' but it does not seem to understand that the real issues between military men and their civilian supervisors develop just where there is a conflict between the tactical or strategic desires of the military and the broad policies of the commander-in-chief."

This is an age-old controversy. It has brought many a tragedy in the history of the world. It will be recalled, for instance, that the top military men of this country almost unanimously insisted, after the United States entered World War II, that efforts be concentrated on landings in France, rather than go through the prolonged agony of an invasion from the North African and Mediterranean area into what Winston Churchill called the "soft underbelly" of Europe. The British prime minister's view prevailed.

There have been other examples in which military men have been overridden by civilians. The war in Vietnam is no exception to the rule. America's military commanders have not been permitted to conduct the war there as they think it should have been fought.

Meanwhile, the United States has suffered tremendous losses while following a policy of delay and caution in the bombing of North Vietnam. The issue was first raised in the 1964 presidential campaign, when the Democrats argued that the Republican candidate was likely to enlarge the war because he advocated the bombing of supply lines and bases in North Vietnam. He was, of course, reflecting the military viewpoint. But within a few months after the election the Johnson administration had to make a decision anyway to bomb North Vietnam. It has since gradually stepped up the effort, and now apparently is getting ready to intensify it again.

The public generally knows little about the meaning of the debates that go on inside Washington between the military and civilians. The concept of "civilian control" is often overemphasized. The military men are as conscious of risks as any other group of public officials, but they would prefer to fight hard to win in any war and would rather take heavy casualties for a short time than a steady loss mounting up year after year.

Drew Pearson Says

LBJ Answers Questions

WASHINGTON — A man stood in front of the mantel in the state dining room of the White House—where other Presidents have stood since the days of John Adams, proposing toasts, addressing guests down through the years of American history.

This man was graying a bit, a bit worn from the cares of office, a bit gawky, impassioned, sincere, determined. He did not look as suave as some of the Harvard men who had stood there before him, but more like Jackson, whose Tennessee friends had scuffed the East Room floor with their muddy boots.

This man was talking not to Tennesseans, or Texas countrymen, but to highly sophisticated opinion-makers — publishers, editors, commentators, a sprinkling of Cabinet members, mayors, governors, some of them just back from viewing an election in Southeast Asia.

The man in front of them was answering about what was happening in Southeast Asia, what was going to happen, and how the United States could get out of the predicament in which it is involved, yet get out with honor, stability and peace. The questions were tough, sometimes complicated, and the answers sometimes a bit too long. But the feeling of sincerity came through.

Here was a man trying desperately to solve a problem which kept him awake nights, which had aged him ten years in four, a problem which he had inherited, which the French had found insoluble and which perhaps we would find insoluble. The man was not ready to admit this, however—certainly not to this group of opinion-makers, perhaps not even in his own heart.

Wars That Divide

You could feel his worry as he talked. You could sense his concern over the bombing pauses and the fact that more troops, more supplies, more armament rushed south during those pauses. Yet he needed pauses in order to explore peace, and had to balance off the loss of a few lives against the hope of saving many lives by exploring for peace.

Tough decisions had to be made, as tough as those made by another man, also gawky —his critics said he was uncouth — who also stood in front of that mantelpiece worrying over an earlier war that split the nation.

Looking at that mantelpiece, at the stately chandeliers and the portraits of other Presidents, you could almost see a train of history rolling behind them. The man referred to some of this history as he talked—the dissension of past wars, the critics who wanted Madison to abandon the War of 1812, those who poured abuse on Lincoln in the Civil War, the critics of Wilson in World War I. You could tell that the man felt his own current criticism deeply.

There was more recent history which he did not allude to but which most of those who listened knew about. It had begun with the Korean truce in 1953, a truce which was polished up as an Eisenhower victory at home but received by gloating orientals as the white man's first defeat abroad.

Immediately after the truce the Cabinet began discussing a stand in Southeast Asia to block the southward march of Red China. Chinese troops released by the Korean victory would now move south, and the Eisenhower cabinet was concerned that the French, fighting desperately to hold Southeast Asia, would not be able to withstand the Chinese advance.

President Eisenhower himself voiced this fear in a speech before the governors conference in Seattle in the summer of 1953. He stressed the importance of the Kra Peninsula. Few Americans had ever heard of the Kra Peninsula, but their President said that if it fell all that lay beyond—Burma, India, Indonesia, most of Asia — would fall to China.

The American public didn't really understand what it was all about, but the Cabinet did, and went ahead with plans to make a stand. Finally it was decided to make the stand in Indo-China by sending troops to rescue the French in the battle of Dien Bien Phu.

Hopes for the Future

There was dissension. Charley Wilson, then Secretary of Defense, who opposed; also George Humphrey, then Secretary of the Treasury; also the Army, then led by Gen. Matt Ridgway, who had relieved MacArthur in Korea and knew what it was like to fight on Asian soil.

But Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was determined. We should not avoid, but seek out a confrontation with China, he argued. The atomic bomb would be used if necessary. Ike finally concurred.

Then an over-eager Nixon spilled the beans to the American Society of Newspaper Editors dinner in April 1954. Public reaction was sour. Eisenhower changed his mind. The plan for a confrontation with China was called off.

Instead, Dulles negotiated the SEATO pact, a political alliance of nations involved in Southeast Asia. But while our Senate ratified this pact with only one dissenting vote, the French and British, wiser in the problems of the orient, refused to guarantee the future of the new countries carved out of French Indo-China. We, however, in the second year of the Eisenhower administration, officially took on the task.

Thus did the train of history roll back behind the man standing in front of the mantelpiece. He did not talk of this history. He talked of bombing pauses, of Russian hopes of securing peace if there was a bombing pause, hopes that did not materalize. He talked of hopes for the newly - elected government; headaches, the heartaches, the problems of war. Through it all you could feel the sincerity, the worry, the distress. His listeners could understand why when one editor asked whether he would run again in 1968, the man in front of the mantelpiece said he would cross that bridge when he came to it. He hadn't yet made up his mind.

The World Today
Congress Has Completed Only Two LBJ Proposals

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's been a scraggly time, and still is.

In 1965, after his enormous election victory the year before President Johnson worked all the magic and experience of his 23 years in House and Senate to get Congress to pass the programs he wanted. It did an historic job.

But that was a time when the war in Vietnam was just getting under way and Johnson was building up the U.S. forces there. It seemed natural to think this country, the greatest power on earth, could handle the guerrillas easily.

But two things happened before Congress returned in 1966. There seemed to be a generally accepted belief that it could hardly be expected to repeat its glittering performance of 1965. Congress doesn't operate with such continuity.

Besides, 1966 was an election year and that would be a distraction with all the House members and a third of the Senate thinking of their political fortunes and anxious to get back home to campaign.

And, sure enough, the 1966 congressional year got some things done but nothing to compare with the record-breaking performance of 1965. And the war in Vietnam was beginning to take its toll, not only of lives there but minds here.

There was uneasiness, frustration, and, as it dragged on, protests, all of which were distractions for Johnson who didn't seem to be the driving taskmaster with Congress he had been the year before.

The country, at least the Washington part of it, developed a kind of inertia except for building up the war. Perhaps the best example is that Johnson took almost no part in the political campaigns that year.

And the Democrats got a clubbing in the elections with the Republicans winning 48 seats in the House and three in the Senate. It was bad news for Johnson who had had comparatively easy going when his Democrats swamped the Republicans in Congress.

This year started out with no illusions. By now the country was having spasms over the war which seemed no nearer being won than it was in 1965 when Americans had just begun to move in in force.

All this, naturally, was reflected in Congress where the doves and hawks flew and swooped and debated, spending time which might in another day have gone into legislating.

Riots Didn't Help

The city riots provided something else to think about, if not to do something about. And Johnson, who developed a kind of remoteness as time passed, no longer looked like the man in the saddle with Congress.

The result of all this has a kind of rock-along mood which was illustrated by what Congress had failed to accomplish at the time it went home for a week which began with the Labor Day holiday.

Earlier in the year congressional leaders had hoped to have their work for the year done and be able to adjourn by Labor Day. Anything but.

So far Congress has completed action on only two of Johnson's main recommendations in his State of the Union message last January. One was Senate approval of a consular treaty with the Soviet Union. The other was the draft extension bill.

These are some of Johnson's other major bills facing Congress when it returned Monday: Social Security increases, extension of the Elementary and Secondary School Act, and crime in the streets legislation, passed by the House but not by the Senate. The expectations are that Congress won't get away for several months.

And the prospects for 1968 don't look fruitful. There will be the war to talk about, and by then it will probably be more intense if not enlightening; and 1968 is a presidential election year, and an election year for most of Congress, too.

China Farmers Drag Feet; Sabotage Red Farm Rules

WASHINGTON (NEA) Reports reaching this reporter's contacts in Hong Kong and Japan indicate that while Mao Tse-tung, Lin Piao and Liu Shiao-chi fight for control of Red China's government, the Chinese farmer is staging a quiet counterrevolution that threatens to destroy communism in wide areas of rural mainland China.

In many parts of Red China, farmers are whittling away at Communist party controls, undermining the authority of Communist officials, taking over official grain reserves and making life miserable for inspectors who come to supervise official grain collections.

Mao's officials complain that farmers in a number of provinces sell animals owned by the collectives, split up the proceeds among themselves. Other farmers pay no attention to state procurement quotas. Some refuse to pay state taxes. Others have decided to pay low taxes.

In some districts, farmers have arbitrarily decided to pay the state less for the use of government tractors, water and electricity.

In some communities, farmers have refused to repay state loans. In others, farmers have decided to cut their loan payments.

Go-Slow Drills

In widespread areas, farmers have embarked on passive, go-slow drills when party officials insist on grain deliveries.

In a number of places, lately, more farmers have, on their own, abolished the group farming of land in "production teams." They are insisting the state split up the collectives and return the land to individual farmers.

In other areas, farmers have stepped up their clamor for the enlargement of their private plots.

In some places recently farmers have taken over the collectives on which they work, confiscated the state's share, divided the profits and reserves among individual farmers.

When pressured by city party officials, some farmers are bringing counterpressures by slowing the shipment of vegetables and grains to the cities. Farmers sabotage government projects by working sluggishly when called up to work as "volunteers."

Farmers squat on state land, farm it as though it were their own.

Sabotage System

What this means is that the Chinese farmer, with no weapons except persistence, has begun on a wider scale to sabotage the Communist system of collections and quotas, collective labor, "community work," and other state projects. But without the farm base, Chinese communism cannot endure.

The farmers' sons are the bulk of Lin Piao's Red armies. When the farmers are unhappy, their sons are unhappy and the morale of the Red army is low.

An imaginative U.S. foreign policy would make clear to mainland China's farmers what life is for free farmers in Japan, New Zealand, the United States, Canada and other non-Red countries. This could increase their stubborn resistance, make it more difficult for Peking to engage in aggression in Southeast Asia.

On March 22, 1955, appeared a letter from the late Harry H. Flemming, in the Kingston Daily Freeman on the Rondout section. Quoting in part from his letter, he wrote, "May we refer briefly to the early days when water transportation was the one means of moving traffic, and Rondout was the one terminus for that means. Later, with the development of rail transportation, the terminus for the city was likewise in Rondout. The cement industry, blue stone activity, transshipment of coal arriving via canal and loaded for eastern points in the Rondout Creek, was likewise a substantial activity."

The letter continues, "The retail stores, while not numerous as compared with many years ago, are still owned and operated by the descendants of merchants of long standing, good record, and serving no small part of our citizens, are doing business at the old stands. As a city we should be neither east nor west, north or south — uptown nor downtown, or midtown. We will be if we do not measure up to the new and greater opportunities now knocking at our doors, present a united front, with no critical or unreasonable references by one section as against the other."

"The citizens in the Rondout section do not appreciate being referred to as living in a slum section either by individuals or government agencies. These citizens, to a large extent own their own homes, and they have no misgivings about the location. They have through the years bought and paid for these homes little by little, working with industry and integrity, with no government financing, and causing no loss to our local financial institutions that have financed them. Forgetting the division by location and meeting under one banner will make for the best interest of our City of Kingston."

No Way to Win War

The Vietnam war has long been considered a "crazy war," to use an expression, in that the United States doesn't put its best foot forward to try to win it. Most every move we make is one of half measure. Our hit-and-miss, on-and-off air war offers the best example. We have truces that never bring about the expected peace offers, then we resume bombing, but never in any established pattern. Sometimes Hanoi is attacked from the air, other days it is off limit.

To just what extreme the United States keeps its wraps on its fliers is best indicated in a graph in U.S. News & World Report. The graph begins with the premise that of total targets, half are off limits. Then comes the breakdown: It fascinates one to see that 75 per cent of air defenses are untouchable, fascinating because here is where the means of shooting down our boys are to be found. Industrial complexes, which turn out the means to fight a war, enjoy an even higher percentage of protection, 80 per cent. It will come as a surprise to most no doubt to find from the graph that even transportation (land and sea), by which troops and supplies are moved, is 60 per cent inviolate.

For some reason that the graph doesn't explain our pilots can really pour it on when they are assigned to oil and gas depots. Only 12 per cent of these war supporting targets are off limits. But to confuse matters, no naval bases may be bombed, nor may hyroelectric plants, which furnish the powder under which North Vietnam's war plants operate.

All in all, the restrictions are a puzzle to the layman, and, from some reports on the scene, they also confound some of military people there, and particularly the fliers themselves. It is assumed that all restraints are for political reasons, meaning in plain English that the port of Haiphong, for example, is off limits because we might drop a bomb on a Russian ship and start World War III. What is the Russian ship doing there, one might ask? Why, bringing in war material, of course, that the North Vietnamese and the Cong will use to kill our boys.

To paraphrase a current advertisement: Is this any way to win a war?

Wiping Out the Slum

Robert Moses has been a city planner for more than 40 years and has some of the greatest accomplishments to his credit in this country in his many roles as bridge and tunnel authority, city and state park commisioner, and highway director. His work has been largely in New York but his reputation is nationwide.

Testifying before the National Commission on Urban Problems, Moses called the nation's housing record "a reproach and a target for domestic abuse and Communist ridicule" that nothing but massive change will correct.

Moses had a plan for the massive change he thinks necessary. He said the nation could wipe out its slums in 10 years at a cost of $50 billion. The money could be raised, he said, by putting a ceiling on Vietnam war costs and foreign aid. He asked whether the nation has the means to contain Communism in areas abandoned by Britain and France and said the United States may be too noble and generous in sharing its wealth with foreign countries.

As we said above, Moses is a superior city planner. He may be able to eliminate slums in the nation in 10 years at a cost of $50 billion. But not at the cost of the war in Vietnam, because until that war is brought to an honorable conclusion our first responsibility is to the armed forces sacrificing their lives that we may be able to do such grandiose things as Moses plans.

Let's concentrate on ending the war and the money and manpower that peace will release can do a lot of things needed in this country. Clearing the slums may be one of them, but the $50 billion should not come from a ceiling on war costs. The fighting men come first.

Exhibitors from 19 countries are displaying their wares at the Inventors' Show in New York. There are many products which one day will be common commodities, which such novelties as a power tool for drilling on the moon's surface to a musical shoe heel. It is an opportunity for the basement genius and the established manufacturer both.

After 229 years of left-side driving, both carriage and automobile, Sweden switched to right-hand driving. When Iceland makes the switch May 28 next, only Ireland and Britain will remain left-side drivers. Britain is considering a switch when the channel tunnel makes a direct traffic link with the continent. That would leave the Irish the single remaining holdout, a state that is characteristic.

David Lawrence Says
Military Not Permitted To Conduct the Viet War

WASHINGTON — Someday, when the story is written telling what really went on behind the scenes in Washington during the Vietnam war, there may be a clearer idea of the current differences between civilian control and military authority than is discernible today.

It's an open secret that the military chiefs believe that lives have been wasted and that in the futture there will be more casualties than are necessary if the supercautious and procrastinating policies of civilian officiales keep on frustrating the American military effort in Vietnam. This is not to say, of course, that those inside our government who believe in the supremacy of the civilian authority are failing to render a conscientious judgment. It does mean that misconceptions of military strategy are all too prevalent.

Thus, McGeorge Bundy—formerly special assistant to President Johnson, and now chairman of the President's Advisory Commission on the Middle East — wrote a letter to The Washington Post the other day criticizing the summary report of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee of which Senator John Stennis, Democrat, is chairman. He concedes the Patriotism and dedication of the senators, and says their "unanimous recommendation of wider air action seems impressive." But he disagrees with the argument they have in support of it.

Mr. Bundy's chief point is that military men are merely "urging the value of their own chosen instrument—in this case military force." But he thinks that, in reaching its conclusions, the subcommittee "pushes aside all political and diplomatic considerations—and all risks of wider conflict." He adds:

"The subcommitte tells us simply to 'take the risks that have to be taken and apply the force that is required.' It thus neglects to examine what its own report calls the 'serious and legitimate question' of policy 'over and above purely military considerations.'"

Mr. Bundy declares, moreover, that the subcommittee "gives lip service to the principle of civilian control," but that it tends to deny the principle itself. He says:

"The subcommittee recognizes the right of the commander-in-chief to set 'broad policies and objectives,' but it does not seem to understand that the real issues between military men and their civilian supervisors develop just where there is a conflict between the tactical or strategic desires of the military and the broad policies of the commander-in-chief."

This is an age-old controversy. It has brought many a tragedy in the history of the world. It will be recalled, for instance, that the top military men of this country almost unanimously insisted, after the United States entered World War II, that efforts be concentrated on landings in France, rather than go through the prolonged agony of an invasion from the North African and Mediterranean area into what Winston Churchill called the "soft underbelly" of Europe. The British prime minister's view prevailed.

There have been other examples in which military men have been overridden by civilians. The war in Vietnam is no exception to the rule. America's military commanders have not been permitted to conduct the war there as they think it should have been fought.

Meanwhile, the United States has suffered tremendous losses while following a policy of delay and caution in the bombing of North Vietnam. The issue was first raised in the 1964 presidential campaign, when the Democrats argued that the Republican candidate was likely to enlarge the war because he advocated the bombing of supply lines and bases in North Vietnam. He was, of course, reflecting the military viewpoint. But within a few months after the election the Johnson administration had to make a decision anyway to bomb North Vietnam. It has since gradually stepped up the effort, and now apparently is getting ready to intensify it again.

The public generally knows little about the meaning of the debates that go on inside Washington between the military and civilians. The concept of "civilian control" is often overemphasized. The military men are as conscious of risks as any other group of public officials, but they would prefer to fight hard to win in any war and would rather take heavy casualties for a short time than a steady loss mounting up year after year.

LBJ Answers Questions

WASHINGTON — A man stood in front of the mantel in the state dining room of the White House—where other Presidents have stood since the days of John Adams, proposing toasts, addressing guests down through the years of American history.

This man was graying a bit, a bit worn from the cares of office, a bit gawky, impassioned, sincere, determined. He did not look as suave as some of the Harvard men who had stood there before him, but more like Jackson, whose Tennessee friends had scuffed the East Room floor with their muddy boots.

This man was talking not to Tennesseans, or Texas countrymen, but to highly sophisticated opinion-makers — publishers, editors, commentators, a sprinkling of Cabinet members, mayors, governors, some of them just back from viewing an election in Southeast Asia.

The man in front of them was answering about what was happening in Southeast Asia, what was going to happen, and how the United States could get out of the predicament in which it is involved, yet get out with honor, stability and peace. The questions were tough, sometimes complicated, and the answers sometimes a bit too long. But the feeling of sincerity came through.

Here was a man trying desperately to solve a problem which kept him awake nights, which had aged him ten years in four, a problem which he had inherited, which the French had found insoluble and which perhaps we would find insoluble. The man was not ready to admit this, however—certainly not to this group of opinion-makers, perhaps not even in his own heart.

Wars That Divide

You could feel his worry as he talked. You could sense his concern over the bombing pauses and the fact that more troops, more supplies, more armament rushed south during those pauses. Yet he needed pauses in order to explore peace, and had to balance off the loss of a few lives against the hope of saving many lives by exploring for peace.

Tough decisions had to be made, as tough as those made by another man, also gawky —his critics said he was uncouth — who also stood in front of that mantelpiece worrying over an earlier war that split the nation.

Looking at that mantelpiece, at the stately chandeliers and the portraits of other Presidents, you could almost see a train of history rolling behind them. The man referred to some of this history as he talked—the dissension of past wars, the critics who wanted Madison to abandon the War of 1812, those who poured abuse on Lincoln in the Civil War, the critics of Wilson in World War I. You could tell that the man felt his own current criticism deeply.

There was more recent history which he did not allude to but which most of those who listened knew about. It had begun with the Korean truce in 1953, a truce which was polished up as an Eisenhower victory at home but received by gloating orientals as the white man's first defeat abroad.

Immediately after the truce the Cabinet began discussing a stand in Southeast Asia to block the southward march of Red China. Chinese troops released by the Korean victory would now move south, and the Eisenhower cabinet was concerned that the French, fighting desperately to hold Southeast Asia, would not be able to withstand the Chinese advance.

President Eisenhower himself voiced this fear in a speech before the governors conference in Seattle in the summer of 1953. He stressed the importance of the Kra Peninsula. Few Americans had ever heard of the Kra Peninsula, but their President said that if it fell all that lay beyond—Burma, India, Indonesia, most of Asia — would fall to China.

The American public didn't really understand what it was all about, but the Cabinet did, and went ahead with plans to make a stand. Finally it was decided to make the stand in Indo-China by sending troops to rescue the French in the battle of Dien Bien Phu.

Hopes for the Future

There was dissension. Charley Wilson, then Secretary of Defense, who opposed; also George Humphrey, then Secretary of the Treasury; also the Army, then led by Gen. Matt Ridgway, who had relieved MacArthur in Korea and knew what it was like to fight on Asian soil.

Bundy Seeks to Ease Fears Over Widening of Air War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 —A former special assistant to President Johnson has sought to ease fears that the chief executive may side with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and against Defense Sec. Robert S. McNamara in the dispute over bombing targets in North Vietnam.

In a belated but cogent analysis of a Senate Preparedness Subcommittee report on the air war, Mc George Bundy says that advocates and opponents of the bombing "continue to exaggerate its importance."

"To me it is the struggle in and for the South that will be decisive—bombing or no bombing, pause or no pause," Bundy wrote in a letter to the Washington Post.

Bundy said he agreed with McNamara that the bombing has had a "real limited value."

He added that he knew of "no solid evidence" for accepting the Subcommittee's judgement that expanding the air war "offers our best hope of success."

At the same time, he said, he knew of no evidence that the "indefinite and unconditional" halt in the bombing will lead to serious talks with Hanoi.

Bundy's credentials are considered first-rate by most observers here. Before joining the Ford Foundation as president, he served both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson as a special assistant for national security affairs and had a role in posing the alternatives to both men as the U.S. commitment in Vietnam deepened.

He remains an occasional consultant to the President, having served most recently as an executive secretary of a cabinet-level task force on the Middle East.

The main thrust of the Bundy communication was that the report of the subcommittee headed by Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) was based upon arguments which contained "four decisive weaknesses."

He listed them as:

— The senators take the position that the generals and admirals are right simply because they are professionals. The report thus represents an appeal "not to evidence but to authority," he wrote.

"Nothing is less reliable, in hard choices of this sort, than the unopposed opinion of men who are urging the value of their own chosen instrument — in this case military force," he said.

— The subcommittee ignored political and diplomatic factors, and the risks of a wider war, in that it heard no intelligence experts on the dangers of the steps it recommended, such as the closing of the port of Haiphong.

— The senators pay lip service to "the principle of civilian control" but in fact argue against it when they speak of strategy and tactics being "under the influence of direction of unskilled amateurs."

The real issue between the military and their civilian supervisors, Bundy asserts, "develop just where there is a conflict between the tactical or strategic desires of the military and the broad policies of the Commander-In-Chief."

— The subcommittee report is on "dangerous ground" when it argues that the cost of war in American lives has been increased by the present administration course. The restraint shown by the President, he said, serves a wider interest. There is "an unequal sacrifice for the wider safety of all" in Vietnam as in all other wars, he wrote.

"No one on any side of these arguments can want larger human losses—to Americans, to allied forces, to civilians, or indeed to the enemy," Bundy said. "So none of us should yield to the temptation to wave the bloody shirt of other men's sacrifices."

The White House said that Bundy had advised them he had written the letter, but that he had done it "on his own." However, officials privately noted that if Bundy had written the letter as a rationale for the administration's current course in Vietnam, he would not have had to change a word.

Egg-Treading Now Is Ahead To Make Viet Setup Work

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The South Vietnamese presidential and Senate elections were just the beginning.

The real work of the U. S. mission in Vietnam is ahead.

The United States, in fact, has an exceedingly difficult political task in assuring that those elections mean something.

The roadblocks are serious:

First, there is the serious personal rivalry between South Vietnam President Thieu and Vice President Ky. This rivalry adds up to a feud.

Ky is too ambitious to be ceremonial vice president. Thieu is not about to let Ky take over. Each has his own following of powerful generals, ambitious politicians and religious groupings.

Second, Thieu has a Senate that is likely to look with a highly critical or jaundiced eye at all his programs. It is the same sort of situation—only more difficult—as prevails in the United States when a Republican president has a Democratic Congress or a Democratic president has a Republican Congress.

Catholic Elected

Third, the percentage of Catholics elected was very high compared with their numbers in the population. Though these Catholics were, on the whole, men of high caliber, the election of so many Catholics, however able, could cause strong resentment among militant Buddhist groups. This resentment ran high in the days of President Diem, though Diem, too, was an able man despite his tendency toward Mandarinism.

Fourth, many Vietnamese politicians have not learned to work together in the day-to-day adjustments that men in government must make with people and groups they disagree with. This fragmentation can generate strong antagonisms.

The end result could be that some factions of the South Vietnamese army, and groups of militant Buddhists or other factions, teamed up with Thieu or Ky or some disgruntled political figures could be tempted to stretch the constitution to suit their purposes, or ignore it.

These temptations must be forestalled as they arise, with deftness and subtlety, so as not to injure Vietnamese feelings or destroy any patriot's position.

This will take Americans with a great deal of finesse and sensitivity.

Despite the problems mentioned above, the U. S. advisers are in a better position than before to push for honest and democratic government.

Point to Constitution

Because there is a Vietnamese-written constitution and an election, the American advisers can say: "If you want our continued help, you must live up to your own constitution."

Before, when talking to the military junta, the U. S. advisers could only say in cases of graft and strong-arm methods, that what the junta was doing was wrong compared to U. S. standards. This is not always effective in talking to people of other countries.

The American advisers have several immediate tasks:

They must see that the members of the military junta go back to military jobs and get out of politics, retire from the service, or take leave of absence and become civilians if they wish to be politicians.

They must make certain that Thieu, who was elected with only 35 per cent of the vote, do something to broaden the base of his government.

They must see the South Vietnam constitution is obeyed by the military and civilians alike. They must make clear that this is the price of continued U. S. aid.

Only in this way can South Vietnam be kept free.

Rail Unions Open Throttle

By ROBERT M. LEWIN
Chicago Daily News Service

CHICAGO, Sept. 12 — Six unions opened the throttle on the nation's railroads with new wage and benefit demands.

The unions represent some 300,000 employes on 195 railroads.

The percentage pay increase demands range from 7½ per cent for the AFL - CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks to 12½ per cent for the AFL - CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The clerks' demand covers 129,000 employes, the trainmen's 95,000.

The trainmen also demand a $3-a-day "inequity adjustment" for conductors and $1 a day extra for members in local freight service.

The AFL-CIO Switchmen's Union of North America has demanded pay raises ranging from $3.13 to $5.23 a day, plus 15 per cent to "correct certain inequities" and compensate for changes in "job content."

The switchmen represent about 8,000 workers.

The six unions asked that their demands be handled on a national basis if the individual railroads reject them, as is customary.

The National Railway Labor Conference, the negotiating committee of the railroads, said that the demands are "stiff and unreasonable."

In the last round of negotiations, union demands ranged from 18 to 25 per cent for pay raises.

But the national pattern for settlements was a 5 per cent pay raise and three weeks of paid vacation after 10 years of service.

However, in the bitter dispute involving 137,000 members of six AFL-CIO unions of shop employes, a special presidential board is to make its recommendations for settlement Friday under the new Compulsory Arbitration Law.

The recommendations will go into effect Oct. 15 unless the unions and railroads agree on a different settlement.

Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) is chairman of the presidential board.

A six-man arbitration board is to give its decision by Sept. 26 on the demands of more than 270,000 members of five unions of non-train-operating employes for travel time and away-from-home expense payments.

That board's decision also is to go into effect Oct. 15.

The AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen and Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen, Indepedent, are other unions that have filed demands for benefits.

They are not eligible to file pay raise demands at this time.

A cost-of-living allowance as prices rise, three additional paid holidays a year, liberalized health-welfare and life insurance benefits, longer vacations are among the nonwage demands that have just been filed.

The railway clerks seek a "floor" of $4.40 an hour for all members of the union, effective Jan. 1, in addition to the other pay raises.

The railroads said that their minimum rate under the railway clerks' contract now is $2.554 an hour, and their average is $3.06 an hour.

Key to End the War

Editor, The Freeman

Your Crawford cartoon of September 7th shows two little G.O.P. elephants standing before a massive door on which is inscribed: "Formula to end the war." One elephant is saying to the other: "If we can find the key to that one it'll lead right into the White House."

Well, let me say that I'm a little G.O.P. elephant and the key is to end the "No-Win" policy.

Now, on July 27, 1967 Senator Clifford P. Hansen (R.-Wyo.) reported to the Senate that American owned ships, on lend-lease to Russia and flying the Soviet flag are carrying strategic military supplies to North Vietnam via Haiphong Harbor. And the Johnson Administration is currently increasing aid to our enemies, the Soviet Union and her satellites.

The key: Stop trading with the enemy, take the shackles off our military and allow the U. S. Seventh Fleet to blockade Haiphong. This would WIN the war in two months instead of the compromised negotiated peace that the Johnson Administration envisions in ten to twenty years and tens of thousands more American lives.

There is the key. The real question is, who in the Republican Party will have the courage to pick it up in these perilous days.

Bundy Seeks to Ease Fears Over Widening of Air War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 —A former special assistant to President Johnson has sought to ease fears that the chief executive may side with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and against Defense Sec. Robert S. McNamara in the dispute over bombing targets in North Vietnam.

In a belated but cogent analysis of a Senate Preparedness Subcommittee report on the air war, Mc George Bundy says that advocates and opponents of the bombing "continue to exaggerate its importance."

"To me it is the struggle in and for the South that will be decisive—bombing or no bombing, pause or no pause," Bundy wrote in a letter to the Washington Post.

Bundy said he agreed with McNamara that the bombing has had a "real limited value."

He added that he knew of "no solid evidence" for accepting the Subcommittee's judgement that expanding the air war "offers our best hope of success."

At the same time, he said, he knew of no evidence that the "indefinite and unconditional" halt in the bombing will lead to serious talks with Hanoi.

Bundy's credentials are considered first-rate by most observers here. Before joining the Ford Foundation as president, he served both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson as a special assistant for national security affairs and had a role in posing the alternatives to both men as the U.S. commitment in Vietnam deepened.

Dispositions Listed In County Court Cases

Vague answers by a defendant who had been indicted for sale and possession of a depressant drug, caused County Judge Raymond J. Mino to postpone imposition of sentence under a plea and cause further investigation into the matter.

Frank Thomas Patti, 20, who gave his home address as 493 Lake Street, Brooklyn, one of 11 defendants picked up last December in a wholesale narcotics raid in the county, faced Judge Mino for sentence. Michael Nardone appeared as counsel.

When the Court inquired of defendant where he had obtained the drug, Patti was unable to tell. Patti said he had gone to New York to purchase the drug for another and had got it from a person in "the Village." Asked how he knew where to get the drug and what person to contact, Patti was vague and replied he "went to New York" and bought it. He was unable to tell how he knew where to go and whom to contact.

In view of the vague answers Judge Mino directed that a further investigation be made into the case and ascertain some of the circumstances before imposing sentence.

Patti said he had bought the drug for another person, had bought it in New York and sold it to the local person without profit, he was just doing a favor. The case was adjourned to September 27 at 11 a. m.

Peter Anthony Marioles, also known as "Pete the Greek," 21, Tucker's Corner Road, New Paltz, who was picked up in the same raid and had pleaded guilty to possession of a depressant drug, also had his case adjourned to September 27, at 11 a. m. Bail was continued. He is also represented by Nardone.

Donald Alvin Sickler, indicted for first degree grand larceny and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, entered a plea of guilty to second degree attempted grand larceny as a felony. W. Harp appeared for defendant. The act is alleged to have taken place in December 1966, when defendant reportedly took a car not his own. Sentence will be imposed September 28, at 2 p. m. Sickler was paroled in custody of his attorney.

No pre-sentence report was ready in the cases of George Montgomery and Anna Montgomery, charged with unlawful possession of a narcotic drug as a misdemeanor and maintaining a place where narcotics is used as a misdemeanor. Sentence was postponed to September 29, at 2 p. m. and bail was continued. Montgomery entered a plea of guilty to the second count of the indictment. The Montgomerys, formerly residents of southern Ulster, now reside in New Jersey. Francis Martocci appeared for defendants.

Robert Frederickson, charged with criminally possessing a loaded firearm, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned. T. Vasti appeared for defendant. Bail was continued and the case adjourned to September 27 at 11 a. m.

Michael Staccio, 16, charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, on motion of his attorney Charles Saccoman, will be treated under the Youthful Offender law.

Hubert Richter, counsel for John Bohan, moved for a bill of particulars and District Attorney Torraca was given 10 days to reply. Bohan is charged with possession of amphetamine; knowingly and unlawfully bartering, exchanging and selling, giving or offering to give a stimulant drug.

Inspection of the grand jury minutes and a bill of particulars were also sought by Howard C. St. John, counsel for Max Cohen who is charged with criminally receiving stolen property as a felony and second degree forgery.

Steve Bragonier, 19, Plandome, charged with sale and possession of a narcotic drug, had his case put over to September 27, at 11 a. m. due to absence of his counsel H. Clark Bell.

A motion by Seymour Werbalowsky to have Ronnie Eisenberg, charged with possession of a narcotic drug as a misdemeanor, and possession of a stimulant drug, treated as a Youthful Offender was granted.

Sentence in the case of Donald P. Ross, forgery second degree, was postponed to September 20, at 11 a. m.

A motion to treat Frank Landerway and Richard Letang under the Youthful Offender law was denied by Judge Mino. They are charged with second degree robbery, second degree assault and petit larceny. Edward T. Feeney appears for Landerway and Francis Martocci for Letang.

An indictment charging Joseph Lawrence Murtagh with criminally possessing a loaded firearm as a felony and criminally concealing and withholding stolen and wrongfully acquired property as a felony, was moved for trial next Monday. Howard C. St. John appears for defendant.

George Beck, who had been assigned as counsel to George Leonard, also known as Mickey Leonard, withdrew from the case. He had acted as city judge at one time when Leonard appeared in court. Edward Greene was assigned. Leonard had been brought back from Clinton Prison for arraignment. He is serving time in Clinton Prison under sentence from Greene County. He stands charged with second degree grand larceny and conspiracy as a misdemeanor growing out of an incident at the Vineyard Restaurant on Fair Street.

Six cases involving charges of violation of the narcotics law were adjourned to September 20 at 11 a. m. when counsel from the Civil Liberties Union, New York, was unable to be present due to appearance in another court. The cases involve Giboney Whyte and Thomas L. Blackwell, Woodstock.

A number of other cases were adjourned to future dates. District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca appeared for the prosecution.

Hearing in Huntley proceedings were continued before Judge Mino.

1967's Record Crop Scorned by Some

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The lusty, record crops of corn, wheat and soybeans expected from the nation's farms this year disguise what many farmers and others consider are some unwholesome and worrisome conditions.

Not everyone shares this view, of course, for many feel that despite economic and political considerations, such enormous crops as a 1967 estimate of 4.7 billion bushels of corn are needed in a world fighting starvation.

Some Depressed

American farmers note, however, that some farm prices are depressed this year and that incomes are lower than a year ago. And operators of family farms wonder about their future as corporations gobble up farm acreage.

The possibility that much of the nation's farm production during the next few decades will be by large corporations, whose stock might be traded on the big exchanges, is a prospect or a danger, depending on the view.

Already some crops are the product of factory farms, and some economists feel that the tendency will accelerate, that farming is a science or business more than an art or skill, and that it is as suited to the production line as cars or soft drinks or household appliances.

Visible evidence of this tendency is produced every day, especially in the automated chicken factories, where thousands of squawking birds enter the plant on hooks and leave packed in ice.

The more automation and mechanization, the greater the capital outlay needed. Already some family farms represent an investment of more than $100,000 and some authorities say this industrialization of the farm has just begun.

New Machinery

Not only is new machinery being devised regularly to pick crops, such as tomatoes, that once were considered too tender for handling by mechanical arms and conveyors, but new crops are being designed to suit the machines.

These include tomatoes with tough skins, and new varieties of peaches, strawberries, lettuce and other fruits and vegetables that either won't bruise or will grow in shapes and sizes suited to machine picking.

In the United States today there are no more farms than there were in 1876. And the total of less than 3.2 million steadily diminishes as production soars, proof that, broadly speaking farms are both larger and more productive.

This fact plays some tricks with other farm statistics. It creates the impression that every farmer is becoming wealthier, although any operator of a family farm can quickly disabuse a city dweller of this belief.

Farm income per worker has risen sharply in this decade, although not this year, and now totals more than $4,500 a year, but fewer workers enjoy this rise each year.

Less Workers

In 1960, for example there ere 5,458,000 farm workers in the United States and now there are 3,838,000. These figures emphasize not only the productivity of machines but also of the inroads mechanization has made into farm and rural life. Many of those workers abandoned farming for the city.

The production of those who remained rose sharply and now some of this productivity has depressed prices. Income to operators is down to an annual rate of $14.7 billion from $16.2 billion last year.

As a result, unrest on the farm is far more prevalent than it was a year ago, and some family farmers are directing their anger not only at the government, but at corporate farms as well.

Thus, this evolution of the farm from small to large, from hand labor to machine labor, and now perhaps from family to corporate operation is producing immediate economic and political repercussions.

Greater productivity does not mean that everything is wonderful down on the farm. All that corn is not necessarily gold.

Seeks New Career

CHICAGO (AP) — An ex-convict who spent 11 years in federal prison for three Midwest bank robberies was looking for a job Tuesday with an income in the "$8,000 to $10,000 bracket."

Jack Cope placed an ad in the Chicago Tribune which stated: Bank robber (retired) 42-year-old ex-convict. Good writer and organizer. 11 years in Leavenworth (Kansas) prison and 15 years of federal parole to go. Want something challenging."

In an interview Cope said he placed the ad because he was not ashamed of his past. "I got an education at Leavenworth, high school, college and real world. I'm rehabilitated."

After his release from prison on good behavior, Cope became a reporter for a suburban newspaper. He said, "I placed the ad because I want to advance a little farther."

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — Local newspapers report that several foreign firms are analyzing and testing native plants for their possible value in treating asthma, colitis and rheumatism.

Erwin Bras, a Portuguese citizen who has studied native medicine in the Mozambique jungles for 10 years, reported that three wild plants, which appear to have been successfully used by natives, are under study by various pharmaceutical companies in Japan, South Africa and the United States.

Columbia Professor Arrested

BERLIN (AP) — A Columbia University instructor may have been arrested in Communist East Germany because he photographed buildings in connection with his research on Berlin's architecture, U.S. officials suggest.

Although the charges against Ronald Wiedenhoeft, 30, of Milwaukee, Wis., have not been disclosed, a State Department spokesman in Washington said he understood the young man had photographed buildings in East Berlin.

The Wiedenhoefts came to West Berlin in mid-June with their two daughters, Sonje, 6, and Sabina, 7, so Wiedenhoeft could do research on Berlin architecture for a Ph.D. degree, his wife, Renata, 24, told newsmen.

Mrs. Wiedenhoeft, who was born in Berlin, said her husband went to East Berlin Sept. 5 and did not return that night.

"I went to East Berlin looking for him," she said, "but he was not in any of the places we sometimes went to. The next day I went back and asked the East German police. They sent me to the state prosecutor's office. There I was told my husband had been arrested, but they refused to tell me why."

The U.S. government does not recognize the East German regime so a West Berlin lawyer, Juergen Stange, is working on the cases of both Wiedenhoeft and Peter Feinauer, 27, of Providence, R.I., who has been held for undisclosed reasons since last Oct. 7. His mother lives in West Berlin.

New Welfare Plan To Hike Taxes: Bell

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Dutchess and Ulster Counties (38th Senatorial District) in Albany Wednesday said the assumption of welfare cost by the state will result in a tax increase of about $5 million for the residents of Dutchess and Ulster Counties.

Bell debated the welfare proposal on the convention floor yesterday. The proposal is backed by Convention President Anthony J. Travia and calls for the state to assume the cost of paying for all welfare programs in the state. Bell said he voted against the proposal because it would impose an unfair tax increase on the residents of his district and the Upstate communities in general and that the proposal was wrong in principle.

$5 Million Tax

The cost of welfare to local governments for this fiscal year for the state is about $528 million. Under existing law equal amounts are contributed by the state and federal governments. New York City has about 71 per cent of all the welfare cases in the state and now must contribute about $375 million a year to pay its welfare bill. By having the state assume the full cost, New York City would immediately relieve itself of the tax bill of $375 million and part of its share of welfare costs would be paid by Upstate communities.

To demonstrate this point Bell said: "Available current statistics show welfare costs for Ulster County for the state fiscal year 1967-1968 are about $1,267,000. Under the Travia plan Ulster County would have to pay some $2,640,000 as its share of the state's financing program. This would mean an automatic tax increase for Ulster County residents of some $1,373,000. Based on the same statistics, Dutchess County current welfare costs are some $1,690,000, and under the Travia Plan Dutchess County residents would have to pay about $5,280,000 as their share of the State Plan. This would result in a $3,590,000 tax increase for Dutchess County residents. Accordingly, the Travia Plan will mean a tax increase for residents of the 38th District of about $5 million and this $5 million will be applied to New York City's welfare bill.

Proposal Unsound

"Prior to pushing his program, President Travia appointed a five-man 'task farce' to study the welfare question. The 'task force' consisted of five Democrats, four of whom are from New York City. With New York City getting a tax windfall, the recommendation of the commission, for the state to assume all costs, came as no surprise.

"New York City has experienced an increase of about 21 per cent in its welfare caseload in the last fiscal year and now has about 665,000 welfare clients. This is an increase of 69,891 over last year. The increase in the caseload in the Upstate community amounted to only 1,400.

"Welfare is a great and continuing problem and programs vary from state to state. A family of four in Mississippi on welfare will receive $33 per month. A family of four in our area will receive about $150 per month. There is, naturally, an in-migration into New York of low income families from areas which pay lesser benefits.

"Welfare is really a national problem and the federal government, I feel, has a primary responsibility for coping with it. Changing the label on the welfare officer who hands out the checks from a local official to a state official, as proposed by Mr. Travia, will not solve the problem. It is still the same check. What is needed are research programs which will develop new modern approaches to root out the underlying causes of welfare. To be effective, this must be attacked on a nationwide basis.

"Our Constitution should not have the Travia Plan frozen into it. This is a legislative matter and the state legislators should have freedom to experiment and cooperate with the federal government and sister states to develop a coordinated national welfare administration which provides for research and development of realistic problem solving programs. The Travia proposal does little more than impose additional taxes on the Upstate communities to pay for New York City's welfare costs."

Travia's Plan

member "task force" of Democratic delegates whom he appointed to study the idea.

Under terms of the provision, the state would assume the burden of local welfare operating costs at the rate of 10 per cent a year over a 10-year span, beginning with the effective date of the new Constitution.

As envisioned by the convention's Democratic majority, the revised charter would go into effect on Jan. 1, 1969. Thus, if it was approved by the New York electorate next November, the 1968 Legislature would have a full 12 months to implement its provisions.

Brydges protested in debate on the welfare plan that the convention was mandating action that should be left to the Legislature to determine, on its own initiative.

Otherwise, he said, the convention was foisting heavy expenditures on the Legislature without having to bear the responsibility of providing for increased revenue to finance it.

Convention Majority Leader Moses M. Weinstein contended that the plan should not be evaluated solely in terms of costs — "we have to worry about human values."

The relative positions of Travia, Brydges and Weinstein had special signifance, since Travia also serves as speaker of the Assembly, Brydges, as Senate majority leader and Weinstein as Assembly majority leader.

Before approving the welfare plan, the convention rejected — on voice votes — amendments that would have established a one-year residency requirement for welfare assitance in this state and would have given local welfare officials full jurisdiction over welfare programs, even under a completely state-financed system.

Dispositions Listed In County Court Cases

Vague answers by a defendant who had been indicted for sale and possession of a depressant drug, caused County Judge Raymond J. Mino to postpone imposition of sentence under a plea and cause further investigation into the matter.

Frank Thomas Patti, 20, who gave his home address as 493 Lake Street, Brooklyn, one of 11 defendants picked up last December in a wholesale narcotics raid in the county, faced Judge Mino for sentence. Michael Nardone appeared as counsel.

When the Court inquired of defendant where he had obtained the drug, Patti was unable to tell. Patti said he had gone to New York to purchase the drug for another and had got it from a person in "the Village." Asked how he knew where to get the drug and what person to contact, Patti was vague and replied he "went to New York" and bought it. He was unable to tell how he knew where to go and whom to contact.

In view of the vague answers Judge Mino directed that a further investigation be made into the case and ascertain some of the circumstances before imposing sentence.

Patti said he had bought the drug for another person, had bought it in New York and sold it to the local person without profit, he was just doing a favor. The case was adjourned to September 27 at 11 a. m.

Peter Anthony Marioles, also known as "Pete the Greek," 21, Tucker's Corner Road, New Paltz, who was picked up in the same raid and had pleaded guilty to possession of a depressant drug, also had his case adjourned to September 27, at 11 a. m. Bail was continued. He is also represented by Nardone.

Donald Alvin Sickler, indicted for first degree grand larceny and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, entered a plea of guilty to second degree attempted grand larceny as a felony. W. Harp appeared for defendant. The act is alleged to have taken place in December 1966, when defendant reportedly took a car not his own. Sentence will be imposed September 28, at 2 p. m. Sickler was paroled in custody of his attorney.

No pre-sentence report was ready in the cases of George Montgomery and Anna Montgomery, charged with unlawful possession of a narcotic drug as a misdemeanor and maintaining a place where narcotics is used as a misdemeanor. Sentence was postponed to September 29, at 2 p. m. and bail was continued. Montgomery entered a plea of guilty to the second count of the indictment. The Montgomerys, formerly residents of southern Ulster, now reside in New Jersey. Francis Martocci appeared for defendants.

Robert Frederickson, charged with criminally possessing a loaded firearm, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned. T. Vasti appeared for defendant. Bail was continued and the case adjourned to September 27 at 11 a. m.

Michael Staccio, 16, charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, on motion of his attorney Charles Saccoman, will be treated under the Youthful Offender law.

Hubert Richter, counsel for John Bohan, moved for a bill of particulars and District Attorney Torraca was given 10 days to reply. Bohan is charged with possession of amphetamine; knowingly and unlawfully bartering, exchanging and selling, giving or offering to give a stimulant drug.

Inspection of the grand jury minutes and a bill of particulars were also sought by Howard C. St. John, counsel for Max Cohen who is charged with criminally receiving stolen property as a felony and second degree forgery.

Steve Bragonier, 19, Plandome, charged with sale and possession of a narcotic drug, had his case put over to September 27, at 11 a. m. due to absence of his counsel H. Clark Bell.

A motion by Seymour Werbalowsky to have Ronnie Eisenberg, charged with possession of a narcotic drug as a misdemeanor, and possession of a stimulant drug, treated as a Youthful Offender was granted.

Sentence in the case of Donald P. Ross, forgery second degree, was postponed to September 20, at 11 a. m.

A motion to treat Frank Landerway and Richard Letang under the Youthful Offender law was denied by Judge Mino. They are charged with second degree robbery, second degree assault and petit larceny. Edward T. Feeney appears for Landerway and Francis Martocci for Letang.

An indictment charging Joseph Lawrence Murtagh with criminally possessing a loaded firearm as a felony and criminally concealing and withholding stolen and wrongfully acquired property as a felony, was moved for trial next Monday. Howard C. St. John appears for defendant.

George Beck, who had been assigned as counsel to George Leonard, also known as Mickey Leonard, withdrew from the case. He had acted as city judge at one time when Leonard appeared in court. Edward Greene was assigned. Leonard had been brought back from Clinton Prison for arraignment. He is serving time in Clinton Prison under sentence from Greene County. He stands charged with second degree grand larceny and conspiracy as a misdemeanor growing out of an incident at the Vineyard Restaurant on Fair Street.

Six cases involving charges of violation of the narcotics law were adjourned to September 20 at 11 a. m. when counsel from the Civil Liberties Union, New York, was unable to be present due to appearance in another court. The cases involve Giboney Whyte and Thomas L. Blackwell, Woodstock.

A number of other cases were adjourned to future dates. District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca appeared for the prosecution.

Hearing in Huntley proceedings were continued before Judge Mino.

Columbia Professor Arrested

BERLIN (AP) — A Columbia University instructor may have been arrested in Communist East Germany because he photographed buildings in connection with his research on Berlin's architecture, U.S. officials suggest.

Although the charges against Ronald Wiedenhoeft, 30, of Milwaukee, Wis., have not been disclosed, a State Department spokesman in Washington said he understood the young man had photographed buildings in East Berlin.

The Wiedenhoefts came to West Berlin in mid-June with their two daughters, Sonje, 6, and Sabina, 7, so Wiedenhoeft could do research on Berlin architecture for a Ph.D. degree, his wife, Renata, 24, told newsmen.

Mrs. Wiedenhoeft, who was born in Berlin, said her husband went to East Berlin Sept. 5 and did not return that night.

"I went to East Berlin looking for him," she said, "but he was not in any of the places we sometimes went to. The next day I went back and asked the East German police. They sent me to the state prosecutor's office. There I was told my husband had been arrested, but they refused to tell me why."

The U.S. government does not recognize the East German regime so a West Berlin lawyer, Juergen Stange, is working on the cases of both Wiedenhoeft and Peter Feinauer, 27, of Providence, R.I., who has been held for undisclosed reasons since last Oct. 7. His mother lives in West Berlin.

New Welfare Plan To Hike Taxes: Bell

H. Clark Bell, Constitutional Convention delegate of Dutchess and Ulster Counties (38th Senatorial District) in Albany Wednesday said the assumption of welfare cost by the state will result in a tax increase of about $5 million for the residents of Dutchess and Ulster Counties.

Bell debated the welfare proposal on the convention floor yesterday. The proposal is backed by Convention President Anthony J. Travia and calls for the state to assume the cost of paying for all welfare programs in the state. Bell said he voted against the proposal because it would impose an unfair tax increase on the residents of his district and the Upstate communities in general and that the proposal was wrong in principle.

$5 Million Tax

The cost of welfare to local governments for this fiscal year for the state is about $528 million. Under existing law equal amounts are contributed by the state and federal governments. New York City has about 71 per cent of all the welfare cases in the state and now must contribute about $375 million a year to pay its welfare bill. By having the state assume the full cost, New York City would immediately relieve itself of the tax bill of $375 million and part of its share of welfare costs would be paid by Upstate communities.

To demonstrate this point Bell said: "Available current statistics show welfare costs for Ulster County for the state fiscal year 1967-1968 are about $1,267,000. Under the Travia plan Ulster County would have to pay some $2,640,000 as its share of the state's financing program. This would mean an automatic tax increase for Ulster County residents of some $1,373,000. Based on the same statistics, Dutchess County current welfare costs are some $1,690,000, and under the Travia Plan Dutchess County residents would have to pay about $5,280,000 as their share of the State Plan. This would result in a $3,590,000 tax increase for Dutchess County residents. Accordingly, the Travia Plan will mean a tax increase for residents of the 38th District of about $5 million and this $5 million will be applied to New York City's welfare bill.

Proposal Unsound

"Prior to pushing his program, President Travia appointed a five-man 'task farce' to study the welfare question. The 'task force' consisted of five Democrats, four of whom are from New York City. With New York City getting a tax windfall, the recommendation of the commission, for the state to assume all costs, came as no surprise.

"New York City has experienced an increase of about 21 per cent in its welfare caseload in the last fiscal year and now has about 665,000 welfare clients. This is an increase of 69,891 over last year. The increase in the caseload in the Upstate community amounted to only 1,400.

"Welfare is a great and continuing problem and programs vary from state to state. A family of four in Mississippi on welfare will receive $33 per month. A family of four in our area will receive about $150 per month. There is, naturally, an in-migration into New York of low income families from areas which pay lesser benefits.

"Welfare is really a national problem and the federal government, I feel, has a primary responsibility for coping with it. Changing the label on the welfare officer who hands out the checks from a local official to a state official, as proposed by Mr. Travia, will not solve the problem. It is still the same check. What is needed are research programs which will develop new modern approaches to root out the underlying causes of welfare. To be effective, this must be attacked on a nationwide basis.

"Our Constitution should not have the Travia Plan frozen into it. This is a legislative matter and the state legislators should have freedom to experiment and cooperate with the federal government and sister states to develop a coordinated national welfare administration which provides for research and development of realistic problem solving programs. The Travia proposal does little more than impose additional taxes on the Upstate communities to pay for New York City's welfare costs."

Travia's Plan

member "task force" of Democratic delegates whom he appointed to study the idea.

Under terms of the provision, the state would assume the burden of local welfare operating costs at the rate of 10 per cent a year over a 10-year span, beginning with the effective date of the new Constitution.

As envisioned by the convention's Democratic majority, the revised charter would go into effect on Jan. 1, 1969. Thus, if it was approved by the New York electorate next November, the 1968 Legislature would have a full 12 months to implement its provisions.

Brydges protested in debate on the welfare plan that the convention was mandating action that should be left to the Legislature to determine, on its own initiative.

Otherwise, he said, the convention was foisting heavy expenditures on the Legislature without having to bear the responsibility of providing for increased revenue to finance it.

Convention Majority Leader Moses M. Weinstein contended that the plan should not be evaluated solely in terms of costs — "we have to worry about human values."

The relative positions of Travia, Brydges and Weinstein had special signifance, since Travia also serves as speaker of the Assembly, Brydges, as Senate majority leader and Weinstein as Assembly majority leader.

Before approving the welfare plan, the convention rejected — on voice votes — amendments that would have established a one-year residency requirement for welfare assitance in this state and would have given local welfare officials full jurisdiction over welfare programs, even under a completely state-financed system.

Tremper Break-In

The hunting lodge of Conrad J. "Bob" Gross, president of the Kingston Buick Company, at Mt. Tremper was broken into some time between Monday and 10 a. m. Tuesday and a portable TV set and a radio was taken. Value of the missing articles was reported at $140. Entrance was gained by tearing away a front porch screen and breaking open the door. An investigation is under way by BCI Investigator G. A. Gruenwald of the State Police and Ulster County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Department.

Fordham Will Retain McLuhan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state's attorney general has disapproved two state contracts that would have provided $100,000 to seat communications theorist Marshall McLuhan in a special post at Fordham University.

The university says, however, it will retain McLuhan.

Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz ruled Wednesday that the contracts were unconstitutional under terms of the controversial Blaine Amendment.

That amendment, which the State Constitutional Convention has voted to rescind in its proposed Constitution, bans direct or indirect state aid to parochial and non-public schools. Fordham is operated by the Jesuits, a Roman Catholic teaching order.

Lefkowitz' action means that the state may not pay the $100,000 to Fordham to finance McLuhan's activities as holder of the Albert Schweitzer chair in the humanities.

The Schweitzer chair was one of 10 created by the 1964 Legislature to attract noted scholars to New York State. The other nine have been awarded to nonsectarian schools without incident.

Lefkowitz noted that one of the contracts provided for a $30,000 annual salary for McLuhan and the other for payment of $70,000 to the university for research equipment, office and laboratory space, office equipment, books and remodeling of existing facilities.

The attorney general then quoted from the Blaine Amendment which bars the payment of public funds to "any school or institution of learning wholly or in part under the control of direction of any religious denomination or in which any denominational tenet or doctrine is taught."

Lefkowitz, who is a graduate of the Fordham Law School, held that the university fitted the constitutional definition of proscribed sectarian institutions.

He said the $70,000 contract had to be rejected because "many of the benefits...amount to direct aid to a sectarian institution."

The $30,000 contract was rejected, he said, because it is dependent upon the other contract.

McLuhan already has moved from the University of Toronto and taken a residence near Fordham.

University officials said last week that they would retain him, regardless of whether the state withdrew its support, and that they would go to court to contest any unfavorable ruling by the state.

Fordham Will Retain McLuhan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state's attorney general has disapproved two state contracts that would have provided $100,000 to seat communications theorist Marshall McLuhan in a special post at Fordham University.

The university says, however, it will retain McLuhan.

Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz ruled Wednesday that the contracts were unconstitutional under terms of the controversial Blaine Amendment.

That amendment, which the State Constitutional Convention has voted to rescind in its proposed Constitution, bans direct or indirect state aid to parochial and non-public schools. Fordham is operated by the Jesuits, a Roman Catholic teaching order.

Lefkowitz' action means that the state may not pay the $100,000 to Fordham to finance McLuhan's activities as holder of the Albert Schweitzer chair in the humanities.

The Schweitzer chair was one of 10 created by the 1964 Legislature to attract noted scholars to New York State. The other nine have been awarded to nonsectarian schools without incident.

Lefkowitz noted that one of the contracts provided for a $30,000 annual salary for McLuhan and the other for payment of $70,000 to the university for research equipment, office and laboratory space, office equipment, books and remodeling of existing facilities.

The attorney general then quoted from the Blaine Amendment which bars the payment of public funds to "any school or institution of learning wholly or in part under the control of direction of any religious denomination or in which any denominational tenet or doctrine is taught."

Lefkowitz, who is a graduate of the Fordham Law School, held that the university fitted the constitutional definition of proscribed sectarian institutions.

He said the $70,000 contract had to be rejected because "many of the benefits...amount to direct aid to a sectarian institution."

The $30,000 contract was rejected, he said, because it is dependent upon the other contract.

McLuhan already has moved from the University of Toronto and taken a residence near Fordham.

University officials said last week that they would retain him, regardless of whether the state withdrew its support, and that they would go to court to contest any unfavorable ruling by the state.

Reapport in Jeopardy if Voters Face One Package Constitution

If New York State voters are virtually "backed to the wall" and forced to vote on the proposals of the Constitutional Convention on a "take it or leave it" package basis, the state can find itself without a valid plan to reapportionment if the electorate turns down the entire package, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz said today.

"One of the major reasons for calling the Constitutional Convention was to fill the gap in the State's Constitution, relating to apportionment and districting of the Legislature, resulting from the U.S. Supreme Court decision holding the present state Constitutional apportionment provisions invalid," the Attorney General said.

"I can envisage the possibility that if the proposed changes in the Constitution are submitted to the voters as a single document and they literally find their 'backs to the wall' on a 'take it or leave it' basis, every one of the proposed revisions, including the apportionment proposal, can be washed down the drain in defeat," he said.

"I consider it highly important that all of the proposals be submitted to the voters as separate questions or in separate propositions relating to similar revisions," he added.

Attorney General Lefkowitz said that the matter relating to apportionment should be separately considered because its defeat would leave a void in the constitution. He noted that the defeat of other proposed amendments would not leave such a gap because the existing sections for which amendments are proposed would continue to stand as they are in the present constitution.

"In view of the great expense which has been incurred in the process of propounding amendments, the risk should be avoided of having them turned down because a majority of the voters might not like one or more of the proposals," he said.

Attorney General Lefkowitz noted the significance of other issues before the convention and said that New York voters, who have shown a "sophistication in voting practices for many years without being put to the test of weighing a "yes" or "no" vote on the merits of the entire package.

"Then, not only will the risk be avoided of having the complete product of the convention rejected, but the very desirable purpose will be accomplished of having the people express their will, separately and distinctly, on all of the significant problems presented by the Constitution," he said.

Romney Tours Rochester And Answers Questions

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. George Romney took his undeclared quest for the Republican presidential nomination into a Negro neighborhood Wednesday night looking for answers—and got some hard questions.

Among other things, the Michigan governor was asked why he believed he could handle the nation when the major city of his home state had been torn by rioting this summer, rioting described as the worst in this nation's history.

Romney, who says he is making a 19-day sweep across the nation to learn more about the problems of Negroes and the cities, sat down in a storefront headquarters of a Negro organization named FIGHT. On one wall was a photograph of Stokely Carmichael emblazened with his views on Negroes fighting in Vietnam: "Hell no, we won't go."

Romney, intense and serious, faced a crowd of about 100 Negroes jammed into the hot room, and said: "I am sure in my own mind people in this country don't realize how close we are to civil guerrilla warfare in America."

From the crowd came the chant: "Right! Right!"

A middle-aged Negro woman asked the governor: "Do you feel these riots are the result of white America?"

"Liberation, not riots," interrupted a man.

Romney said he didn't think "the responsibility belonged exclusively to either group."

"We haven't applied the Declaration of Independence fully," he said.

"Right! Right!" came the reply.

Said Romney, "We are faced with a very explosive situation."

Applause rocked the little room, along with another chant of "Right! Right!"

A stocky Negro man leaned forward and demanded: "If you can't handle Detroit, what can we expect of you in this nation?"

Romney answered that it was too big for any one man.

Then another man, who said he had lived in Detroit, said: "In Detroit we lived like dogs."

"Tell him!" someone in the crowd yelled, "Tell him!"

A younger man said: "We want to make it to the top on our own. Will you help us help ourselves?"

"Sure," said Romney, "It's the only way."

Romney leaves this city today to spend the next three days in New York City.

Norman Rockwell's Brush Turns to Controversial Subjects

By WILMA JACK
Springfield Republican
Written for Associated Press

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Norman Rockwell, the folksy artist whose conception of the four freedoms inspired Americans in World War II, is pointing his talented brush toward things more controversial.

"Things have changed, and so have I," says the lanky patriarch remembered by most for his more than 360 Saturday Evening Post covers.

After 47 years of recording the foibles of the American public with painstaking accuracy and gentle humor, Rockwell has switched to more topical themes.

"The kind of thing I did for years is through," the 73-year-old artist said softly as he folded his Twiggy frame into an antique chair.

Rockwell is feverishly behind schedule, has committed his talents for months ahead and is generally happy about the whole thing.

The shock of hair is silver, but his cavernous eyes are alive with enthusiasm.

"The public doesn't want my type of gentle humor anymore and the magazines don't want it; they're now full of articles on race problems, drug addiction, sex in the suburbs, mass murders and the like. I still get letters from people every day who say, 'Why don't you do those sweet old pictures like you used to do,' but that's just from older people, like myself," he chuckled.

"To be honest, I was getting fed up with the cute situations," he explained. "Since the Post, I've been getting some very exciting things to do." Among them he mentioned covers and special inside illustrations for Look and McCall's, such as astronauts and the Peace Corps, even a tongue-in-cheek pictorial comment on women's hair rollers and current hair styles.

He remains as American as red, white and blue, as traditional as Old World courtesy and as aware as New World current events.

Recently Rockwell was in the Soviet Union for two weeks on a painting assignment of Russian schools. "The topic was more or less that in school, children were being taught to revere—I could almost say, worship—Lenin." The execution of the painting was one of the most difficult of his career, he said. The illustration will appear on a double-page spread in an October issue of Look's look into the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

In his studio, a huge, elongated canvas sat on the easel waiting to be finished. It shows a portion of today's Main Street in quaint, picturesque Stockbridge, Mass., where the artist lives, and will be featured in a three-page foldout section in McCall's Christmas issue.

For the most part, Rockwell retains a photographically realistic style despite detractors who have sniffed that he is old-fashioned.

"Paintings are never any good when they're easy. The ones I have trouble with always come out best," he said. He feels his most significant or "most recurring work" is the four freedoms series created in 1943 during World War II.

Rockwell emphasizes the need for regular work hours. He naps after lunch, ceases work after dinner and tries to get at least eight hours of sleep.

Since he has made more than enough money, he says his compulsion to work is just "bad habit." Though he is selective with art job offers, he adds, "I have a lot more orders than I can do. I take on too many things—one job is only for some little drawings. I don't know why the hell I do it."

As if answering his own thoughts, he concluded, "Art is my life. I've never done anything else."

All Nudity Scorned in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Cut out paper bikinis are being slapped hastily on pictures of nude women adorning the covers of three records in South African stores.

The original covers were banned by the government's Publications Control Board following a complaint.

The most revealing of the pictures show in profile a nude girl seated on the ground. Another, also in profile, shows a girl standing with a towel draped across the front of her otherwise naked body.

Censorship designed to protect moral standards is fairly strict here. The Afrikaners who control the government belong mainly to the Calvinistic Dutch Reformed churches and are conservative in tastes. A complaint by an Afrikaner group led to the record cover ban.

Movies showing even slightly sexy scenes are sometimes shortened.

Films are also slashed if they show close contact between white women and black men or vice versa. This is in line with the country's segregationist laws.

Many white South Africans say it is repugnant to let blacks see pictures of a white woman's body. Pictures of black women unclothed from the waist up bring no objection and postcards of these are sold freely.

Magazines dealing in nudity are banned and even expensive books of paintings by the old masters, displayed in shop windows, often are covered with brown paper. If the jacket reproduces a painting of a naked woman it is likely to be scissored before display.

Books such as "Lady Chatterley's Lover" and "Lolita" are refused entry into the country on moral grounds.

Despite all this, beaches on the Natal province coast and in Cape Town are jammed in summer with shapely girls wearing diminutive swim suits.

Only in the province of Orange Free State, a stronghold of Afrikanerdom, does the bikini seem to offend. At one or two public pools local authorities have forbidden bikinis. Sunbathing couples, following complaints of petting, must lie at least a foot apart.

Addresses Firefighters Convention

Asks Protection for Firemen in Riots

Calling for greater respect and recognition to firefighters, New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo, Wednesday urged that legislation be enacted on the state and federal levels to provide more safeguards for firemen from rioters.

The Secretary of State also declared that it would be "unconscionable" for firemen to strike.

Held in Nassau

Speaking at the 29th Annual convention dinner of the New York State Firefighters Assciation at the Lido Beach Hotel, Long Beach, L.I., Lomenzo supported proposed legislation which would make it a crime to fire at, injure, intimidate or interfere with a firefighter in the performance of his duties.

In his plea for greater firefighter recognition and protection, Lomenzo cited several instances where firemen were attacked during recent riots throughout the country.

"Any legislation which agurs well for your safety, future and dignity as a human being is much deserved.

"On the other side of the coin, those connected with government, especially those like you, to whom the safety, welfare and protection of human lives is entrusted, have a responsibility and an obligation. I speak of firefighters, police and others responsible for the public safety and welfare.

"It is, in my mind, unconscionable to entertain for even the briefest moment any thought of leaving your post," Lomenzo stated.

Essential Services

"Those in these posts are absolutely essential to our orderly way of existence. Just recently we have witnessed instances of this disregard for public safety in a midwest city," Lomenzo declared, pointing to the strike of police and firemen in Youngstown, Ohio.

"This is dereliction to duty. A better solution must be found. This is a frightening analogy, but can you envision for one moment a surgeon leaving the operating room in the middle of an operation?," he added,

"At the same time, it must be recognized that you as firefighters are due the respect, responsibility and support of the public. This you are entitled to wholeheartedly. Officials high in government also must be practical and provide the form and machinery for you to exercise just requests without resorting to a strike.

"Responsibility, then is a two-way street.

"It is your avenue on which, every work day of your life, you must assume the risk of your life to provide the protection of the lives and property of those in your community.

"And, on the other side of that line, those whom you protect and for whom you sacrifice must have an inherent sense of responsibility to you.

Wants Respect

"They must be completely cognizant of your obligations as family men and fathers. Theirs is the responsibility to respect your human dignity, to provide you with compensation and spiritual and moral support that you so justly deserve.

"The fire station is their symbol of security for their well-being and protection. Neither they, nor you, as public servants should detour from that two-way street of responsibility.

"Social tensions have contributed vastly to the duties of firefighters in many cities.

"I don't have to document the stories of Newark, Detroit, New York, Boston or Milwaukee, nor do I have to enumerate the instances where members of your fire service sacrificed their lives or were the targets for bottles, bricks and bullets.

"The public, whether it is aware or not, is faced with a crisis. The police and fire services in our municipalities are faced with manpower shortages, shortages attributable, in most cases, to the natural hazards of the profession and the need for adequate compensation for those who are exposed to these hazards.

"If the security and protection of the family, home and properties in our cities is to be maintained, then our citizens in these cities and those who exercise their function of government better soon — and real soon — stage a massive 'think in' and resolve the problem," Lomenzo asserted.

Norman Rockwell's Brush Turns to Controversial Subjects

By WILMA JACK
Springfield Republican
Written for Associated Press

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Norman Rockwell, the folksy artist whose conception of the four freedoms inspired Americans in World War II, is pointing his talented brush toward things more controversial.

"Things have changed, and so have I," says the lanky patriarch remembered by most for his more than 360 Saturday Evening Post covers.

After 47 years of recording the foibles of the American public with painstaking accuracy and gentle humor, Rockwell has switched to more topical themes.

"The kind of thing I did for years is through," the 73-year-old artist said softly as he folded his Twiggy frame into an antique chair.

Rockwell is feverishly behind schedule, has committed his talents for months ahead and is generally happy about the whole thing.

The shock of hair is silver, but his cavernous eyes are alive with enthusiasm.

"The public doesn't want my type of gentle humor anymore and the magazines don't want it; they're now full of articles on race problems, drug addiction, sex in the suburbs, mass murders and the like. I still get letters from people every day who say, 'Why don't you do those sweet old pictures like you used to do,' but that's just from older people, like myself," he chuckled.

"To be honest, I was getting fed up with the cute situations," he explained. "Since the Post, I've been getting some very exciting things to do." Good Stock Not Always Best Suited For You

Q) "I have had some money given to me on my twenty-first birthday. With it I bought Martin Marietta at 23. It was my intention to let this investment ride until I married and had children to look after, with a view to their later education. Did I buy a good stock," R. M.

A) You did buy a good stock, but one that I do not regard as suitable for your objective. Martin Marietta is one of the major companies in the aerospace industry and is heavy in building material, particularly cement. Neither of its major operations is conducive to growth, which is really what you are looking for. Your shares yield a well-protected 4.3 per cent, but at your age I would forego good income and aim at expansion in earnings, dividends and price in the years ahead. I suggest that you switch your Martin Marietta into Baxter Laboratories.

Q) "I am 38 years old, married, and in the practice of medicine nine years. I have $20,000 in savings and would like your advice as to stock purchases, how much to put into a house and how much life insurance. My expected income for 1967 is $18,000 and growing." J. F., M.D.

A) There is no rule of thumb as to how divide your investments. In your case, I would hold no less than $100,000 in life insurance. Most people look at the face amount of life insurance. I look at the potential income which at the most would be $5,000 annually on $100,000 of coverage. I would consider $5,000 as adequate for a savings reserve. Since your practice is growing, I would buy a better home than I could now afford, mortgage it fully and insure the mortgage. Any founds over and above these provisions I would put into strong stocks.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

3 Cardinals May Act for Ailing Pope

VATICAN CITY, (AP) — A special commission of three senior cardinals may administer the affairs of the Roman Catholic Church for a month late this year if Pope Paul VI undergoes a prostate operation.

Vatican sources said today the pontiff probably would appoint such a commission, unprecedented in the recent history of the Church, if a definite decision to operate is reached.

Three prominent physicians who examined the ailing Pope Wednesday said his condition had "improved notably" but that an operation might be necessary to accomplish a complete cure.

2-Alarm Blaze Razes Hyde Park Building

A two-alarm fire today destroyed a large two-story frame building on Route 9 in the business section of Hyde Park and flames threatened other buildings in the area.

Fire Chief Kenneth Underwood said the building, owned by Robert Lambert and used for storage, was completely involved in flames when firemen arrived. Chief Underwood called in Staatsburg fire units at 2 a. m. and later summoned aid from Roosevelt Fire Company.

Five firemen were treated by physicians at the scene for injuries of facial burns, the chief reported. Firemen set up water walls between the burning building and saved the Hyde Park Diner, which is 10 feet away. During the height of the blaze which was reported at 1:54 a.m., flames shot across Route 9 and scorched houses on the opposite side of the highway.

State Police were at the scene to reroute traffic. Firefighters reported back in service after 10 a. m. but later were dispatched back to the fire when flames rekindled.

Ashokan Group Urges City Repair Bridge

The delay in the repair of the Weir Bridge which bisects the Ashokan Reservoir is "intolerable" according to the petition of an ad hoc committee of Ashokan area business people to Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City.

The city-owned bridge has been under necessary repair since April of this year. According to Charles Martin, chairman of the committee, the target date for completion was August of 1967. Martin maintains the contractor in charge of the repairs employs only three men on the job and has advanced the completion date to August 1968.

The committee claims hardship for a number of reasons: Sixteen additional miles must be traveled in order to go around the reservoir rather than to bridge it. The road which circumvents it is "very curvy and uneven . . . dangerous in spring, summer and fall and a menace in wintertime."

People who customarily trade with persons and businesses on the opposite side of the reservoir from which they reside no longer do so because of inconvenience.

Doctors residing in Woodstock on the north side of the reservoir are refusing to make house calls to patients residing on the south side.

School children must spend a greater length of time on school buses increasing the possibility of injury through accidents.

Employes of the Department or Water Supply and Gas and Electricity, who reside in the Town of Shokan must now travel 16 miles of work instead of the customary two.

The committee asks the mayor to see that the city, which owns the bridge, dam and adjoining lands, make the necessary repairs as expeditiously as possible.

Financial and Commercial

BY ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market boiled on early Thursday. Trading was heavy.

More than two million shares were traded in the first half hour. The ticker tape lagged for a while.

The Dow Jones industrial average quickly topped the Aug. 9 summer rally peak of 926.72. The question was whether stocks could remain above it by the close.

A parade of big blocks was traded at higher prices.

Henry F. Millonig, of 61 Hemlock Avenue, vice chairman; Mrs. Cora Miller, of 100 Hunter Street, secretary; Orrie R. Riehl, of 176 O'Neil Street, treasurer, and Peter Keresman, of 69 Florence Street, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

Millonig, who is administrative vice president of Canfield Supply Co., will serve until June 30, 1970, and the term of Mrs. Cora Miller, a resident of Kingston for a quarter of a century, expires June 30, 1969. Riehl, who is city treasurer, will serve until June 30, 1972, and Keresman's term expires on June 30, 1968. Keresman is former secretary of the State Police Conference.

Acting KURA executive director Tongue reported the resignation of Robert F. Aprea, deputy administrative assistant, was accepted by the Agency with regret at yesterday's session. Aprea has accepted the position of executive director with the Pottsville, Pa. Urban Renewal Authority.

The board discussed both the Broadway East and the Uptown projects and voted to tour the projects to familiarize themselves with the existing problems, which will be discussed at its regular monthly meeting next week.

Tongue reported that particular emphasis will be given to vacant buildings in Broadway East project which may be demolished under the present demolition contract. Also to be reviewed are the relocation and rehabilitation phases of the program.

The Uptown Project will be reviewed to determine the immediate steps required to get the project under way.

The Board authorized the attendance of staff members to conferences on Housing and Urban Renewal, as well as acting on routine matters.

A resolution was adopted naming the director of KURA as the official responsible for news releases and information.

The new Board was appointed on Tuesday by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan who had originally planned to set the length of terms of members by drawing lots. Later he decided to set the length of appointments himself.

Mayor Garraghan emphasized after making the appointments that he will take a much more active role in urban renewal than previously. His role will include attending the monthly meetings.

4-H Boys Aid Chest Parade Preparations

The boys were Charles Lang Jr., John Lang, John O'Reilly, James Lang and William Lang. Assisting them with skills and materials was Edwin C. Shults, owner of the Saugerties Coal and Lumber Company. Construction took place at the lumberyard.

The frame will be mounted on a truck which will be loaned for the occasion by the Saugerties Coal and Lumber Company. Greenery to decorate the float will be provided by Mrs. Donald Schoonmaker of Valley Gardens, Accord.

Mrs. Edwin C. Shults and Mrs. Donald Schoonmaker are both members of the board of directors of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health. The 4-H group is new to the ranks of helpers for the Association.

About two-thirds of the budget for the local mental health association comes from the Community Chest. The remainder of the income of the Association is made up from membership dues and from contributions from business, industry and the professions in those parts of Ulster County not covered by the Community Chest.

Chinese Shoot At Indians For 3rd Day

NEW DELHI (AP) — New Chinese shooting was reported on the Himalayan border between Tibet and Sikkim today in the wake of a Chinese threat to bring Peking's air force if Indian troops continue to fire across the Nathy Pass.

After three days of patrol clashes and artillery duels in the 14,000-foot pass, the Chinese stopped shooting Wednesday night and the front remained quiet "except for a stray shot here and there" for 13 hours, an Indian Defense Ministry spokesman said.

But later news reports from Gangtok, the capital of Sikkim, said there was more Chinese firing through the frontier corridor this morning.

The United News of India said the Chinese, broadcasting from loudspeakers on the Tibetan side of the frontier, warned that today was the deadline for Indian troops to cease firing or face retaliation from their warplanes.

The Chinese have used the loudspeakers before for the propaganda broadcasts to Indian patrols.

The Indian spokesman said the Defense Ministry attached no importance to the threat of Chinese air raids.

Good Stock Not Always Best Suited For You

Q) "I have had some money given to me on my twenty-first birthday. With it I bought Martin Marietta at 23. It was my intention to let this investment ride until I married and had children to look after, with a view to their later education. Did I buy a good stock," R. M.

A) You did buy a good stock, but one that I do not regard as suitable for your objective. Martin Marietta is one of the major companies in the aerospace industry and is heavy in building material, particularly cement. Neither of its major operations is conducive to growth, which is really what you are looking for. Your shares yield a well-protected 4.3 per cent, but at your age I would forego good income and aim at expansion in earnings, dividends and price in the years ahead. I suggest that you switch your Martin Marietta into Baxter Laboratories.

Q) "I am 38 years old, married, and in the practice of medicine nine years. I have $20,000 in savings and would like your advice as to stock purchases, how much to put into a house and how much life insurance. My expected income for 1967 is $18,000 and growing." J. F., M.D.

A) There is no rule of thumb as to how divide your investments. In your case, I would hold no less than $100,000 in life insurance. Most people look at the face amount of life insurance. I look at the potential income which at the most would be $5,000 annually on $100,000 of coverage. I would consider $5,000 as adequate for a savings reserve. Since your practice is growing, I would buy a better home than I could now afford, mortgage it fully and insure the mortgage. Any founds over and above these provisions I would put into strong stocks.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

3 Cardinals May Act for Ailing Pope

VATICAN CITY, (AP) — A special commission of three senior cardinals may administer the affairs of the Roman Catholic Church for a month late this year if Pope Paul VI undergoes a prostate operation.

Vatican sources said today the pontiff probably would appoint such a commission, unprecedented in the recent history of the Church, if a definite decision to operate is reached.

Three prominent physicians who examined the ailing Pope Wednesday said his condition had "improved notably" but that an operation might be necessary to accomplish a complete cure.

2-Alarm Blaze Razes Hyde Park Building

A two-alarm fire today destroyed a large two-story frame building on Route 9 in the business section of Hyde Park and flames threatened other buildings in the area.

Fire Chief Kenneth Underwood said the building, owned by Robert Lambert and used for storage, was completely involved in flames when firemen arrived. Chief Underwood called in Staatsburg fire units at 2 a. m. and later summoned aid from Roosevelt Fire Company.

Five firemen were treated by physicians at the scene for injuries of facial burns, the chief reported. Firemen set up water walls between the burning building and saved the Hyde Park Diner, which is 10 feet away. During the height of the blaze which was reported at 1:34 a.m., flames shot across Route 9 and scorched houses on the opposite side of the highway.

State Police were at the scene to reroute traffic. Firefighters reported back in service after 10 a. m. but later were dispatched back to the fire when flames rekindled.

Ashokan Group Urges City Repair Bridge

The delay in the repair of the Weir Bridge which bisects the Ashokan Reservoir is "intolerable" according to the petition of an ad hoc committee of Ashokan area business people to Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City.

The city-owned bridge has been under necessary repair since April of this year. According to Charles Martin, chairman of the committee, the target date for completion was August of 1967. Martin maintains the contractor in charge of the repairs employs only three men on the job and has advanced the completion date to August 1968.

The committee claims hardship for a number of reasons:

Sixteen additional miles must be traveled in order to go around the reservoir rather than to bridge it. The road which circumvents it is "very curvy and uneven . . . dangerous in spring, summer and fall and a menace in wintertime."

People who customarily trade with persons and businesses on the opposite side of the reservoir from which they reside no longer do so because of inconvenience.

Doctors residing in Woodstock on the north side of the reservoir are refusing to make house calls to patients residing on the south side.

School children must spend a greater length of time on school buses increasing the possibility of injury through accidents.

Employes of the Department or Water Supply and Gas and Electricity, who reside in the Town of Shokan must now travel 16 miles of work instead of the customary two.

The committee asks the mayor to see that the city, which owns the bridge, dam and adjoining lands, make the necessary repairs as expeditiously as possible.

Chinese Shoot At Indians For 3rd Day

NEW DELHI (AP) — New Chinese shooting was reported on the Himalayan border between Tibet and Sikkim today in the wake of a Chinese threat to bring Peking's air force if Indian troops continue to fire across the Nathy Pass.

After three days of patrol clashes and artillery duels in the 14,000-foot pass, the Chinese stopped shooting Wednesday night and the front remained quiet "except for a stray shot here and there" for 13 hours, an Indian Defense Ministry spokesman said.

But later news reports from Gangtok, the capital of Sikkim, said there was more Chinese firing through the frontier corridor this morning.

The United News of India said the Chinese, broadcasting from loudspeakers on the Tibetan side of the frontier, warned that today was the deadline for Indian troops to cease firing or face retaliation from their warplanes.

The Chinese have used the loudspeakers before for the propaganda broadcasts to Indian patrols.

The Indian spokesman said the Defense Ministry attached no importance to the threat of Chinese air raids.

Hope Quips

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope says President Johnson's newly engaged daughter, Lynda Bird, looks "marvelous."

Quipped Hope Tuesday, "I'm sure she and Gen. Robb will be very happy when they come back from their honeymoon."

Lynda's fiancee isn't a general—yet—he's Marine Corps Capt. Charles S. Robb.

Hope was visiting the White House in his role of savings bond salesman and saw both Lynda and the President.

McNamara Orders TFX Go-Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has directed the Navy and Air Force to proceed with preliminary work on a new high-performance combat aircraft even as his TFX warplane program continues plagued by engineering problems and buffeted by political controversy.

Officials say the new plane would replace the F4, current first-line mainstay in the Vietnam air war, and would supplement—not substitute for—the TFX, or F111.

Designated the VFAX, the craft is intended to be both a fighter and a dive-bomber. It probably would have a swingwing, sport a new engine and pack the most advanced weapons and electronic gear, top Navy officials say.

As Pentagon studies continue, aerospace contractors are showing intense interest in what could develop into a multibillion-dollar addition to the U.S. air arsenal.

"The contractors are all doing a lot of work already," Vice Adm. T. F. Connolly, deputy chief of naval operations, told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee in testimony released Wednesday. "The situation has gone quite far."

At the same July 14 hearing, Paul H. Nitze, deputy secretary of defense disclosed that development of the Navy's version of the TFX, the F111B, now is 2½ years behind schedule because of "inherent technical difficulties."

Nitze and other Pentagon officials also conceded in their censored testimony that:

—The latest Navy test model is "extremely deficient in combat mission capability."

—Test pilots have reported the F111B models they flew contained 252 deficiencies, including 100 they classified as "mandatory for correction."

—These pilots concluded that development models are "unsuitable for service."

—Estimated per unit cost of a fully equipped F111B now stands at about $10 million, more than triple original estimates.

Controversy over the TFX has raged since 1962, when McNamara awarded General Dynamics Corp. a contract to develop an all-purpose craft that could meet major mission responsibilities of both the Air Force and Navy.

The Air Force version, the F111A, has been relatively trouble free. Sources say the Air Force may deploy some F111As in Vietnam early next year, but officials told the committee that carrier tests of the Navy version won' t begin until August 1969.

Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations, testified that recent studies concluded that even when the F111B becomes operational the Navy "also would have to have another fighter plane aboard the carrier."

Logan to Seek Redress Elsewhere in Taping Case

Commenting on an opinion by District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca that Larry Swars, manager of radio station WKNY did not violate Article 250 of the New York State Penal Law, John W. Logan today said he would seek "relief" in other areas.

Logan, district representative of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, (D-Ellenville) had charged Swars and the radio station with illegal and improper taping of conversations of persons who call the radio station.

"I am shocked to learn that the taping of private telephone conversations, without the knowledge of both parties to the conversation, is not forbidden by the penal law of New York State," Logan said. "Mr. Torraca apparently would have me believe that there is no other law or regulation to which I can turn for protection of my privacy from secret recorders like Mr. Swars.

"What Mr. Torraca did not tell me," Logan said," and I think he could have if he did not want to dismiss the whole matter as of little consequence, is that there are other laws and regulations where I might find relief."

Logan referred to a section of "General Information" published in the New York Telephone Co. directory which states recording of a conversation without a "beeper" signal is a violation of the Telephone Company's tariffs and is not permitted.

"Although Mr. Toracca has no interest in enforcing the New York Telephone Company's tariff," Logan said, I expect that the company and the Public Service Commission would have more care for a citizen's privacy." Logan noted that he will depend on the telephone company, the PSC, the FCC and his personal attorney to get relief.

Nursing Home Shortage Is Serious

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — There is an "increasingly serious shortage of nursing home beds" in New York State, says the chairman of a legislative committee on public health.

Sen. Norman F. Lent, R-Nassau, said Tuesday this shortage became apparent after May 6 when nursing - home care became available to medicaid patients.

Lent is chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on the Problems of Public Health and Medicaid.

The legislator said he would hold a public hearing in New York City on Sept. 21 to investigate the shortage and study charges of discrimination against medicaid patients in nursing homes.

Lent said his committee's study revealed that many nursing homes are refusing to accept medicaid patients or are establishing strict quotas for medicaid cases.

"In some homes, the aged have been callously evicted when they exhausted their money and find it necessary to apply for Medicaid," Lent asserted.

"We have a crisis and our public hearing will seek to spell out what we can do to speed a nursing-home building program that meets the needs of the state," Lent said.

Named by Rockefeller To Housing Foundation

Chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority George E. Yerry, Jr., and a commissioner of the State of New York Workman's Compensation Board, was today appointed to membership on the Empire Housing Foundation by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

The foundation, created approximately three weeks ago by the governor, is designed to fund housing for senior citizens. Roughly one billion dollars has been filtered for the foundation's use.

Yerry, who resides at 133 Highland Avenue and for 25-years was head of labor unions in this area, told The Freeman, "I am delighted with this appointment. It is a wonderful opportunity to assist in providing homes for our senior citizens. I will attempt to be of all the help I possibly can."

The foundation will permit any non-profit organization to apply for the money needed to construct homes for the aged.

GEORGE E. YERRY JR.

Marbletown Has $6,000 Chest Drive Goal

PLAN CAMPAIGN — Discussing kick-off of the Town of Marbletown phase of the Ulster County Community Chest 1967 campaign are (l-r) John Hall, leadership chairman; Albert Blakely, individual phase chairman; Robert Hessenauer, general chairman and Richard Davenport, business and commercial chairman. Dr. Ted T. Grenda is publicity chairman.

Under the chairmanship of Robert Hessenauer of Stone Ridge, the Town of Marbletown phase of the 1967 Ulster County Community Chest campaign will go into operation Saturday. Goal for the Marbletown area is $6,000, out of the Ulster County total of $320,000. The drive will culminate in a telethon on Oct. 21.

Hessenauer met with key members of his committee this week, to formulate plans for the opening of the drive. Three canvassing procedures will be followed, with a chairman in charge of each. The leadership group, under direction of John Hall of High Falls, will appeal to individuals able to make substantial contributions. Richard Davenport of High Falls heads the business and commercial division, which will contact people at all types of business establishments. The individual drive, to seek out people who live and work in the area, is the responsibility of Albert Blakely of Stone Ridge. Rondout Valley Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ted T. Grenda, Stone Ridge, is publicity chairman.

General Chairman Hessenauer is manager of quality engineering at IBM in Kingston. A native of Baltimore, he holds a BS degree in Business from Johns Hopkins University. He is marrier and is the father of five children.

Hessenauer explained that his committee has two main objectives; to contact people where they work, rather than through door-to-door canvassing; and to avoid duplicate as much as possible.

"We are responsible for raising $6,000 out of $320,000," said Hessenauer. "We feel we should make contact where people work, rather than at home, because by this method the people who derive their income here are asked to support our area effort.

Thirteen agencies are served by Community Chest. By electing to raise funds jointly, through the Chest, the participating organizations waive their right to make separate appeals. Based on each agency's estimated financial need, the centralized drive eliminates many individual campaigns, reducing not only the cost of collection but also the inconvenience to people often caused by a multiplicity of appeals.

The Community Chest benefits these organizations: Aid for Retarded Children, Boys' Clubs, Boy Scouts, Cerebral Palsy, Gateway Industries, Girl Scouts, Mental Health, Red Cross, Salvation Army, United Jewish Community Center, USO, YMCA and YWCA. A contribution to the Chest is a contribution to the work of all 13.

Teachers to Defy Strike Stop Order

NEW YORK (AP) — Union leaders say they'll defy a State Supreme Court order calling for a halt to their three-day-old teachers strike. The walkout has sent absenteeism among New York City's 1.1 million public school children roaring over 60 per cent.

Albert Shanker, president of the 49,000-member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers said Wednesday its picket lines "will stay until the teachers have ratified a contract."

The temporary injunction prohibiting a continuation of the strike was ordered by Justice Emilio Nunez. The union ignored a prior restraining order when it began the walkout Monday.

Shanker and two other union officials were to appear in court today before Nunez to show cause why they and the union should not be cited for contempt. If found guilty they would face a maximum penalty of $250 and 30 days in jail.

While legal maneuvers continued there were growing signs of student concern. "Teach now, talk later," read signs carried Wednesday by some student counterpickets outside Central Commercial High School.

Attendance at the city's 900 schools fell to only 412,279 students and volunteer help also decreased according to board of education figures. Officials said no plans had yet been made for making up lost instruction time.

Hope of a settlement in the dispute over wages, policy matters and working conditions flared briefly when Justice Nunez proposed that the board and the union submit their dispute to binding arbitration. Both sides refused.

Then, declaring "the teachers executed resignations to engage in a concerted work stoppage—in an attempt to evade the law," Nunez ordered the injunction.

In the background of the legal maneuvers is the state's new Taylor Law, as yet untested, which provides fines of up to $10,000 a day against any union directing a strike of public employes.

At the outset the UFT asked a wage scale for teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 a year as opposed to the present scale of $5,400 to $11,950. A special three-man mediation panel recommended a scale of $6,600 to $13,600 a year which the board endorsed.

Atomic Plant

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. began construction this week of a 750,000-kilowatt atomic electricity plant on the Hudson River at Easton, southeast of here.

The utility announced Wednesday, however, that it still is waiting for final approval from the federal government for the plant, which is scheduled for completion in 1971.

When completed, the plant will be the second nuclear-powered facility owned by Niagara Mohawk. A 500,000 - kilowatt plant near Oswego will begin operating next year.

Fire Department Lifts Emergency Status Here

The state of emergency, declared two years ago by Fire Chief James Brett, was today lifted from the Kingston Fire Department.

The emergency was declared two years back ". . . due to drastic manpower shortages." Essential fire operations were at that time greatly curtailed.

According to Brett, the emergency hindered the fire inspection and prevention programs, was responsible for the closing of the Cornell fire station several months each year, and restricted off-duty men from leaving the city.

Now, Brett said, Cornell fire station is open, programs are going on at a full time basis and the department will soon be at full strength. Four men are to be added to the department by January of 1968.

Brown Jailed In Virginia

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Black Power advocate H. Rap Brown was behind the bars of Richmond's city jail today, while his lawyers challenged the legality of his speedy transfer here Wednesday from Alexandria.

The denim-clad leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee was brought here by state troopers after a hearing in Alexandria Corporation Court on a motion to delay his extradition to Maryland.

Judge Franklin P. Backus denied a motion for bail, and ordered Brown confined to the Alexandria jail.

Just where Brown is supposed to be remained uncertain. Backus scheduled a hearing for 2 p.m. today at the request of Brown's attorney, Philip J. Hirschkop, who asked for a determination of why Brown had been taken to Richmond.

Hirschkop called the transfer a "legal lynching," and said he was told of the transfer after it was under way. Alexandria officials, he said told him they felt their facilities and personnel were inadequate to cope with the task.

Hirschkop also said he planned to renew his motion at the hearing that Brown be released on bail.

Marbletown Has $6,000 Chest Drive Goal

PLAN CAMPAIGN — Discussing kick-off of the Town of Marbletown phase of the Ulster County Community Chest 1967 campaign are (l-r) John Hall, leadership chairman; Albert Blakely, individual phase chairman; Robert Hessenauer, general chairman and Richard Davenport, business and commercial chairman. Dr. Ted T. Grenda is publicity chairman.

Under the chairmanship of Robert Hessenauer of Stone Ridge, the Town of Marbletown phase of the 1967 Ulster County Community Chest campaign will go into operation Saturday. Goal for the Marbletown area is $6,000, out of the Ulster County total of $320,000. The drive will culminate in a telethon on Oct. 21.

Hessenauer met with key members of his committee this week, to formulate plans for the opening of the drive. Three canvassing procedures will be followed, with a chairman in charge of each. The leadership group, under direction of John Hall of High Falls, will appeal to individuals able to make substantial contributions. Richard Davenport of High Falls heads the business and commercial division, which will contact people at all types of business establishments. The individual drive, to seek out people who live and work in the area, is the responsibility of Albert Blakely of Stone Ridge. Rondout Valley Superintendent of Schools Dr. Ted T. Grenda, Stone Ridge, is publicity chairman.

General Chairman Hessenauer is manager of quality engineering at IBM in Kingston. A native of Baltimore, he holds a BS degree in Business from Johns Hopkins University. He is married and is the father of five children.

Hessenauer explained that his committee has two main objectives; to contact people where they work, rather than through door-to-door canvassing; and to avoid duplicate as much as possible.

"We are responsible for raising $6,000 out of $320,000," said Hessenauer. "We feel we should make contact where people work, rather than at home, because by this method the people who derive their income here are asked to support our area effort.

Thirteen agencies are served by Community Chest. By electing to raise funds jointly, through the Chest, the participating organizations waive their right to make separate appeals. Based on each agency's estimated financial need, the centralized drive eliminates many individual campaigns, reducing not only the cost of collection but also the inconvenience to people often caused by a multiplicity of appeals.

The Community Chest benefits these organizations: Aid for Retarded Children, Boys' Clubs, Boy Scouts, Cerebral Palsy, Gateway Industries, Girl Scouts, Mental Health, Red Cross, Salvation Army, United Jewish Community Center, USO, YMCA and YWCA. A contribution to the Chest is a contribution to the work of all 13.

Teachers to Defy Strike Stop Order

NEW YORK (AP) — Union leaders say they'll defy a State Supreme Court order calling for a halt to their three-day-old teachers strike. The walkout has sent absenteeism among New York City's 1.1 million public school children roaring over 60 per cent.

Albert Shanker, president of the 49,000-member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers said Wednesday its picket lines "will stay until the teachers have ratified a contract."

The temporary injunction prohibiting a continuation of the strike was ordered by Justice Emilio Nunez. The union ignored a prior restraining order when it began the walkout Monday.

Shanker and two other union officials were to appear in court today before Nunez to show cause why they and the union should not be cited for contempt. If found guilty they would face a maximum penalty of $250 and 30 days in jail.

While legal maneuvers continued there were growing signs of student concern. "Teach now, talk later," read signs carried Wednesday by some student counterpickets outside Central Commercial High School.

Attendance at the city's 900 schools fell to only 412,279 students and volunteer help also decreased according to board of education figures. Officials said no plans had yet been made for making up lost instruction time.

Hope of a settlement in the dispute over wages, policy matters and working conditions flared briefly when Justice Nunez proposed that the board and the union submit their dispute to binding arbitration. Both sides refused.

Then, declaring "the teachers executed resignations to engage in a concerted work stoppage—in an attempt to evade the law," Nunez ordered the injunction.

In the background of the legal maneuvers is the state's new Taylor Law, as yet untested, which provides fines of up to $10,000 a day against any union directing a strike of public employes.

At the outset the UFT asked a wage scale for teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 a year as opposed to the present scale of $5,400 to $11,950. A special three-man mediation panel recommended a scale of $6,600 to $13,600 a year which the board endorsed.

Supervisors Board Agenda Thursday: 45 Resolutions

Members of the board of supervisors will be faced with a 45 resolution agenda Thursday afternoon when the board convenes at 4 p. m. after the August recess. Communications will be read and the board will adjourn for dinner to reconvene at 8 p. m. to act on resolutions.

Among the resolutions is one providing for the submission of a Local Law to provide for creation of an Ulster County Public Employment Relations Board under a state law which became effective September 1. The resolution calls for a public hearing on Local Law No. 2, 1967, on September 28, at 7:30 p. m. in the county building.

Unexpected cost of Medical Assistance program and Aid to Dependent Children in the Ulster County Department of Social Services during 1967 has made necessary a resolution calling for issuance of budget notes in anticipation of revenue. The resolution seeks $131,250 to pay part of the cost of Medical Assistance and $47,500 for Aid to Dependent Children.

The controversial charge by the Howard Johnston Motel for housing a material witness will again come before the Board. Chairman Peter Savago (R-New Paltz) offers a resolution calling for authority to have the county treasurer pay the bill from encumbered funds on consent of Sheriff William B. Martin and authority of the county judge.

Supervisor Bowman Owen, (R), Hardenburgh, chairman of the committee on Propagation of Game, offers a resolution calling on the State Conservation Department to erect markers on highways designating state owned lands so that the public may easily ascertain where these state lands are and be able to put them to public use.

Chairman Savago, Majority Leader Douglas Dye, (R), Kingston, and Minority Leader Roger Mabie (D), Esopus, offer a resolution fixing the salary for three employes of Ulster County Planning Board who will operate under the Federal 701 Program. The Planning Board positions are: Principal Planner, $9,800 to $11,300; Senior Planner, $8,000 to $10,000, and Planning Technician $6,000 to $8,000. The program is a state and federal assistance project.

Among resolutions offered by Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic (D), is one critical of Chairman Savago for not holding a meeting in August and seeking to have the board elect a new chairman.

Majestic and Irving Bell, (D), Sixth Ward also seek by resolution to have another assistant county attorney appointed "to work with the minority party" and ask the same salary as those now serving.

Due to the increasing number of resolutions being offered, a resolution will be presented calling for the pre-filing of resolutions one week prior to the board meeting, unless by majority vote a specific resolution could be voted on if offered later. The closing time would be 4 p. m. a week prior to the regular board meeting.

Under resolution of Irving Bell, Sixth Ward Democrat, creating of an Ulster County Air Pollution Commission of seven members will be asked. The commission would be composed of a physician, a man from industry, a member of organized labor, two members unaffiliated with any political party or holding any political office, and two members of the Board of Supervisors, one from the majority and one from the minority party.

Supervisor Majestic has also filed a resolution which would open the Ulster County Home property at New Paltz to recreational and other events in addition to being the home of the Ulster County Fair.

Several other resolutions previously offered by Majestic are also on the agenda.

Nixon Claims Prestige Of United States Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says the influence of the United States in the world is failing because other nations no longer believe what President Johnson's spokesmen say.

"Increasingly," he says, "we find signs of a paradox of American power: Never has a nation possessed such power as the United States now commands, and never has a nation sought to use its power to nobler purposes—but seldom has a nation been so mistrusted in its purposes or so frustrated in its efforts.

"The gap is widening between what our spokesmen say and what others believe."

Nixon, frmer vice president and an unannounced candidate for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, made the declarations in a speech Tuesday night at a dinner meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board.

In part, Nixon discussed impressions he gathered during trips this year to more than 30 countries in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

He said that Washington, instead of "sanctimonious sermonizing" about the morality of U.S. foreign policy, should stress that all that is done is done in the primary national interest.

"The plain fact of the matter is that we are fighting in Vietnam for the same reason we fought in World War I and World War II and Korean: Because our vital national interest is at stake," he said.

Nixon never mentioned Johnson by name.

Unlike Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who has said he was "brainwashed" during a visit to Vietnam, Nixon said he had no complaint about the briefings he received during his nine visits there.

Chairman Peter Savago (R-New Paltz) offers a resolution calling for authority to have the county treasurer pay the bill from encumbered funds on consent of Sheriff William B. Martin and authority of the county judge.

Supervisor Bowman Owen, (R), Hardenburgh, chairman of the committee on Propagation of Game, offers a resolution calling on the State Conservation Department to erect markers on highways designating state owned lands so that the public may easily ascertain where these state lands are and be able to put them to public use.

Chairman Savago, Majority Leader Douglas Dye, (R), Kingston, and Minority Leader Roger Mabie (D), Esopus, offer a resolution fixing the salary for three employes of Ulster County Planning Board who will operate under the Federal 701 Program. The Planning Board positions are: Principal Planner, $9,800 to $11,300; Senior Planner, $8,000 to $10,000, and Planning Technician $6,000 to $8,000. The program is a state and federal assistance project.

Among resolutions offered by Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic (D), is one critical of Chairman Savago for not holding a meeting in August and seeking to have the board elect a new chairman.

Majestic and Irving Bell, (D), Sixth Ward also seek by resolution to have another assistant county attorney appointed "to work with the minority party" and ask the same salary as those now serving.

Due to the increasing number of resolutions being offered, a resolution will be presented calling for the pre-filing of resolutions one week prior to the board meeting, unless by majority vote a specific resolution could be voted on if offered later. The closing time would be 4 p. m. a week prior to the regular board meeting.

Under resolution of Irving Bell, Sixth Ward Democrat, creating of an Ulster County Air Pollution Commission of seven members will be asked. The commission would be composed of a physician, a man from industry, a member of organized labor, two members unaffiliated with any political party or holding any political office, and two members of the Board of Supervisors, one from the majority and one from the minority party.

Supervisor Majestic has also filed a resolution which would open the Ulster County Home property at New Paltz to recreational and other events in addition to being the home of the Ulster County Fair.

Several other resolutions previously offered by Majestic are also on the agenda.

Nixon Claims Prestige Of United States Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says the influence of the United States in the world is failing because other nations no longer believe what President Johnson's spokesmen say.

"Increasingly," he says, "we find signs of a paradox of American power: Never has a nation possessed such power as the United States now commands, and never has a nation sought to use its power to nobler purposes—but seldom has a nation been so mistrusted in its purposes or so frustrated in its efforts.

"The gap is widening between what our spokesmen say and what others believe."

Nixon, frmer vice president and an unannounced candidate for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, made the declarations in a speech Tuesday night at a dinner meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board.

In part, Nixon discussed impressions he gathered during trips this year to more than 30 countries in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

He said that Washington, instead of "sanctimonious sermonizing" about the morality of U.S. foreign policy, should stress that all that is done is done in the primary national interest.

"The plain fact of the matter is that we are fighting in Vietnam for the same reason we fought in World War I and World War II and Korean: Because our vital national interest is at stake," he said.

Nixon never mentioned Johnson by name.

Unlike Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who has said he was "brainwashed" during a visit to Vietnam, Nixon said he had no complaint about the briefings he received during his nine visits there.

Booby-Trapped Car Death Touches Off Georgia Rackets Probe

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — On a bright Monday morning in August Solicitor General Floyd G. Hoard of the Piedmont Judicial Circuit walked out of his neat clapboard house on his way to present evidence of crime to a grand jury.

He got into his 1959-model car parked under the shade trees in his driveway and turned the ignition key. A booby trap dynamite bomb wired to the ignition exploded, shattering the stillness of this peaceful town of about 2,000 and killing the 40-year-old prosecutor.

Hoard's death, coming just before the grand jury session and only 31 months after he took office as a vigorous, crime-busting attorney, touched off a probe by state investigators into the underworld of organized car theft and liquor rackets in northeast Georgia.

Speculation arose quickly that the killing occurred because Hoard "had something hot" for the grand jury, perhaps something to do with organized car theft operations which a state official says "runs from Florida to Chicago."

The bombing which killed Hoard was similar to another which injured a Greenville, S.C., auto salvage operator more than a year ago.

Federal agents last year rounded up 10 persons on charges of operating an auto theft ring in Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina. Six of the men were from northeast Georgia.

Hoard had obtained 76 indictments related to auto theft. Several are still pending. The cases he had prepared just before he was killed included several charges involving car theft.

State officials investigating Hoard's death have looked into court cases involving bootlegging operations. They found the prosecutor had been active.

But of the indictments involving illegal beer and whisky charges none had been tried before a jury in the Piedmont Circuit and 53 either were dismissed without prosecution or remain pending without disposition.

In 81 of the cases pleas of guilty were entered and most of the persons involved paid fines, usually $200 to $300. Five received jail sentenced but the prison time was suspended in place of fines paid.

Despite Hoard's work, investigators doubt that he did more than scratch the surface of the illegal industry of his three-county district.

Investigators have found that although Hoard was a vigorous prosecutor he remained a virtual stranger to those around him. He went on liquor raids and carried a gun. He also wrote poetry at times. But he was close-mouthed when it came to talking about his cases and nothing in his records indicate a motive for the killing.

Lutheran Convention Slated Here

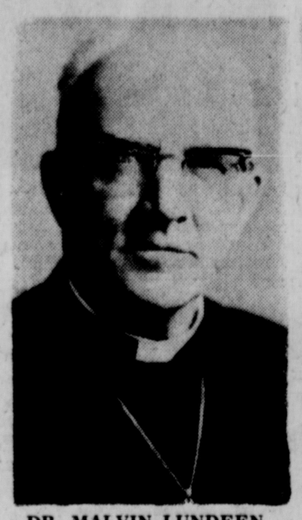
Members of the Hudson District of the Lutheran Church in America will attend the 1967 Stewardship conference to be held this Sunday at 3:30 p. m. at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets, the Rev. John H. Frenssen, pastor.

Other participating churches in Kingston are the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, the Rev. David Gaise, pastor and St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the Rev. Roy Meyer, pastor.

It Can Be Done will be the theme of the inspirational and informative program sponsored by the Hudson District of the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Key speakers will be two nationally known prominent church members, the Rev. Dr. Malvin H. Lundeen and Richard Gysel. Dr. Lundeen is secretary of the Lutheran Church in America; Gysel is a member of the Commission Stewardship. Their topics will cover some of the ways all can work to effectively discharge the money, time, and talents entrusted to their keeping.

The talks will be followed by a discussion and dinner at the host church, to be served by the Ladies Aid Society. The worship service will be conducted by the District Luther League. Representing the league of the host church will be Steven Rider, who also serves on the board of the District League.



DR. MALVIN LUNDEEN

RICHARD GYSEL

A native of Chicago, Dr. Lundeen was first elected secretary of the Lutheran Church in America in June 1962. Before that, he was president for three years of the Augustana Lutheran Church in America. He also served in the parish ministry for 32 years in Iowa and Illinois.

A graduate of Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., and Augustana Theological Seminary, Dr. Lundeen holds Doctors of Divinity degrees from Augustana Seminary and Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., and Doctor of Law degrees from Augustana College and Upsala College, East Orange, N. J. He also received a degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa.

Gysel is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Pittsford, and is president of the church council. Other offices he holds include co-chairmanship of the Rochester District Stewardship Committee; secretary of the Stewardship Committee of the Upper New York Synod; member of the Commission on Stewardship, and of the Executive Committee of the Lutheran Layman's Movement of the Lutheran Church in America. A graduate of the University of Rochester, he is vice president of Fasco Electric Company.

Farm Bureau Head Answers Resnick

"It is now evident that Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has judged the farmers in his own district not qualified to speak for themselves, yet he finds that Midwestern farmers can," said John J. Gaffney Jr., president of Ulster County Farm Bureau today.

His statement is in answer to the Congressman's "condition" for holding a Farm Bureau hearing for the 28th District. Wednesday Congressman Resnick said he would conduct a hearing only if the president of the State Farm Bureau William Bensley was present.

Gaffney commented further this morning saying, Congressman Resnick has charged that the Farm Bureau Federation is abusing the faith of the farmer in his own district.

"As a Farm Bureau we have never needed our very capable President Bensley to speak for us or defend our organization locally.

"Farm Bureau policy and decision begins in the respective counties. In effect we elect our president and his policy is the policy which has been established in the respective counties of the state.

"However it appears Congressman Resnick wishes to overlook or set aside the fact that he does not want testimony of the farmers he was elected to represent.

"I am not naive enough to believe that the Farm Bureau is perfect but it is always moving ahead to do the best job possible to solve the many problems of agriculture for its members and all those engaged in farming.

"Again I ask Congressman Resnick to arrange a hearing for Farm Bureau members and officials of the 28th District.

Cooking Champion

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) — His wife works—so Kenneth Meyer helps with the cooking at their home. Meyer, agent for a gasoline company, learned his culinary arts well: he is a state champion.

For two years in a row he has won the Illinois State Fair pork cookout contest (for men). This year his king's crown of pork roast took top honors. Women who watched the cooking besieged the champion with requests for his recipe—and got it.

Modern Woman's Dilemma Explored

EDITOR'S NOTE—The dilemma of modern woman was explored recently in a five-day seminar at the University of Colorado. Glennys Runquist, women's editor of the Boulder Daily Camera, attended several of the sessions. In the following story she reports on some of the problems mulled over in the seminar, ranging from identity to working mothers to loss of intimacy.

By GLENNYS RUNQUIST
Women's Editor
Boulder Daily Camera

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Women are not unique in having psychological and social problems—men have them too.

But some problems are unique to women and demand understanding from those who work with women, or who live with women, or who are women.

To fathom those difficulties, the Women's Center of the University of Colorado recently sponsored a "Seminar Toward Understanding Contemporary Woman."

Instructing the five-day course was Mrs. Dorothy Jongeward of California—consultant and lecturer in human relationships, marriage, family and child counselor, author, adult education teacher, wife and mother of three children.

Mrs. Jongeward said that many modern feminine dilemmas are problems of identity. "We ask a little girl what she's going to be when she grows up and we want one answer—mother. If we don't get that answer, we worry about her femininity.

"It's interesting that we condition her toward 'mother' before we bring a husband into the picture. And that's exactly what's happening," she said, citing the estimate that 40 to 60 per cent of all brides are pregnant at the marriage ceremony.

Although there is nothing wrong with preparation for motherhood, it's too narrow for our times, Mrs. Jongeward continued. Around the turn of the century, the average life expectancy of a woman was 48 years; she was married at 22 or 23 and had her last child in her early 40's. Often she died leaving a fairly young child, and at any rate, she was "old" by the time her children left home.

Today's Miss Average is married by age 20, bears her last child by age 26 and has a life expectancy of 80 years. So we are now faced with the dilemma of an almost completely new life, between 40 and 80, that is not consumed in child-bearing and child-rearing.

"That's why the 42-year-old American housewife is the greatest consumer of tranquilizers in the world," stated Mrs. Jongeward. "When a woman in her 40's is still young, capable and beautiful, what's she going to do when there are no more children to occupy her time? Now she has the time to pursue the interests that could add something to her life, or to practice the career she never prepared for."

The problem begins, she continued, with small girls and the phenomenon called "marriage black-out." Because of the limited identity we give these children—classing them automatically as future mothers and wives—we begin to develop a lot of girl dodo birds; they're "just going to get married."

Marriage becomes their life goal and for them that aim is going to be the end of something, rather than the beginning. Sadly, there are no requirements for the job, so they can literally black out self-realization and development of potentials," Mrs. Jongeward said.

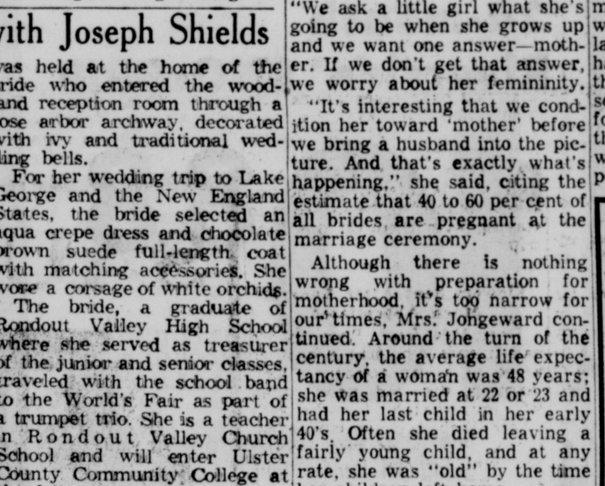
Young men also are affected by this limited goal and should be made aware of the consequences, Mrs. Jongeward told the seminar. "Because of it they get trapped into early marriages and into buying 'things.' Marriage becomes a 'how can I use you' relationship which always falls below its potential. The husband also may become a 'thing', not a person—he's not even supposed to get the rug dirty.

"The simple fact is that if men are not going to accept women as competitors in the labor market, they're going to have to continue subsidizing them. If a man doesn't want someone who wants him only for what he can buy for her, then he must settle for someone who can be economically independent—and accept this as a fact not threatening to his masculinity."

But isn't homemaking a full-time job? The visiting lecturer doesn't believe that it has to be.

The physical work of homemaking used to take up the majority of a woman's hours every day of the week, she pointed out. The coming of automated appliances should have freed women to do other, more creative things. "But now, instead of still washing just once a week, she uses the appliance to wash every day.

"It's a psychological thing, this avoidance of freedom. It's easier to do what we're used to than try to channel our energies and talents elsewhere," Mrs. Jongeward stated.



MR. AND MRS. MARTIN OBERKIRCH, 308 Washington Avenue, this city, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary, Sunday, Sept. 10 at a party given by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Oberkirch Jr., at their home, Hudson Lane, Ulster Park. More than 40 guests attended the affair. Mr. Oberkirch is the business agent for Plumbers Local No. 223. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Cooking Champion

LINCOLN, Ill. (AP) — His wife works—so Kenneth Meyer helps with the cooking at their home. Meyer, agent for a gasoline company, learned his culinary arts well: he is a state champion.

For two years in a row he has won the Illinois State Fair pork cookout contest (for men). This year his king's crown of pork roast took top honors. Women who watched the cooking besieged the champion with requests for his recipe—and got it.

Modern Woman's Dilemma Explored

EDITOR'S NOTE—The dilemma of modern woman was explored recently in a five-day seminar at the University of Colorado. Glennys Runquist, women's editor of the Boulder Daily Camera, attended several of the sessions. In the following story she reports on some of the problems mulled over in the seminar, ranging from identity to working mothers to loss of intimacy.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Women are not unique in having psychological and social problems—men have them too.

But some problems are unique to women and demand understanding from those who work with women, or who live with women, or who are women.

To fathom those difficulties, the Women's Center of the University of Colorado recently sponsored a "Seminar Toward Understanding Contemporary Woman."

Instructing the five-day course was Mrs. Dorothy Jongeward of California—consultant and lecturer in human relationships, marriage, family and child counselor, author, adult education teacher, wife and mother of three children.

Mrs. Jongeward said that many modern feminine dilemmas are problems of identity. "We ask a little girl what she's going to be when she grows up and we want one answer—mother. If we don't get that answer, we worry about her femininity.

"It's interesting that we condition her toward 'mother' before we bring a husband into the picture. And that's exactly what's happening," she said, citing the estimate that 40 to 60 per cent of all brides are pregnant at the marriage ceremony.

Although there is nothing wrong with preparation for motherhood, it's too narrow for our times, Mrs. Jongeward continued. Around the turn of the century, the average life expectancy of a woman was 48 years; she was married at 22 or 23 and had her last child in her early 40's. Often she died leaving a fairly young child, and at any rate, she was "old" by the time her children left home.

Today's Miss Average is married by age 20, bears her last child by age 26 and has a life expectancy of 80 years. So we are now faced with the dilemma of an almost completely new life, between 40 and 80, that is not consumed in child-bearing and child-rearing.

"That's why the 42-year-old American housewife is the greatest consumer of tranquilizers in the world," stated Mrs. Jongeward. "When a woman in her 40's is still young, capable and beautiful, what's she going to do when there are no more children to occupy her time? Now she has the time to pursue the interests that could add something to her life, or to practice the career she never prepared for."

The problem begins, she continued, with small girls and the phenomenon called "marriage black-out." Because of the limited identity we give these children—classing them automatically as future mothers and wives—we begin to develop a lot of girl dodo birds; they're "just going to get married."

Marriage becomes their life goal and for them that aim is going to be the end of something, rather than the beginning. Sadly, there are no requirements for the job, so they can literally black out self-realization and development of potentials," Mrs. Jongeward said.

Young men also are affected by this limited goal and should be made aware of the consequences, Mrs. Jongeward told the seminar. "Because of it they get trapped into early marriages and into buying 'things.' Marriage becomes a 'how can I use you' relationship which always falls below its potential. The husband also may become a 'thing', not a person—he's not even supposed to get the rug dirty.

"The simple fact is that if men are not going to accept women as competitors in the labor market, they're going to have to continue subsidizing them. If a man doesn't want someone who wants him only for what he can buy for her, then he must settle for someone who can be economically independent—and accept this as a fact not threatening to his masculinity."

But isn't homemaking a full-time job? The visiting lecturer doesn't believe that it has to be.

The physical work of homemaking used to take up the majority of a woman's hours every day of the week, she pointed out. The coming of automated appliances should have freed women to do other, more creative things. "But now, instead of still washing just once a week, she uses the appliance to wash every day.

"It's a psychological thing, this avoidance of freedom. It's easier to do what we're used to than try to channel our energies and talents elsewhere," Mrs. Jongeward stated.

Husbands Are Baffled By Economic Factors

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

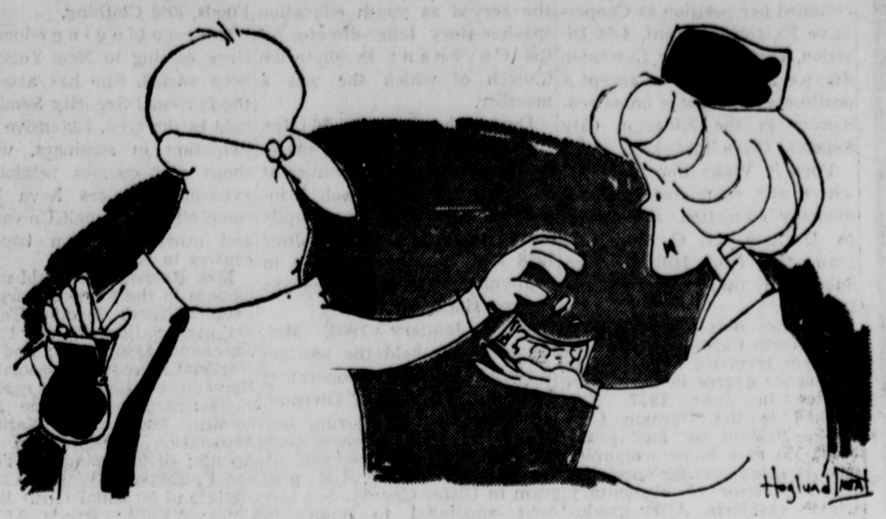
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Many otherwise successful husbands are unaware of the facts of economic life as it affects feeding the family. Often a man who has received two or three raises in the past five years continues to give his wife the same amount of money to spend on food that he did five years ago. Obviously, at least as far as food goes, he still believes in Santa Claus.

"In modern life, with more and more women in full- or part-time jobs, larger incomes and increasing food prices, more mobility and the increase in meals eaten outside the home, the management of family living has become highly complex," observes Mercedes Bates, vice president of a major food corporation and one of the country's outstanding home economists in business.

"The food budget and the time of the individual members of the family must be looked at realistically and with flexibility. This calls for sound understanding of today's economic and other pressures by both husband and wife," she adds.

Director of the Betty Crocker Kitchens of General Mills and former food editor of McCall's Magazine, she believes strongly that today's homemaker, acting as business manager of her home, needs knowledge and skills comparable to those demanded of her husband. To be able to adapt to changing conditions and costs requires awareness, study and willingness to adjust and improve family patterns. Nostalgia is out, alertness to modern trends is in, at least for the successful homemaker. By acting wisely she can effect budget economies without lowering either the nutritional value of appetite appeal of her family meals.

"She can do this by wise purchasing and full use of what she purchases. Too many homemakers throw away leftover food which may well be the equivalent of the price increases which so arouse their indignation," Miss Bates points out.



THE ECONOMIC FACTS OF LIFE are a mystery to many men who continue to give their wives the same amount of money to spend on food that they did five years ago.

Planning protest meetings, organizing boycotts and writing letters to the editor about higher food prices are futile.

Supermarkets are under the same economic pressures — higher wages, higher processing and maintenance costs, higher taxes, more expendable consumer income—that apply in every sector of our dynamic economy. Admittedly a few, very few, high prices locally may be unjustified. But the over-all increase in food costs is an economic fact of modern life and we have to ride with it, says Miss Bates.

Managing a home today, therefore, becomes a form of "big business." Husband and wife and grown children must become involved in its problems. The homemaker is the manager in charge of purchasing. Like an executive in any other thriving business, she must never stop learning, experimenting, and seeking new ideas, according to this executive-home economist.

In the box at right are some of her suggestions to the homemaker who must face rising food costs in the near future.

Doing the Right Thing

PARENTS TAKE DAUGHTER TO VISIT BOY FRIEND'S FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter has been going with a young man from another city. She is going to spend a week there next month. Would it be proper for my husband and me to drive her down? It would give us an opportunity to meet his parents. We haven't been given a personal invitation, but I didn't feel it would be improper, because we don't intend to stay there. And if we are asked to stay overnight should we accept?—Irene P.

Dear Mrs. P.: By all means drive your daughter to visit her future in-laws. It is a fine way to meet them. However, have her write them, telling them the plans and making it clear that you have reservations in a hotel. She may say that you are looking forward to meeting them at some time during your stay. Accept an invitation to a meal if it is offered, but do not allow yourself to be talked into staying with them on this first trip.

Flowers Sent After Funeral Much Appreciated

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently we had friends who had a brother killed in a car accident. Upon learning the bad news, they left immediately for the city where their brother had lived. Since I had no address I could not wire flowers. Would it be all right to send flowers to their home when they come back?—M. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: It would not only be all right, it would be most thoughtful. Flowers which arrive some time after the funeral are often appreciated more than those which arrive at the time of the funeral.

Must Family Be Included in Baby Shower?

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend and I planned a surprise baby shower for a girl who was a visitor from another country and had made few acquaintances here. The women we included were members of an organization she belonged to. We invited some of her neighbors but did not include her mother-in-law or sister-in-law. This exclusion has been the subject of many discussions. For future reference, will you clarify whether one should include a shower recipient's family if it is just for the "girls"?—Eleanore

Dear Eleanore: If there were older women among the members of her organization, her mother-in-law and sister-in-law should have been invited. Where shower guests consist only of young friends of the guest of honor, it is not necessary to include an older person, and doubtless it would have caused ill feeling if you had invited the sister-in-law and not the mother-in-law.

Mistresses Are Now Socially Acceptable By the Frenchmen

PARIS (AP) — Mistresses have been and are now socially acceptable in France.

The influence of Madame de Gaulle, often referred to as a prudish Mrs. Grundy, has done little to change that peculiarly French phenomenon.

Still, a certain amount of discretion is always exercised." A man in public life, for instance, would rarely, if ever, trot out his mistress on a public or official occasion. But he would not be ostracized because he had a mistress," explains one Frenchman.

Even the French wife still puts up with "other women;" after all, the wife still commands more prestige than the mistress, and she's not about to trade places.

Besides, the wife has more legal freedoms, more job opportunities, more independence than ever before. And if that isn't enough to keep her happy, she can always take a lover—if her husband doesn't find out.

That may be the French-farce way life is for the very rich. But having more than one woman to keep does not fit into the finances of most ordinary Frenchmen. As a consequence, middle-class men are monogamous men, with just a few flirtations on the side.

Whatever France is doing, it must be doing something right. It is one of the few countries where the divorce rate is declining. In 1948 the rate was 12.7 per cent. Two years ago the figure was estimated at 8.8 per cent, much less than Britain, and much, much, less than the U.S.

Major causes or reasons admitted by the courts are "grave insult," a general term which includes refusal of a man even to go to bed with his wife; condemnation of husband or wife to a punishment involving loss of civil rights; and adultery.

Oddly, in this country famous for its amours, adultery is very difficult to prove, and it is seldom used in a divorce case.

Miss Nancy C. Edge Weds James Jaffer

Miss Nancy C. Edge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Edge, 32 Webster Street, Kingston, became the bride of James A. Jaffer, 132 West O'Reilly Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aloysius Jaffer, Saturday, Sept. 2.

Judge Hubert Richter performed the double ring ceremony at 2 o'clock at the VFW Hall. White gladioli and yellow spider chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown fashioned with a lace bodice, bell sleeves and white chiffon skirt. She carried her mother's prayer book covered with yellow roses and white stephanotis.

Debi Crespino, 231 Clifton Avenue, Kingston, was maid of honor. She wore a light blue brocade cocktail dress styled with a scoop neckline. She carried a nosegay of pink roses and white and pink chrysanthemums.

Dale Edge, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a yellow brocade cocktail dress with bell sleeves and carried a nosegay of white shasta daisies.

Frank Lange, 39 Hoffman Street, was best man. Ushers were Michael Smeedes, Harding Avenue, Kingston, and Wayne Edge, brother of the bride.

A reception for 60 guests was held at the VFW hall.

For her wedding trip to New York, the bride chose a white wool suit with olive green accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Kingston High School. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, attended Ulster County Community College, and is employed by United Pharmacy, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Jaffer will reside at 280 Main Street, this city.

PARENTS TAKE DAUGHTER TO VISIT BOY FRIEND'S FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter has been going with a young man from another city. She is going to spend a week there next month. Would it be proper for my husband and me to drive her down? It would give us an opportunity to meet his parents. We haven't been given a personal invitation, but I didn't feel it would be improper, because we don't intend to stay there. And if we are asked to stay overnight should we accept?—Irene P.

Dear Mrs. P.: By all means drive your daughter to visit her future in-laws. It is a fine way to meet them. However, have her write them, telling them the plans and making it clear that you have reservations in a hotel. She may say that you are looking forward to meeting them at some time during your stay. Accept an invitation to a meal if it is offered, but do not allow yourself to be talked into staying with them on this first trip.

Flowers Sent After Funeral Much Appreciated

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently we had friends who had a brother killed in a car accident. Upon learning the bad news, they left immediately for the city where their brother had lived. Since I had no address I could not wire flowers. Would it be all right to send flowers to their home when they come back?—M. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: It would not only be all right, it would be most thoughtful. Flowers which arrive some time after the funeral are often appreciated more than those which arrive at the time of the funeral.

Must Family Be Included in Baby Shower?

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend and I planned a surprise baby shower for a girl who was a visitor from another country and had made few acquaintances here. The women we included were members of an organization she belonged to. We invited some of her neighbors but did not include her mother-in-law or sister-in-law. This exclusion has been the subject of many discussions. For future reference, will you clarify whether one should include a shower recipient's family if it is just for the "girls"? —Elleanore

Dear Eleanore: If there were older women among the members of her organization, her mother-in-law and sister-in-law should have been invited. Where shower guests consist only of young friends of the guest of honor, it is not necessary to include an older person, and doubtless it would have caused ill feeling if you had invited the sister-in-law and not the mother-in-law.

Mistresses Are Now Socially Acceptable By the Frenchmen

PARIS (AP) — Mistresses have been and are now socially acceptable in France.

The influence of Madame de Gaulle, often referred to as a prudish Mrs. Grundy, has done little to change that peculiarly French phenomenon.

Still, a certain amount of discretion is always exercised." A man in public life, for instance, would rarely, if ever, trot out his mistress on a public or official occasion. But he would not be ostracized because he had a mistress," explains one Frenchman.

Even the French wife still puts up with "other women;" after all, the wife still commands more prestige than the mistress, and she's not about to trade places.

Besides, the wife has more legal freedoms, more job opportunities, more independence than ever before. And if that isn't enough to keep her happy, she can always take a lover—if her husband doesn't find out.

That may be the French-farce way life is for the very rich. But having more than one woman to keep does not fit into the finances of most ordinary Frenchmen. As a consequence, middle-class men are monagamous men, with just a few flirtations on the side.

Whatever France is doing, it must be doing something right. It is one of the few countries where the divorce rate is declining. In 1948 the rate was 12.7 per cent. Two years ago the figure was estimated at 8.8 per cent, much less than Britain, and much, much, less than the U.S.

Major causes or reasons admitted by the courts are "grave insult," a general term which includes refusal of a man even to go to bed with his wife; condemnation of husband or wife to a punishment involving loss of civil rights; and adultery.

Oddly, in this country famous for its amours, adultery is very difficult to prove, and it is seldom used in a divorce case.

Mrs. McLean F. Reynolds has resigned her position as Cooperative Extension Agent, 4-H Division, Ulster County Extension Service Association to accept a position as teacher of home economics in the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated.

Born in Wake Forest, N. C., where she completed her elementary education, she moved to Durham, N. C., in 1939, graduating from Hillside High School in that city in June 1943.

Mrs. Reynolds was graduated from North Carolina College at Durham, receiving her Bachelor of Science degree in home economics in June 1947. She worked in the Durham City School System for four years (1951-55) as a home economics food training teacher specialist and supervisor of elementary schools cafeteria. After graduation and during the time of formal employment in Durham, she served as youth education speaker-story teller-director of the Covenant Presbyterian Church of which she was a member.

During the year 1955-56, Mrs. Reynolds taught science, mathematics and home economics at Sommerset High School, Princess Anne, Md. Her family moved to Poughkeepsie in June 1956 and then to Kingston in September 1957, where she has resided since.

Since January 1963, Mrs. Reynolds has held the position of Home Economics Cooperative Extension Agent, 4-H Division, in Ulster County. Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

How many people get what I call "shoe-bite" from new shoes?

To eliminate blisters from forming on my feet, I take a new, dry bar of baby soap and rub the soap on the inside of my shoes before I ever wear them.

There will be a collection of soap chips, which I then rub into the leather inside the shoe with my finger tips. I rub the sides, upper part where the toes tuch and the insole where the foot rests.

I do this with every new pair of shoes that I get (including slippers), and have found that it eliminated my troubles.

Dear Folks:

I have talked with the American Podiatry Association in Washington, D. C., and, after research, here is what the Information Director, Mr. Francis A. Kalbacher, said:

"Concerning the dry soaping of the inside of new shoes to prevent what Mrs. Pavone calls shoe-bite . . .

"The soaping actually does help to reduce friction, thereby helping to prevent blisters. Our staff confirmed this."

Now, wasn't it great to find so simple an answer? And our thanks to the American Podiatry Association and our dear Pearl, writing to us.

Who would have thought it could be so easy?

Love,
Heloise

Dear Heloise:

After washing your broom, pull an old nylon stocking top down over the wet nylon bristles or straws and you will never have a "wild" or split broom.

The broom will stay in shape and sweep better.

Dear Heloise:

While on a long trip we found a way to keep our two children (aged eight and 10 years) happily occupied.

We gave each of them a large map of the United States and a colored pencil. We told them to watch for cars with license plates from the various states, and as they spied one to make an "X" in the corresponding state on the map.

Not only did they have fun finding how many different state license plates they could see, but this also served another purpose—it helped them learn the locations of the various states on the map.

Mrs. R. L. James

Dear Heloise:

If you don't like the way the little shortcake cakes get soggy when strawberries are poured over them, put them on a baking sheet in a hot oven 'til nicely browned.

Watch them closely so they don't burn.

When cooled they are slightly crusty, and hold their shape well under the fruit.

I empty all my ash trays in a little metal wastebasket I keep behind my large kitchen wastebasket where it can not be seen.

There is no danger of setting any paper on fire in the large basket, and it keeps cleaner.

To give my homemade jelly a tart taste, I mixed in some unsweetened, powdered cold drink mix.

I just dissolved the powder in a little water and stirred it into my jelly.

It sure added a tangy flavor to my jelly.

NEW SYNTHETIC CHEMICAL BLOCKS ASIAN FLU BUG

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

A new drug for prevention of Asian influenza (the commonest form) is now available — amantadine hydrochloride (Symmetrel). It is not a vaccine nor an antibiotic but a synthetic chemical unrelated to any other anti-infective drug. Although it affords protection against Asian flu, it is not effective against other virus diseases, even other forms of influenza.

The drug works by preventing the virus from invading the body cells without interfering with the vital function of these cells. It has the advantage that, when taken immediately after exposure to the influenza virus, it will ward off the disease. Thus the new drug, which does not interfere with the immunity set up by the vaccine, would be of especial value in the presence of a flu epidemic for protesting persons who had neglected to be vaccinated.

It is recommended for children and elderly persons—two groups that are especially likely to develop complications with an attack of flu. Once started, the treatment should be continued for at least 10 days and can be safely given for as long as 90 days if there is danger of repeated exposure.

Although such side effects as dry mouth, nausea and skin rash have been reported in a few persons who have used the drug, no serious side effects have been observed.

It would be a great mistake to rush to your doctor and demand that he give you this new drug in the absence of known cases of Asian flu in your community because its failure to prevent the common cold and other respiratory infections would, in the minds of the uncritical, tend to discredit this very valuable drug.

Vaccination against Asian flu started in late summer or early fall is still your best protection. If you fail to be vaccinated and do get this disease you should bear in mind that amantadine will do you no good because it is strictly a preventive, not a cure.

Q—I am a woman, 58. I woke up one morning and the room was going around. When I bend over I lose my balance. Is there a cure for this?

A—Since dizziness may be caused by anemia, hardening of the arteries in the head, Meniere's disease and tumors that press on the base of the brain, a thorough study to determine the cause should be made. The treatment would depend on the findings.

Although such side effects as dry mouth, nausea and skin rash have been reported in a few persons who have used the drug, no serious side effects have been observed.

It would be a great mistake to rush to your doctor and demand that he give you this new drug in the absence of known cases of Asian flu in your community because its failure to prevent the common cold and other respiratory infections would, in the minds of the uncritical, tend to discredit this very valuable drug.

Vaccination against Asian flu started in late summer or early fall is still your best protection. If you fail to be vaccinated and do get this disease you should bear in mind that amantadine will do you no good because it is strictly a preventive, not a cure.

Q—I am a woman, 58. I woke up one morning and the room was going around. When I bend over I lose my balance. Is there a cure for this?

A—Since dizziness may be caused by anemia, hardening of the arteries in the head, Meniere's disease and tumors that press on the base of the brain, a thorough study to determine the cause should be made. The treatment would depend on the findings.

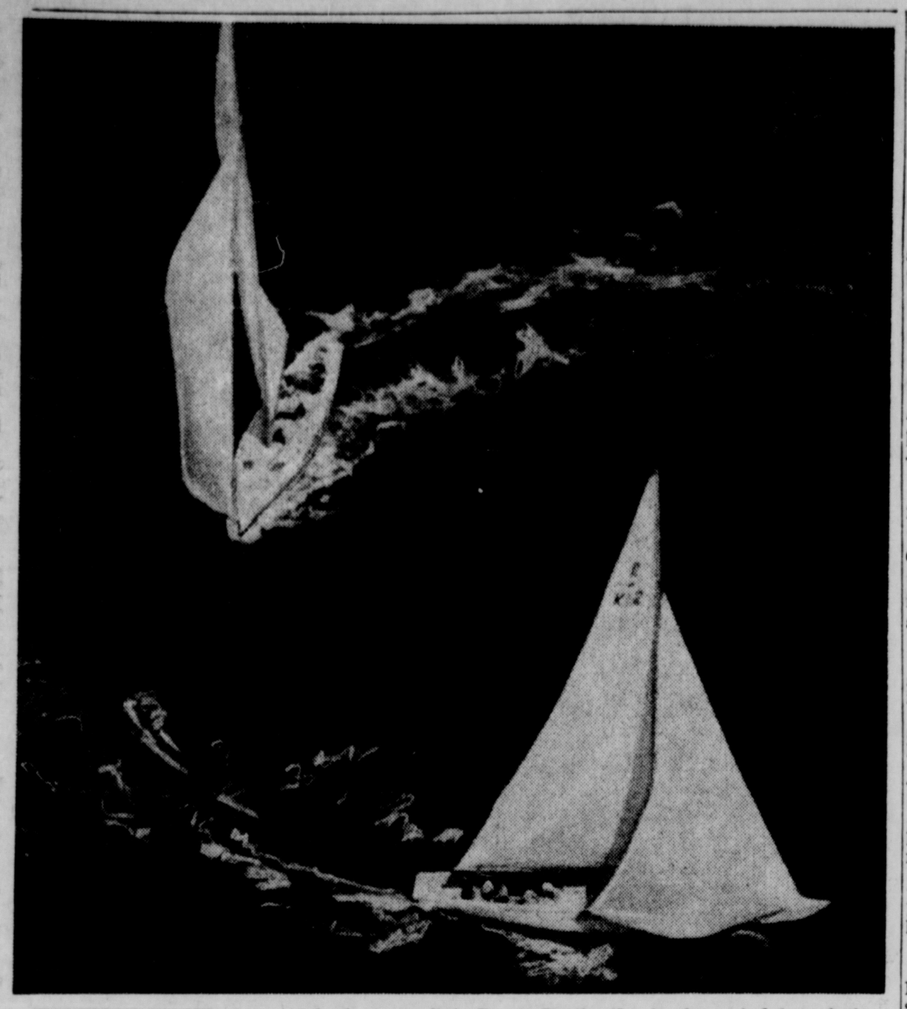
West Texas State Tackle Joins Crusader Eleven



FAMILIAR SIGHT—Intrepid leads Australia's Dame Pattie (L) in downwind leg of the second race of the America's Cup at Newport, R. I., Wednesday. Intrepid made it two straight and is a heavy favorite to win and send the Aussies back home empty-handed. UPI TELEPHOTO.

Alvin Dentley May Appear in Sunday Game

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

The Hudson Valley Crusaders, current semi-pro football occupants of Dietz Stadium, have been hurtin' for one good "local" attraction.

But they hit the jackpot big today with the signing of C. Alvin Dentley, a former college football star at West Texas State.

Dentley, a robust 6 foot 4, 250-pound defensive tackle, was given the once over by Coach Harvey Everhardt of the Crusaders, who said meeting Dentley was like receiving an unexpected Christmas gift.

A newcomer to the area, Dentley is employed as a counselor at the Childrens Home in Kingston.

Coach Everhardt could scarcely conceal his delight in having Dentley available.

"He looks just like the man we need," he said. "He's big, rangy and his college background indicates he knows how to handle himself. Right now it's a question of getting him into football shape but that shouldn't be too hard. He has very little extra weight on him."

Play Albany Sunday

Everhardt hopes to have Dentley available for limited service Sunday when the Crusaders meet the massive Albany Larkin Bombers at Dietz Stadium in their third outing of the season. To date the Crusaders are 1-1, having defeated Stamford Golden Bears, 17-6, and lost to the Long Island Jets, 9-7.

Dentley's reaction to all the commotion about his appearance in a Crusader uniform was predictable.

"I really wasn't thinking about football too much," he said, "but I can't pass up this chance. The Crusaders look like a fine, well organized football team and I'd like to help them if I can." To which Coach Everhardt responded: amen, brother, amen.

Plans Clinics

Dentley also indicated a desire to stage football clinics for area youngsters. Interested youngsters may send inquiries to him at 28 Stuyvesant Street, Kingston.

A graduate of Abraham Lincoln High in San Francisco, Dentley, known as "Daddy D" went to West Texas State on football scholarship. He also earned track and basketball letters in high school.

His biggest college thrill was playing against Donnie Anderson, new rookie sensation of the Green Bay Packers.

"He's going to be a real great one," says Dentley.

Ermer Took Chance and Won

Dean Saves 3-2 Victory

C. ALVIN DENTLEY

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fit Dean Chance with a fireman's hat and Joe Adcock with something a bit more restraining.

Chance strode out of the Minnesota bullpen for only the second time this season Wednesday night and saved Minnesota's 3-2 victory over Washington and the Twins' share of the American League lead. Boston, tied for first place with Minnesota, defeated Kansas City 4-2 in an afternoon game.

Adcock's Indians, meanwhile, struggled through 17 scoreless innings, nine of them without a hit against Chicago's Gary Peters and finally lost to the White Sox 1-0 on Rocky Colavito's run-scoring single.

Third-place Detroit remained one game off the pace as Mickey Lolich pitched a five-hitter and Al Kaline and Dick Tracewski rapped home runs in a 6-1 victory over Baltimore.

In the only other American League game played Wednesday, New York dropped California 6-4.

Jim Kaat was cruising along on a six-hit shutout going into the ninth against Washington and the Twins' 3-0 lead built mostly on Harmon Killebrew's 39th homer, looked substantial enough.

Howard Opens Rally

But Frank Howard and Paul Casanova opened with singles and Fred Valentine drove a double off the right field wall. Tony Oliva, attempting to catch Valentine's drove, crashed into the wall and suffered a three-stitch cut in his left eyelid and superficial knee bruises.

Manager Cal Ermer, who had considered removing Kaat before Valentine's hit, waited no longer. "As soon as I saw the ball head for the fence in right," Ermer said, "I knew I'd made a bad move," Now, he made a good one, calling for Chance.

The ace right-hander gave up a sacrifice fly to rookie Frank Coggins and then struck out Mike Epstein and Cap Peterson, leaving the tying run stranded.

Peters pitched 11 innings of the strangest one-hit ball you're ever likely to see. The White Sox' ace left-hander permitted only a second inning triple by Joe Azcue but walked 10 batters and was in constant trouble.

Sonny Siebert, meanwhile, matched Peters, allowing three hits in the first four innings and no more until the 11th. But the Indians stranded 11 base runners.

The White Sox finally won it in the 17th when Ken Boyer singled with one out and pinch runner Charlie Bradford raced to second on a passed ball. After Tom McCraw was purposely walked, Colavito singled Bradford home.

Lolich, who lost 10 in a row over one stretch, won his sixth straight for the Tigers after spending most of Wednesday in bed, nursing a cold.

Kaline had three hits and scored three runs. His 24th homer in the third inning followed utility man Tracewski's first of the season.

Tracewski's homer was only the fourth of his major league career and it came against Baltimore's Pete Richert. The two are old friends and Tracewski served as best man at Richert's wedding. "My first two times up in the American League," Tracewski recalled, "he struck me out.

Rico Petrocelli drove in three runs—two of them with a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning as the Red Sox trimmed the Athletics. He singled home Boston's first run is the fourth. Both times, he delivered after Kansas City had purposely walked Ken Harrelson.

So with 15 games remaining for all four contenders, Boston and Minnesota remain tied for the lead, Detroit is one game behind and Chicago three off the pace.

Rookie Jerry Kenney smashed a two-run inside-the-park homer and then drew one of three walks that helped build a four-run sixth inning and a Yankee victory over California. Two of the sixth-inning runs were forced home by bases-loaded walks.

High Water or Intrepid; Aussies Not Giving Up

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Dame Pattie's navigator, Norman Wright and his fellow Aussies have, like John Paul Jones, just begun to fight.

"Let's get into it," Wright said steadfastly after the New York Yacht Club's Intrepid gave the Australian challenger her second straight beating Wednesday in the best-of-seven series for the America's Cup.

So today, come hell, high water or Intrepid, the two 12-meter sloops will have at it for a third time over the 24.3-mile triangular course on Rhode Island Sound.

Despite losing by about one-half mile to Intrepid—amounting to a 3-minute 35-second margin—Wright, spokesman for the Aussie boat, said, "We were tremendously encouraged with our performance."

And, in a lighter wind than they had hoped for, the Australians improved markedly on their first-race showing. In that one Dame Pattie didn't have the drive that Intrepid had to cut through seas from a 22-knot blow.

At Wednesday's start, the wind was east-northwest and about 10 knots. For five minutes before the starting gun, Dame Pattie's skipper, Jock Sturrock, and Bus Mosbacher of Intrepid circled each other like a dog chasing his tail.

Then Mosbacher broke off with his Genoa jib set, came about and both 12s headed for the leeward end of the line with Intrepid upwind. Both sloops had their sails clear of each other's backwind but about 30 seconds after an almost even start, Mosbacher began to be bothered by Dame Pattie's slipstream, indicating the Aussies were gaining on Intrepid.

The 46-year-old American helmsman tacked to clear his air. Sturrock followed him immediately and began a series of quick tacks to try and edge up on the Cup defender.

If the tactic didn't entirely succeed, neither did it fail. Both yachts remained about 130 feet apart. But then Sturrock tried a false tack, coming partially about and then falling away again. Mosbacher was alert to the feint, however, and when Dame Pattie squared away again, she had lost considerable speed while Intrepid had not.

Thereafter, Intrepid edged ahead as Sturrock broke off the tacking duel.

Both yachts were bothered by the wakes of the spectator fleet of some 500 yachts, passenger vessels, destroyers and Coast Guard cutters. Both took waves into their cockpits and once on a long port tack on the first leg sailed at eight knots towards the onlooking fleet sending pleasure yachts and destroyers scurrying.

Asked how he felt his chances were, Wright turned back into the dusty history of this 116-year-old trophy when, in 1932, Britain's Endeavour, an admittedly faster boat, took the first two races from America's Rainbow.

"And America won the cup," he said with a John Paul Jonesian authority. And so she did.

Clemente on Spree; Hitting and Talking

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roberto Clemente conducted a short course in show and tell Wednesday.

First the Pirate slugger gave some of his teammates a mild dressing-down for not giving their best. Then he showed them just how good somebody's best can be. He got five hits and drove in four runs as the Pirates pulverized Cincinnati 11-3.

Earlier in the day, Clemente had been quoted as saying some of the Pirates hadn't done their best for former Manager Harry Walker, who was fired in June.

Against the Reds, Clemente hit his 21st homer as well as a double and three singles. Tommie Sisk went all the way for Pittsburgh, evening his record at 12-12.

In other National League games Wednesday night, Philadelphia blanked St. Louis 3-0, Los Angeles downed San Francisco 6-3 and New York edged Atlanta 2-1.

Clemente didn't name any of the culprits in his blast, first aired in a radio interview in Puerto Rico. None of them seemed ready to dispute who had given 100 per cent in Wednesday's game.

Larry Jackson conquered a seven-game hex against the Cardinals with a fine two-hitter, giving up only a single to Lou Brock in the fourth and a double to Curt Flood in the ninth. Bill White homered for the Phillies.

Al Ferrara drove in three runs for the Dodgers and Jim Lefebvre homered as Mike McCormick failed to win his 20th game. Ollie Brown homered for the Giants and Claude Osteen, who went the distance, was the winning pitcher, striking out 10.

Jerry Grote's two-out single in the ninth inning drove in Ed Kranepool with the winning run for the Mets. Tom Seaver became the winningest pitcher in Mets' history with his 14th triumph.

Agnes Kennedy Leads Tourney

Miss Agnes Kennedy fired a 92-21-71 net to win the next to the last tournament for Wiltwyck Country Club women Wednesday. Runnerup by a stroke was Mrs. Gerald Overbagh with 94-22-72.

Tied with net 73's were: Mrs. Sidney Pauker, 92-19-73; Mrs. Jerome Mills, 109-36-73; Mrs. Alvin Motzkin, 103-73; Mrs. Prescott Newell, 90-17-73.

Mrs. Ivan Whitmore carded 97-22-75; Mrs. Gerald Gruberg, 97-22-75; Mrs. Kenneth Lowe, 109-33-76.

Mrs. Prescott Newell earned low gross honors for the day with 90.

Wiltwyck's women's division closes out the 1967 season with a luncheon and 9-hole shotgun tournament next Wednesday. All members as well as golf members are invited. Reservations should be made by calling the clubhouse.

Rangers Fine Five $2,100 for Absence

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — Emile Francis was 41 years old Wednesday but it's a cinch that at least five of his New York Rangers players weren't celebrating.

Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers, doled out a record $2,100 in fines to players who had not yet reported to the National Hockey League team's training camp.

Slapped with $500 fines were high scorer Rod Gilbert, center Orland Kurtenbach and defenseman Arnie Brown. Minor league goalie Don Simmons and Wayne Hall, a rookie, were each fined $300.

Petty's $114,125 Top Take in Stock Racing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Five NASCAR drivers have won $50,000 or more in prize money this season and nine have earned more than $25,000 current figures revealed today.

Richard Petty, who has won 23 times in 41 starts, leads the money parade with $114,125. The Plymouth driver from Randleman, N.C. also leads the season's point championship race by 3,088 points over runner-ap James Hylton.

The second biggest money winner is Ford-driving Dick Hutcherson with $62,795. Another Ford driver, David Pearson, is third with $54,355, followed by Ford's Cale Yarborough with $53,085.

Healey Posts 71 To Lead ENYGA

Jerry Healey of Mechanicville fired an even par 71 to lead the 78-player field in the weekly Eastern New York Golf Association tournament Wednesday at Shaker Ridge.

Healey was out in 35 and in with 36 to edge Bobby Smith of Normanside and Paul Salamone of Pinehaven who carded 73's. Smith's father, Joe, came in with a 75.

The tourney was the next to the last for the 1967 season in the ENYGA. The campaign ends next Tuesday, with all three classes playing at Troy Country Club. The low scorer will have his name engraved on the Ray Delahant Memorial Trophy.

Ferraro Had .250 Average In Playoffs

Mike Ferraro batted .250 for Spokane in the Pacific Coast League playoff championship, won in six games by San Diego.

The Kingston resident was 6 for 24, including a double and the club's only home run of the series. He drove in two runs and had one error in the six games.

With the playoffs ended, Ferraro has concluded his season in both the International and Pacific Coast League.

Mildenberger-Bonavena Bout Slated Saturday in Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Karl Mildenberger, a solid West German with built-in durability, and Oscar Bonavena, talkative Argentine champ who packs a lusty wallop, meet here Saturday in a scheduled 12-round heavyweight elimination fight.

Private bettors have Mildenberger a 4-1 favorite, but if the shaggy Bonavena is to be believed, Mildenberger — back in training after a bout of influenza—will catch more than a cold in the open air stadium where the fight is being staged.

"I tear him apart," said Bonavena. "I knock him flat on his back. I end it maybe in the fourth or fifth round. I am the next world champion."

The bout is one of four elimination matches which the World Boxing Association has sanctioned to find the successor to former heavy champ Cassius Clay.

It is clear that while Bonavena, 24, speaks only halting English, he copes admirably with the few words he knows.

How he can cope with the 29-year old Mildenberger is another question.

A more unorthodox boxer than Bonavena would be hard to find.

Natural Southpaw

A natural southpaw — he writes with his left hand—Bonavena switched to the orthodox stance at the start of his professional career, but in the infighting he tends to revert to the southpaw stance, following up righ jabs with swinging lefts that begin somewhere behind his left knee.

It should be a novel experience for southpaw Mildenberger who may face a barrage of blows in the early rounds, considerable crowding and a number of left hooks—an antidote to his southpaw stance.

Mildenberger, a notorious slow starter, took some of the best that Clay handed out, but then in his next fight he was dumped on the canvas by Italian Piero Tomasoni in the first round of a European title bout.

Geared for Distance

Mildenberger went on to win that one, but the memory of his going down from a short left from the first punch of the fight, still rankles.

Mildenberger may wisely be planning to stay at a distance waiting for Bonavena to run out of steam. Mildenberger's manager, Wolfgang Mueller, said:

"Bonavena is probably the hardest puncher in this tournament, more awkward than Tomasoni but twice as strong. But he fades after the early rounds and that's when Karl really gets going. For my money the fight will go the distance, and Karl will win on points."

Mildenberger has won 52 of his 58 fights, 18 on knockouts, drawn 3 and lost 3.

Bonavena has knock out 23 of his 31 opponents, winning 28 times and losing three.

It will be a tidy pay night for both boxers. Each has been guaranteed $50,000 by Sports Action Corp., joint promoters.

A near capacity 17,000 crowd is expected to turn out for the fight, paying from $2.50 up to $4.25.

The fight will be beamed live by satellite to ABC's Wide World of Sports.

First the Pirate slugger gave some of his teammates a mild dressing-down for not giving their best. Then he showed them just how good somebody's best can be. He got five hits and drove in four runs as the Pirates pulverized Cincinnati 11-3.

Earlier in the day, Clemente had been quoted as saying some of the Pirates hadn't done their best for former Manager Harry Walker, who was fired in June.

Against the Reds, Clemente hit his 21st homer as well as a double and three singles. Tommie Sisk went all the way for Pittsburgh, evening his record at 12-12.

In other National League games Wednesday night, Philadelphia blanked St. Louis 3-0, Los Angeles downed San Francisco 6-3 and New York edged Atlanta 2-1.

Clemente didn't name any of the culprits in his blast, first aired in a radio interview in Puerto Rico. None of them seemed ready to dispute who had given 100 per cent in Wednesday's game.

Larry Jackson conquered a seven-game hex against the Cardinals with a fine two-hitter, giving up only a single to Lou Brock in the fourth and a double to Curt Flood in the ninth. Bill White homered for the Phillies.

Al Ferrara drove in three runs for the Dodgers and Jim Lefebvre homered as Mike McCormick failed to win his 20th game. Ollie Brown homered for the Giants and Claude Osteen, who went the distance, was the winning pitcher, striking out 10.

Jerry Grote's two-out single in the ninth inning drove in Ed Kranepool with the winning run for the Mets. Tom Seaver became the winningest pitcher in Mets' history with his 14th triumph.

Mildenberger-Bonavena Bout Slated Saturday in Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Karl Mildenberger, a solid West German with built-in durability, and Oscar Bonavena, talkative Argentine champ who packs a lusty wallop, meet here Saturday in a scheduled 12-round heavyweight elimination fight.

Private bettors have Mildenberger a 4-1 favorite, but if the shaggy Bonavena is to be believed, Mildenberger — back in training after a bout of influenza—will catch more than a cold in the open air stadium where the fight is being staged.

"I tear him apart," said Bonavena. "I knock him flat on his back. I end it maybe in the fourth or fifth round. I am the next world champion."

The bout is one of four elimination matches which the World Boxing Association has sanctioned to find the successor to former heavy champ Cassius Clay.

It is clear that while Bonavena, 24, speaks only halting English, he copes admirably with the few words he knows.

How he can cope with the 29-year old Mildenberger is another question.

A more unorthodox boxer than Bonavena would be hard to find.

Natural Southpaw

A natural southpaw — he writes with his left hand—Bonavena switched to the orthodox stance at the start of his professional career, but in the infighting he tends to revert to the southpaw stance, following up righ jabs with swinging lefts that begin somewhere behind his left knee.

It should be a novel experience for southpaw Mildenberger who may face a barrage of blows in the early rounds, considerable crowding and a number of left hooks—an antidote to his southpaw stance.

Mildenberger, a notorious slow starter, took some of the best that Clay handed out, but then in his next fight he was dumped on the canvas by Italian Piero Tomasoni in the first round of a European title bout.

Geared for Distance

Mildenberger went on to win that one, but the memory of his going down from a short left from the first punch of the fight, still rankles.

Mildenberger may wisely be planning to stay at a distance waiting for Bonavena to run out of steam. Mildenberger's manager, Wolfgang Mueller, said:

"Bonavena is probably the hardest puncher in this tournament, more awkward than Tomasoni but twice as strong. But he fades after the early rounds and that's when Karl really gets going. For my money the fight will go the distance, and Karl will win on points."

Mildenberger has won 52 of his 58 fights, 18 on knockouts, drawn 3 and lost 3.

Bonavena has knock out 23 of his 31 opponents, winning 28 times and losing three.

It will be a tidy pay night for both boxers. Each has been guaranteed $50,000 by Sports Action Corp., joint promoters.

A near capacity 17,000 crowd is expected to turn out for the fight, paying from $2.50 up to $4.25.

The fight will be beamed live by satellite to ABC's Wide World of Sports.

Agnes Kennedy Leads Tourney

Miss Agnes Kennedy fired a 92-21-71 net to win the next to the last tournament for Wiltwyck Country Club women Wednesday. Runnerup by a stroke was Mrs. Gerald Overbagh with 94-22-72.

Tied with net 73's were: Mrs. Sidney Pauker, 92-19-73; Mrs. Jerome Mills, 109-36-73; Mrs. Alvin Motzkin, 103-73; Mrs. Prescott Newell, 90-17-73.

Mrs. Ivan Whitmore carded 97-22-75; Mrs. Gerald Gruberg, 97-22-75; Mrs. Kenneth Lowe, 109-33-76.

Mrs. Prescott Newell earned low gross honors for the day with 90.

Wiltwyck's women's division closes out the 1967 season with a luncheon and 9-hole shotgun tournament next Wednesday. All members as well as golf members are invited. Reservations should be made by calling the clubhouse.

Rangers Fine Five $2,100 for Absence

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — Emile Francis was 41 years old Wednesday but it's a cinch that at least five of his New York Rangers players weren't celebrating.

Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers, doled out a record $2,100 in fines to players who had not yet reported to the National Hockey League team's training camp.

Slapped with $500 fines were high scorer Rod Gilbert, center Orland Kurtenbach and defenseman Arnie Brown. Minor league goalie Don Simmons and Wayne Hall, a rookie, were each fined $300.

Petty's $114,125 Top Take in Stock Racing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)— Five NASCAR drivers have won $50,000 or more in prize money this season and nine have earned more than $25,000 current figures revealed today.

Richard Petty, who has won 23 times in 41 starts, leads the money parade with $114,125. The Plymouth driver from Randleman, N.C. also leads the season's point championship race by 3,088 points over runner-ap James Hylton.

The second biggest money winner is Ford-driving Dick Hutcherson with $62,795. Another Ford driver, David Pearson, is third with $54,255, followed by Ford's Cale Yarborough with $53,085.

Dean Saves 3-2 Victory

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fit Dean Chance with a fireman's hat and Joe Adcock with something a bit more restraining.

Chance strode out of the Minnesota bullpen for only the second time this season Wednesday night and saved Minnesota's 3-2 victory over Washington and the Twins' share of the American League lead. Boston, tied for first place with Minnesota, defeated Kansas City 4-2 in an afternoon game.

C. ALVIN DENTLEY

Adcock's Indians, meanwhile, struggled through 17 scoreless innings, nine of them without a hit against Chicago's Gary Peters and finally lost to the White Sox 1-0 on Rocky Colavito's run-scoring single.

Third-place Detroit remained one game off the pace as Mickey Lolich pitched a five-hitter and Al Kaline and Dick Tracewski rapped home runs in a 6-1 victory over Baltimore.

In the only other American League game played Wednesday, New York dropped California 6-4.

Jim Kaat was cruising along on a six-hit shutout going into the ninth against Washington and the Twins' 3-0 lead built mostly on Harmon Killebrew's 39th homer, looked substantial enough.

Howard Opens Rally

But Frank Howard and Paul Casanova opened with singles and Fred Valentine drove a double off the right field wall. Tony Oliva, attempting to catch Valentine's drove, crashed into the wall and suffered a three-stitch cut in his left eyelid and superficial knee bruises.

Manager Cal Ermer, who had considered removing Kaat before Valentine's hit, waited no longer. "As soon as I saw the ball head for the fence in right," Ermer said, "I knew I'd made a bad move." Now, he made a good one, calling for Chance.

The ace right-hander gave up a sacrifice fly to rookie Frank Coggins and then struck out Mike Epstein and Cap Peterson, leaving the tying run stranded.

Peters pitched 11 innings of the strangest one-hit ball you're ever likely to see. The White Sox' ace left-hander permitted only a second inning triple by Joe Azcue but walked 10 batters and was in constant trouble.

Sonny Siebert, meanwhile, matched Peters, allowing three hits in the first four innings and no more until the 11th. But the Indians stranded 11 base runners.

The White Sox finally won it in the 17th when Ken Boyer singled with one out and pinch runner Charlie Bradford raced to second on a passed ball. After Tom McCraw was purposely walked, Colavito singled Bradford home.

Lolich, who lost 10 in a row over one stretch, won his sixth straight for the Tigers after spending most of Wednesday in bed, nursing a cold.

Kaline had three hits and scored three runs. His 24th homer in the third inning followed utility man Tracewski's first of the season.

Tracewski's homer was only the fourth of his major league career and it came against Baltimore's Pete Richert. The two are old friends and Tracewski served as best man at Richert's wedding. "My first two times up in the American League," Tracewski recalled, "he struck me out.

Rico Petrocelli drove in three runs—two of them with a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning as the Red Sox trimmed the Athletics. He singled home Boston's first run is the fourth. Both times, he delivered after Kansas City had purposely walked Ken Harrelson.

So with 15 games remaining for all four contenders, Boston and Minnesota remain tied for the lead, Detroit is one game behind and Chicago three off the pace.

Rookie Jerry Kenney smashed a two-run inside-the-park homer and then drew one of three walks that helped build a four-run sixth inning and a Yankee victory over California. Two of the sixth-inning runs were forced home by bases-loaded walks.

Healey Posts 71 To Lead ENYGA

Jerry Healey of Mechanicville fired an even par 71 to lead the 78-player field in the weekly Eastern New York Golf Association tournament Wednesday at Shaker Ridge.

Healey was out in 35 and in with 36 to edge Bobby Smith of Normanside and Paul Salamone of Pinehaven who carded 73's. Smith's father, Joe, came in with a 75.

The tourney was the next to the last for the 1967 season in the ENYGA. The campaign ends next Tuesday, with all three classes playing at Troy Country Club. The low scorer will have his name engraved on the Ray Delahant Memorial Trophy.

Ferraro Had .250 Average In Playoffs

Mike Ferraro batted .250 for Spokane in the Pacific Coast League playoff championship, won in six games by San Diego.

The Kingston resident was 6 for 24, including a double and the club's only home run of the series. He drove in two runs and had one error in the six games.

With the playoffs ended, Ferraro has concluded his season in both the International and Pacific Coast League.

SIDELINE VIEWS

By ED PALLADINO

Those shock-waves concerning the sudden dismissal last month of Ed Donohue as freshman basketball coach at Niagara University have subsided, but it will be a long time before basketball fans of the upstate university will forget what happened.

Donohue coached the Eagles' frosh cagers to some phenominal records during his four years at Niagara. He moved upstate after compiling an outstanding mark as the first coach at Our Lady of Lourdes in Poughkeepsie.

WOOED CALVIN MURPHY

If he did nothing else, Donohue was the person most responsible for getting Calvin Murphy, the Norwalk, Conn. schoolboy cage star to Niagara.

School officials didn't keep it a secret that without Donohue's gentle persuasion, Murphy would be shooting baskets for some other school. With this slick shooting soph at Niagara, the Eagles figure to be heard from for at least three years.

NO REASONS GIVEN

Those behind the scenes at Niagara didn't give reasons for Donohue's sudden dismissal. We are sure there are reasons and we are also sure it was because the likable Donohue and the administration didn't see eye to eye on rcruiting.

Like many other outstanding coaches, Donohue devoted much time to basketball. He recruited well for the Eagles and the fruits of his work should begin to show this season.

We have heard Donohue's side of the story and we feel the college administration acted too hastily in the decision. Donohue was well liked, and he certainly had the press on his side.

Al Butler, a former Niagara star and later an NBA performer, has inherited the job. He will have to go a long way to equal the records compiled by his predecessor.

A FINE GESTURE

We are talking about the $1,000 annual scholarship being offered by Julie Miron, president of the local building products company, to an outstanding senior athlete in Ulster County.

Athletes who are planning to continue their education after graduation have a great incentive to work for. The scholarship will be awarded in four equal sums, giving the student a good start towards his expenses each year.

Miron's contribution, which will be awarded the first time next June, might give others an idea to help deserving students, whether they be athletes or not.

It will be quite a feeling for a graduating senior to be helped during his collegiate days. It should give the athletes more of an incentive to hit the books. You see, the award is not only based on athletic ability, but on classroom results.

All good things come to an end, they say,
But I humbly dispute that claim.
A TD pass to an end, good friend,
Or one to a back counts the same.

NFL: New York Giants

Allie Sherman

Jim Katcavage

GENERAL COMMENT—After worst season in history, Giants can't go anywhere but up, as Allie Sreman would surely say. How far up depends entirely on defense. It looks as bad as it did a year ago. But the attack certainly got an injection of excitement with trades.

OFFENSE

PASSING — Francis Tarkenton will be exhilirating—and controversial. He says he doesn't scramble intentionally, but somehow there's always someone clutching at his jersey. Earl Morrall is steady back-up. Rating — B+

RECEIVING — Revivied Del Shofner means a lot. This could be strongest part of club. Sherman has several possible combinations, featuring Aaron Thomas, Homer Jones, Joe Morrison, Bobby Crespino — and, of course, Shofner. Jones is the super home run threat. Morrison provides versatility. Rating — B+

RUNNING — Got their fingers crossed on Tucker Frederickson's knee. If it holds up so Tucker can run anywhere like he did couple of years ago, Giants will move the ball because they've got a good halfback to team with him in Bill Triplett. Otherwise, they go back to Chuck Mercein, plodder type. Rating — B

KICKING — With Pete Gogolak in service, Mercein's toe inherits place-kicking assignment. As punter, Ernie Koy kicks 'em high, if not far.

DEFENSE

LINE — The crux of Giant problems as a team. Only one reliable left from the days when the front four was the pride of New York — Jim Katcavage. And he can't be an iron man forever. Search is on desperately for inside men who can at least provide adequate pass rush. Glenn Condren offers some hope. Rating — D

LINEBACKERS — Sherman has obsession for playing musical positions. Now stuck with unimposing trio named Vargo, Swain, and Ciccolella. But there's no telling whom he'll shift. End Dick Kotite is the latest. As a result, there hasn't been any unity for a couple of years. Rating — C—

SECONDARY — Emlen's Gremlins are coming right along. Tremendous speed on corners in Henry Carr (9.2 man), Clarence Childs (9.4). Shifted skinny Carl Lockhart to safety and like prospects of Freeman White as a strong safety. Also have Wendell and Phil Harris as holdovers. Rating — B+

SUMMARY — The Giants are a team that'll score and then be scored upon almost as quickly. Only hope to shore up defense is by trading someone like Morrall, and that would leave them thin at quarterback. Still, they'll provide some exciting moments with Tarkenton, and maybe a few wins. PREDICTION — Last in Century division.

January Heads Philly Field

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The touring golf pros challenged Whitemarsh Country Club's par 72 course today in the first round of the $110,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Don January, the defending champion, and virtually all of the prominent members of the tour were on hand to try for the $21,000 first prize. The 72-hole tournament runs through Sunday.

Conspicuous by his absence was Jack Nicklaus, who chose to sit this one out for some time with his family. He won $50,000 with last week's win in the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio.

Gay Brewer, the Masters champion, who was second to Nicklaus at Akron, and Roberto De Vicenzo, the British Open titlist, who was third, joined in the shoot-for-dough antic at Whitemarsh.

Then there were Gary Player, the South African wonder; Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros, Bobby Nichols, Gardner Dickinson, Dan Sikes, Gene Littler, Bruce Crampton, etc.

Cormier Sets New MR Record

MONTICELLO—Real (Coco) Cormier set a new all-time dash winning record for a season at Monticello Raceway with three nights of the season yet to go when he won his 71st dash in the seventh race Wednesday night behind Bonny Pete D.

In a wire to wire performance, Cormier passed the old mark of 70 victories established in 1965 by Jim Grundy over a 134-day season. Cormier exceeded Grundy's mark on the 112th racing card of the year.

Quinn Closes In On Real Cormier At Monticello

MONTICELLO — Diamond Key, a seven-year-old gelding with only ten previous lifetime starts, took the featured trot at Monticello Raceway last night under a skillful drive by Jack Quinn.

Quinn took Diamond Key from the number two post and reached the top at the quarter pole, never being headed thereafter. March Desire was second and Harlan Newport third.

The winner, posting his third victory of the season, went the mile in 2:08.1 and returned $13.20, 7.00 and 5.40 across the board.

For Jack Quinn, second in the race for the dash title at Monticello, he closed the gap somewhat on Real Cormier with his 66th win—four behind Cormier.

Quinn won the first race with Leslie Diamond, and John Bedell took the second with Gideon S. for a $34.00 daily double. The winning combination was 5-6.

76ers Lucky Is Theme at Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, determined to stop "Philadelphia lightning" from striking twice, launch their 1967-68 preseason drills today in the unaccustomd role of a challenger.

"Lightning just struck once in Philadelphia," Board Chairman and President Marvin Kratter said at the Celtics' annual tip-off dinner Wednesday night.

"The 76ers are going to have other teams to play this season—not just Boston—and the Celtics are going to get back on top," he added.

Player-Coach Bill Russell and others echoed the sentiment that Boston could bounce back after the regular-season and playoff losses to Philadelphia which snapped the Celtics' streaks of 10 straight Eastern Division championships and eight consecutive national titles.

"I thought Russell did a terrific job last year," General Manager Red Auerbach said of the man who succeeded him as coach and led the Celtics to a 60-21 regular season mark which still wasn't good enough to win the divisional title.

"The fantastic year Philadelphia had made our year not as good as it could have been," Auerbach added. "But we'll bounce back even if our record is the same as last year if the other clubs don't faint when they go on the floor against Philadelphia."

Lions Will Show For Packer Tilt

DETROIT (AP)—Joe Schmidt, never a talkative man, has become even more silent now that he faces the sternest test of his young career as a head football coach.

Schmidt's Detroit Lions face the world champion Packers at Green Bay Sunday and Schmidt doesn't have a lot to say about it.

"We'll show up, that's about it," he said.

The Lions had a miserable 4-9-1 season last year under the fired Harry Gilmer. Schmidt, an assistant last year, finished the exhibition season with a 3-2 mark.

Asked if he wished his first regular-season opponent were someone besides Green Bay, he replied, "You've got to play them and if you lose one, what the hell, there are 13 more to play."

"But," he added as an afterthought, "the first one is always important."

He said he'd decide Friday who will be the starting quarterback, veteran Milt Plum or second-year man Karl Sweetan.

Schmidt, a balding, blond block of a man, answers many questions about the team with a piercing stare of his blue eyes and a single word or two.

He's made a lot of changes, the most startling the trade of veteran defensive tackle Roger Brown to Los Angeles for future Rams' draft choices.

Schmidt has given the rookies a lot of playing time in the exhibition season, and alternated quarterbacks to see which can handle the team better.

G&M Riding Club Sets October 8 Show

There will be classes for western riding, English riding, bareback riding, as well as pole bending and barrel racing.

Interested persons may contact Mrs. J. Holder, Peacock Circle, MD No. 1, Washingtonville, N. Y. for prize list and entry forms. Entries close Sept. 30.

Nine Lettermen At Port Jervis

Nine lettermen, including quarterback Bill Gastmeyer, will form the nucleus of the 1967 football team at Port Jervis. Coach Joe Viglione's Raiders will debut Sept. 22 in a night game against Nyack.

In addition to Gastmeyer, Viglione has Bill Cleary at quarterback. He did a superb job against Middletown on Thanksgiving Day after Gastmeyer was injured.

Fullback Mike Gould, setback Garrett Hill and flanker Bill Lain are also ready to see action in the pro-type offense used by Viglione.

The ends are set with Carl DeGroat, a 160-pound pass catcher at the split end and Dan Carroll, a tackle last year, at the tight or blocking end slot.

The Raiders, who finished in the DUSO cellar and had one of their worst seasons since Viglione arrived, figure to be contenders this time around.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Lt. Joe Tranchini, who played for Navy teams from 1957-59, will get a chance to see the Midshipman who may break his football records this season.

Tranchini is currently assigned to the U. S. Naval Academy's science department. Likely record breaker is quarterback John Cartwright.

Joe and John share touchdown marks at Navy, both having tossed 10 TD passes in a season and three in a single game.

SIDELINE VIEWS

By ED PALLADINO

Those shock-waves concerning the sudden dismissal last month of Ed Donohue as freshman basketball coach at Niagara University have subsided, but it will be a long time before basketball fans of the upstate university will forget what happened.

Donohue coached the Eagles' frosh cagers to some phenominal records during his four years at Niagara. He moved upstate after compiling an outstanding mark as the first coach at Our Lady of Lourdes in Poughkeepsie.

WOOED CALVIN MURPHY

If he did nothing else, Donohue was the person most responsible for getting Calvin Murphy, the Norwalk, Conn. schoolboy cage star to Niagara.

School officials didn't keep it a secret that without Donohue's gentle persuasion, Murphy would be shooting baskets for some other school. With this slick shooting soph at Niagara, the Eagles figure to be heard from for at least three years.

NO REASONS GIVEN

Those behind the scenes at Niagara didn't give reasons for Donohue's sudden dismissal. We are sure there are reasons and we are also sure it was because the likable Donohue and the administration didn't see eye to eye on rerulting.

Like many other outstanding coaches, Donohue devoted much time to basketball. He recruited well for the Eagles and the fruits of his work should begin to show this season.

We have heard Donohue's side of the story and we feel the college administration acted too hastily in the decision. Donohue was well liked, and he certainly had the press on his side.

Al Butler, a former Niagara star and later an NBA performer, has inherited the job. He will have to go a long way to equal the records compiled by his predecessor.

A FINE GESTURE

We are talking about the $1,000 annual scholarship being offered by Julie Miron, president of the local building products company, to an outstanding senior athlete in Ulster County.

Athletes who are planning to continue their education after graduation have a great incentive to work for. The scholarship will be awarded in four equal sums, giving the student a good start towards his expenses each year.

Miron's contribution, which will be awarded the first time next June, might give others an idea to help deserving students, whether they be athletes or not.

It will be quite a feeling for a graduating senior to be helped during his collegiate days. It should give the athletes more of an incentive to hit the books. You see, the award is not only based on athletic ability, but on classroom results.

Pome

All good things come to an end, they say,
But I humbly dispute that claim.
A TD pass to an end, good friend,
Or one to a back counts the same.

Pro Charts

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN

NFL: New York Giants

Allie Sherman — Jim Katcavage

GENERAL COMMENT—After worst season in history, Giants can't go anywhere but up, as Allie Sreman would surely say. How far up depends entirely on defense. It looks as bad as it did a year ago. But the attack certainly got an injection of excitement with trades.

OFFENSE

PASSING — Francis Tarkenton will be exhilirating—and controversial. He says he doesn't scramble intentionally, but somehow there's always someone clutching at his jersey. Earl Morrall is steady back-up. Rating — B+

RECEIVING — Revivied Del Shofner means a lot. This could be strongest part of club. Sherman has several possible combinations, featuring Aaron Thomas, Homer Jones, Joe Morrison, Bobby Crespino — and, of course, Shofner. Jones is the super home run threat. Morrison provides versatility. Rating — B+

RUNNING — Got their fingers crossed on Tucker Frederickson's knee. If it holds up so Tucker can run anywhere like he did couple of years ago, Giants will move the ball because they've got a good halfback to team with him in Bill Triplett. Otherwise, they go back to Chuck Mercein, plodder type. Rating — B

LINE — Not bad, if they get anything out of their tackles. Center Greg Larsen, guards Pete Case, Bookie Bolin are steady pros. Giant coaches enamored of Willie Young at left tackle because of hustle, attitude. Right tackle Francis Peay looks like he should be great but has been hampered by injuries, slow development. Rating — B—

KICKING — With Pete Gogolak in service, Mercein's toe inherits place-kicking assignment. As punter, Ernie Koy kicks 'em high, if not far.

DEFENSE

LINE — The crux of Giant problems as a team. Only one reliable left from the days when the front four was the pride of New York — Jim Katcavage. And he can't be an iron man forever. Search is on desperately for inside men who can at least provide adequate pass rush. Glenn Condren offers some hope. Rating — D

LINEBACKERS — Sherman has obsession for playing musical positions. Now stuck with unimposing trio named Vargo, Swain, and Ciccolella. But there's no telling whom he'll shift. End Dick Kotite is the latest. As a result, there hasn't been any unity for a couple of years. Rating — C—

SECONDARY — Emlen's Gremlins are coming right along. Tremendous speed on corners in Henry Carr (9.2 man), Clarence Childs (9.4). Shifted skinny Carl Lockhart to safety and like prospects of Freeman White as a strong safety. Also have Wendell and Phil Harris as holdovers. Rating — B+

SUMMARY — The Giants are a team that'll score and then be scored upon almost as quickly. Only hope to shore up defense is by trading someone like Morrall, and that would leave them thin at quarterback. Still, they'll provide some exciting moments with Tarkenton, and maybe a few wins. PREDICTION — Last in Century division.

January Heads Philly Field

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The touring golf pros challenged Whitemarsh Country Club's par 72 course today in the first round of the $110,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Don January, the defending champion, and virtually all of the prominent members of the tour were on hand to try for the $21,000 first prize. The 72-hole tournament runs through Sunday.

Conspicuous by his absence was Jack Nicklaus, who chose to sit this one out for some time with his family. He won $50,000 with last week's win in the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio.

Gay Brewer, the Masters champion, who was second to Nicklaus at Akron, and Roberto De Vicenzo, the British Open titlist, who was third, joined in the shoot-for-dough antic at Whitemarsh.

Then there were Gary Player, the South African wonder; Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros, Bobby Nichols, Gardner Dickinson, Dan Sikes, Gene Littler, Bruce Crampton, etc.

Cormier Sets New MR Record

MONTICELLO—Real (Coco) Cormier set a new all-time dash winning record for a season at Monticello Raceway with three nights of the season yet to go when he won his 71st dash in the seventh race Wednesday night behind Bonny Pete D.

In a wire to wire performance, Cormier passed the old mark of 70 victories established in 1965 by Jim Grundy over a 134-day season. Cormier exceeded Grundy's mark on the 112th racing card of the year.

Quinn Closes In On Real Cormier At Monticello

MONTICELLO — Diamond Key, a seven-year-old gelding with only ten previous lifetime starts, took the featured trot at Monticello Raceway last night under a skillful drive by Jack Quinn.

Quinn took Diamond Key from the number two post and reached the top at the quarter pole, never being headed thereafter. March Desire was second and Harlan Newport third.

The winner, posting his third victory of the season, went the mile in 2:08.1 and returned $13.20, 7.00 and 5.40 across the board.

For Jack Quinn, second in the race for the dash title at Monticello, he closed the gap somewhat on Real Cormier with his 66th win—four behind Cormier.

Quinn won the first race with Leslie Diamond, and John Bedell took the second with Gideon S. for a $34.00 daily double. The winning combination was 5-6.

76ers Lucky Is Theme at Boston

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, determined to stop "Philadelphia lightning" from striking twice, launch their 1967-68 preseason drills today in the unaccustomd role of a challenger.

"Lightning just struck once in Philadelphia," Board Chairman and President Marvin Kratter said at the Celtics' annual tip-off dinner Wednesday night.

"The 76ers are going to have other teams to play this season—not just Boston—and the Celtics are going to get back on top," he added.

Player-Coach Bill Russell and others echoed the sentiment that Boston could bounce back after the regular-season and playoff losses to Philadelphia which snapped the Celtics' streaks of 10 straight Eastern Division championships and eight consecutive national titles.

"I thought Russell did a terrific job last year," General Manager Red Auerbach said of the man who succeeded him as coach and led the Celtics to a 60-21 regular season mark which still wasn't good enough to win the divisional title.

"The fantastic year Philadelphia had made our year not as good as it could have been," Auerbach added. "But we'll bounce back even if our record is the same as last year if the other clubs don't faint when they go on the floor against Philadelphia."

Lions Will Show For Packer Tilt

DETROIT (AP)—Joe Schmidt, never a talkative man, has become even more silent now that he faces the sternest test of his young career as a head football coach.

Schmidt's Detroit Lions face the world champion Packers at Green Bay Sunday and Schmidt doesn't have a lot to say about it.

"We'll show up, that's about it," he said.

The Lions had a miserable 4-9-1 season last year under the fired Harry Gilmer. Schmidt, an assistant last year, finished the exhibition season with a 3-2 mark.

Asked if he wished his first regular-season opponent were someone besides Green Bay, he replied, "You've got to play them and if you lose one, what the hell, there are 13 more to play."

"But," he added as an afterthought, "the first one is always important."

He said he'd decide Friday who will be the starting quarterback, veteran Milt Plum or second-year man Karl Sweetan.

Schmidt, a balding, blond block of a man, answers many questions about the team with a piercing stare of his blue eyes and a single word or two.

He's made a lot of changes, the most startling the trade of veteran defensive tackle Roger Brown to Los Angeles for future Rams' draft choices.

Schmidt has given the rookies a lot of playing time in the exhibition season, and alternated quarterbacks to see which can handle the team better.

Interested persons may contact Mrs. J. Holder, Peacock Circle, MD No. 1, Washingtonville, N. Y. for prize list and entry forms. Entries close Sept. 30.

Nine Lettermen At Port Jervis

Nine lettermen, including quarterback Bill Gastmeyer, will form the nucleus of the 1967 football team at Port Jervis. Coach Joe Viglione's Raiders will debut Sept. 22 in a night game against Nyack.

In addition to Gastmeyer, Viglione has Bill Cleary at quarterback. He did a superb job against Middletown on Thanksgiving Day after Gastmeyer was injured.

Fullback Mike Gould, setback Garrett Hill and flanker Bill Lain are also ready to see action in the pro-type offense used by Viglione.

The ends are set with Carl DeGroat, a 160-pound pass catcher at the split end and Dan Carroll, a tackle last year, at the tight or blocking end slot.

The Raiders, who finished in the DUSO cellar and had one of their worst seasons since Viglione arrived, figure to be contenders this time around.

Huston Reviews Career

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

LEENANE, Ireland (AP) — Portrait of the artist as a 61-year-old man—

Here in the craggy hills of western Ireland John Huston is filming his 25th movie, "Sinful Davey," a tale of a real-life Scottish highwayman of the 1820s. The sun was hidden by the Connemara clouds one day, and the lanky Missouri-born director paused to reflect on his life and career as he passed his 61st birthday.

He allowed that he felt no older and experienced no signs of age "except that I seem to fall off horses more often." He continues to work at a steady clip.

"I make more pictures than any of the first-line directors," he remarked, adding with a rueful grin, "maybe I make too many. But then, my expenses are greater."

Hearst Style

Some Huston supporters fear that the master makes too many pictures, accepting assignments that are unworthy of his talents. But when you see his manor in County Galway, you can understand why he must regularly earn his fee of $500,000 per picture plus 10 per cent of the profits. There he lives in a style reminiscent of the late William Randolph Hearst, surrounded by art works he has collected on film locations in Mexico, Japan, Africa and Italy.

The director claimed that he undertook no film without enthusiasm for its chances.

"You have to be an optimist in this business," he observed. "You must enter into a film with great good hopes for its success. Those hopes usually continue, despite the troubles that ensue. But sometimes you are forced into a position where you are required to make compromises. Then you begin to experience a kind of dejection that presages doom.

"On the other hand, you can sense a euphoria when everything is going right. There is no question about 'African Queen' having been that way. And 'Sierra Madre' also.

"Either way, I always say the picture's great. Two or three years later I may change my tune." He punctuated this with a burst of Hustonian laughter.

Imposing List

John Huston was Hollywood-trained, having started as a screen writer in 1932. His writing credits were distinguished—"Juarez, "Jezebel," "Sergeant York," "High Sierra," most of them done in collaboration, as was the custom. Only when he turned director did he become known as something more than Walter Huston's son. He chose to direct a remake of "The Maltese Falcon" (1941) starring Humphrey Bogart, until then a journeyman heavy for Warner Brothers. The film became the definitive work in the prive-detective genre and accelerated the careers of Huston and Bogart.

After distinguished service as a maker of war documentaries such as 'The Battle of San Pietro," Huston returned to Hollywood with obvious dissatisfaction for The System. More and more he tried to make his films away from the control of the studios, as he did with his masterpiece, "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre." It won 1947 directing and writing Oscars for Huston, as well as one for acting support by his father.

"Sierra Madre" completed John Huston's independence as a film maker, and he has rarely worked in the Hollywood studios since then. He retains no fondness for the big-studio operation.

Over-Mechanized

"The studios became overmechanized, and because of that the system was doomed," he observed. "Until the monopoly laws took effect and the studios were required to get rid of their theaters, they could control the supply and demand. That meant that a premium was placed on efficiency — grinding out the product on a factory basis."

"I'd like to make a picture the way Ingmar Bergman does. He can take a crew of 20-25 persons, including the actors, and make a picture that suits him. Maybe there would be three electricians and one cameraman. The actors would drive their own cars and do their own makeup and wardrobe. Out of this kind of operation Bergman can produce a masterpiece.

"I have two or three subjects that I would like to make in that manner, perhaps taking two or three times as long to shoot as I normally would. Perhaps some day—."

He gazed rather wistfully toward the green hills across the lake, and his listener wondered if it would ever come to pass. Meanwhile he appears to be content working for high salaries to finance the life he leads as an Irish squire. He became an Irish citizen on Jan. 3, 1964, and film insiders considered the move a tax- saving device.

Loves Ireland

But there is no mistaking his love of the pastoral life of western Ireland and for the Irish themselves.

"Life is very good here," he said. "I like my home very much, and I like to ride and to hunt. I have a helluva good time. My life fits right into my work. I don't separate one from the other, any more than a painter can separate his life from his painting.

"And the Irish are very good to me. They see no hope for me; I am destined to go to hell, anyway. So they try to make my life on this earth as comfortable as possible."

Huston Reviews Career

AP Movie-Television Writer

LEENANE, Ireland (AP) — Portrait of the artist as a 61-year-old man—

Here in the craggy hills of western Ireland John Huston is filming his 25th movie, "Sinful Davey," a tale of a real-life Scottish highwayman of the 1820s. The sun was hidden by the Connemara clouds one day, and the lanky Missouri-born director paused to reflect on his life and career as he passed his 61st birthday.

He allowed that he felt no older and experienced no signs of age "except that I seem to fall off horses more often." He continues to work at a steady clip.

"I make more pictures than any of the first-line directors," he remarked, adding with a rueful grin, "maybe I make too many. But then, my expenses are greater."

Hearst Style

Some Huston supporters fear that the master makes too many pictures, accepting assignments that are unworthy of his talents. But when you see his manor in County Galway, you can understand why he must regularly earn his fee of $500,000 per picture plus 10 per cent of the profits. There he lives in a style reminiscent of the late William Randolph Hearst, surrounded by art works he has collected on film locations in Mexico, Japan, Africa and Italy.

The director claimed that he undertook no film without enthusiasm for its chances.

"You have to be an optimist in this business," he observed. "You must enter into a film with great good hopes for its success. Those hopes usually continue, despite the troubles that ensue. But sometimes you are forced into a position where you are required to make compromises. Then you begin to experience a kind of dejection that presages doom.

"On the other hand, you can sense a euphoria when everything is going right. There is no question about 'African Queen' having been that way. And 'Sierra Madre' also.

"Either way, I always say the picture's great. Two or three years later I may change my tune." He punctuated this with a burst of Hustonian laughter.

Imposing List

John Huston was Hollywood-trained, having started as a screen writer in 1932. His writing credits were distinguished—"Juarez, "Jezebel," "Sergeant York," "High Sierra," most of them done in collaboration, as was the custom. Only when he turned director did he become known as something more than Walter Huston's son. He chose to direct a remake of "The Maltese Falcon" (1941) starring Humphrey Bogart, until then a journeyman heavy for Warner Brothers. The film became the definitive work in the prive-detective genre and accelerated the careers of Huston and Bogart.

After distinguished service as a maker of war documentaries such as 'The Battle of San Pietro," Huston returned to Hollywood with obvious dissatisfaction for The System. More and more he tried to make his films away from the control of the studios, as he did with his masterpiece, "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre." It won 1947 directing and writing Oscars for Huston, as well as one for acting support by his father.

"Sierra Madre" completed John Huston's independence as a film maker, and he has rarely worked in the Hollywood studios since then. He retains no fondness for the big-studio operation.

Over-Mechanized

"The studios became overmechanized, and because of that the system was doomed," he observed. "Until the monopoly laws took effect and the studios were required to get rid of their theaters, they could control the supply and demand. That meant that a premium was placed on efficiency — grinding out the product on a factory basis."

"I'd like to make a picture the way Ingmar Bergman does. He can take a crew of 20-25 persons, including the actors, and make a picture that suits him. Maybe there would be three electricians and one cameraman. The actors would drive their own cars and do their own makeup and wardrobe. Out of this kind of operation Bergman can produce a masterpiece.

"I have two or three subjects that I would like to make in that manner, perhaps taking two or three times as long to shoot as I normally would. Perhaps some day—."

He gazed rather wistfully toward the green hills across the lake, and his listener wondered if it would ever come to pass. Meanwhile he appears to be content working for high salaries to finance the life he leads as an Irish squire. He became an Irish citizen on Jan. 3, 1964, and film insiders considered the move a tax- saving device.

Loves Ireland

But there is no mistaking his love of the pastoral life of western Ireland and for the Irish themselves.

"Life is very good here," he said. "I like my home very much, and I like to ride and to hunt. I have a helluva good time. My life fits right into my work. I don't separate one from the other, any more than a painter can separate his life from his painting.

"And the Irish are very good to me. They see no hope for me; I am destined to go to hell, anyway. So they try to make my life on this earth as comfortable as possible."

Mud Hens Tie Series in IL

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Toledo Mud Hens came home and promptly moved out ahead of Columbus in the International League Governor's Cup playoffs.

The best-of-7 final series stood at 1-1 as the two Ohio teams left Columbus but the Mud Hens took a one-game lead in the playoffs with a 2-0 victory over the Jets Wednesday night.

Toledo opened the scoring in the fourth inning when Don Pepper's single brought Dave Campbell home. Wayne Comer's solo homer in the sixth accounted for the final run.

Mud Hen hurler Daryl Patterson fanned 11 batters in seven innings before walking leadoff batter Fred Patek in the eighth. Southpaw reliever Jack Dilauro put down the next six batters in order.

The series continues here tonight with Columbus lefty Jim Shellenback dueling Bob Reed.

Track Employes Strike Owners

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)— Picketing grooms and exercise boys delayed the start of Bay Meadow's 83-day racing meeting for 1½ hours Wednesday, demanding union recognition from horse owners.

A restraining order from Superior Court, five miles away in Redwood City, finally got the nine-race program under way at 3:30 p.m., EDT.

Pickets demanded that the 271 individual horse owners recognize the AFL-CIO Service and Maintenance Union, Local 399. They did not aim their efforts at the track itself.

Similar picket lines had been thrown up previously this year at Hollywood Park and at Del Mar.

Bill Dow, Navy's football captain, comes from McLean, Va. He plays defensive end.

Howe, Hockey's Super Ace, Signs 2-Year Contract

DETROIT (AP) — At an age when most athletes have long since left the arena, Gordie Howe, 39, hockey's muscular superstar, signed a two-year contract.

Howe, who holds more National Hockey League records than any other player, is graying slightly at the temples. He hasn't nearly as much hair as he did 22 years ago when he first burst on the hockey scene out of the frozen prairies of Saskatchewan. But still he signed for his 22nd and 23rd hockey seasons Wednesday.

No other player in league history has played more than 20 years. Howe has completed 21.

"If my health holds up, I'll keep going," he said.

Sid Abel, Red Wing coach and general manager, said, "We don't feel Gordie's at the end of the line — that's why we signed him to two years."

Allman Also Signs

The Wings signed also Norm Ullman, 31, who ended a four-day holdout. He, too, signed a two-year contract.

But all the attention was focused on Howe, a 6-foot, 200-pounder with sloping shoulders, huge muscles and innumerable scars.

Howe reportedly agreed to a $100,000 package of bonus and salary over the next two years.

He draws great cheers at Olympia Stadium every time he moves onto the ice. His power — and his punch — are legendary in the NHL. He holds league marks for most games played, most goals, most assists, most playoff assists, most playoff penalty minute and most playoff total points.

The right winger is the first man ever to score 700 goals.

He's said before that he'll quit whenever it isn't fun anymore. But he gave no indication Wednesday that the joy had gone out of it.

Native Diver Returns Home For Burial

By BOB MYERS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Native Diver, one of California's most famous and successful race horses, will return to the scene of the climactic race of his remarkable career.

He will be buried at Hollywood Park.

The 8-year - old gelding, the dark - brown darling of sentimental racetrack people, died in the veterinarian facility at the University of California at Davis early Wednesday.

The cause of death was peritonitis and resulting toxemia poisoning.

The Diver suffered a coughing spell en route by van from the Del Mar Turf Club in Southern California to race at Bay Meadows near San Francisco.

A luxury van, given state highway patrol permission to speed but with caution, rushed the Diver to Davis. But an all-night effort by a team of Davis veterinarians was unsuccessful.

Hollywood Park's assistant general manager, Thore Brekke, after conferring with the horse's owner-breeder, L.K. Shapiro, said the Diver will be buried beneath the lawn and amidst the flowers of the garden area behind the grandstand.

The old fellow will rest among friends. It was the grandstand people, the $2 bettors who seldom bet on him because the price was invariably short, who set up a deafening roar just last July 15.

That was the day the big black horse won the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap for the third straight year. No other horse had ever won the Gold Cup more than once.

Ten days ago the Diver, often a cantankerous old cuss who insisted on setting the pace, won the rich Del Mar Handicap. It was his 81st start, his 37th victory and 34th in a stakes race, and brought his earnings to $1,026,500.

Mud Hens Tie Series in IL

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Toledo Mud Hens came home and promptly moved out ahead of Columbus in the International League Governor's Cup playoffs.

The best-of-7 final series stood at 1-1 as the two Ohio teams left Columbus but the Mud Hens took a one-game lead in the playoffs with a 2-0 victory over the Jets Wednesday night.

Toledo opened the scoring in the fourth inning when Don Pepper's single brought Dave Campbell home. Wayne Comer's solo homer in the sixth accounted for the final run.

Mud Hen hurler Daryl Patterson fanned 11 batters in seven innings before walking leadoff batter Fred Patek in the eighth. Southpaw reliever Jack Dilauro put down the next six batters in order.

The series continues here tonight with Columbus lefty Jim Shellenback dueling Bob Reed.

Track Employes Strike Owners

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)— Picketing grooms and exercise boys delayed the start of Bay Meadow's 83-day racing meeting for 1½ hours Wednesday, demanding union recognition from horse owners.

A restraining order from Superior Court, five miles away in Redwood City, finally got the nine-race program under way at 3:30 p.m., EDT.

Pickets demanded that the 271 individual horse owners recognize the AFL-CIO Service and Maintenance Union, Local 399. They did not aim their efforts at the track itself.

Similar picket lines had been thrown up previously this year at Hollywood Park and at Del Mar.

Bill Dow, Navy's football captain, comes from McLean, Va. He plays defensive end.

Howe, Hockey's Super Ace, Signs 2-Year Contract

DETROIT (AP) — At an age when most athletes have long since left the arena, Gordie Howe, 39, hockey's muscular superstar, signed a two-year contract.

Howe, who holds more National Hockey League records than any other player, is graying slightly at the temples. He hasn't nearly as much hair as he did 22 years ago when he first burst on the hockey scene out of the frozen prairies of Saskatchewan. But still he signed for his 22nd and 23rd hockey seasons Wednesday.

No other player in league history has played more than 20 years. Howe has completed 21.

"If my health holds up, I'll keep going," he said.

Sid Abel, Red Wing coach and general manager, said, "We don't feel Gordie's at the end of the line — that's why we signed him to two years."

Allman Also Signs

The Wings signed also Norm Ullman, 31, who ended a four-day holdout. He, too, signed a two-year contract.

But all the attention was focused on Howe, a 6-foot, 200-pounder with sloping shoulders, huge muscles and innumerable scars.

Howe reportedly agreed to a $100,000 package of bonus and salary over the next two years.

He draws great cheers at Olympia Stadium every time he moves onto the ice. His power — and his punch — are legendary in the NHL. He holds league marks for most games played, most goals, most assists, most playoff assists, most playoff penalty minute and most playoff total points.

The right winger is the first man ever to score 700 goals.

He's said before that he'll quit whenever it isn't fun anymore. But he gave no indication Wednesday that the joy had gone out of it.

Native Diver Returns Home For Burial

By BOB MYERS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Native Diver, one of California's most famous and successful race horses, will return to the scene of the climactic race of his remarkable career.

He will be buried at Hollywood Park.

The 8-year - old gelding, the dark - brown darling of sentimental racetrack people, died in the veterinarian facility at the University of California at Davis early Wednesday.

The cause of death was peritonitis and resulting toxemia poisoning.

The Diver suffered a coughing spell en route by van from the Del Mar Turf Club in Southern California to race at Bay Meadows near San Francisco.

A luxury van, given state highway patrol permission to speed but with caution, rushed the Diver to Davis. But an all-night effort by a team of Davis veterinarians was unsuccessful.

Hollywood Park's assistant general manager, Thore Brekke, after conferring with the horse's owner-breeder, L.K. Shapiro, said the Diver will be buried beneath the lawn and amidst the flowers of the garden area behind the grandstand.

The old fellow will rest among friends. It was the grandstand people, the $2 bettors who seldom bet on him because the price was invariably short, who set up a deafening roar just last July 15.

That was the day the big black horse won the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap for the third straight year. No other horse had ever won the Gold Cup more than once.

Ten days ago the Diver, often a cantankerous old cuss who insisted on setting the pace, won the rich Del Mar Handicap. It was his 81st start, his 37th victory and 34th in a stakes race, and brought his earnings to $1,026,500.

Dear Abby

'Appearance' Fine Index

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBEY: A kid named Allen came over to see me because my parents think I'm too young to date. I'm 14, but am very mature for my age. Well, when my father met Allen he told me he didn't want to see him around again unless he had a shave and a haircut. It so happens that Allen plays with a band and he HAS to wear his hair like that. But I told him what my father said anyway, and about that time the band broke up, so Allen got his hair cut.

Now, my father says he doesn't like Allen because he never stands up when an older person comes into the room, and he doesn't look clean, and he dresses like a freak, and blah, blah, blah, etc. My father is just looking for things to pick at because he doesn't like him.

How can I get my father to realize that the way a guy looks is none of HIS business. Allen is a good kid and I like him. Please help me.

LIKES ALLEN

DEAR LIKES: The way a "guy" looks may be none of your father's business, but the kind of fellows who call on his 14-year-old daughter is probably the most important business a father has.

A person's appearance is a fairly reliable index to his attitudes, habits, morals, and character. Trust your father's judgment in these matters. You won't regret it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "NERVOUS AND AFRAID'S" letter brought back memories of those terrible days when I, too, was nervous and afraid. Nervous about every situation, and afraid to face people. I had doubts about my sanity, but wouldn't admit that I needed psychiatric help because I thought I might bring "shame" on my family. Finally I had to be committed to a psychiatric hospital.

It was only for a short time, but during my stay there every shameful act, every reason for guilt feelings that haunted me was brought out into the open, and I was cleansed and reborn again. This I did with the help of a psychiatrist. Later I received help from my clergyman (a rabbi) and a social worker.

Let no one try to tell one who suffers from deep depressions that "it is all in her head." It is very real. There is nothing imaginary about a mental illness. Denying it only prolongs the agony and delays the cure which comes from psychiatric treatment. So tell "NERVOUS AND AFRAID" that she must get help. She owes it to herself, her husband, and her children. Sincerely, "BEEN THERE"

DEAR ABBY: If I had read that letter signed "NERVOUS AND AFRAID" four years ago, I might be well today. I was exactly like the person who wrote that letter. I was so afraid to face people I couldn't even go into a store! I felt so alone.

I wouldn't admit to myself that I was having a nervous breakdown because I was afraid would be "sent away." It's nothing like that. I am seeing a psychiatrist and am living at home with my family. My doctor said if I had come to him earlier it wouldn't take so long to cure me.

Too bad I didn't have the luck to see a letter like that four years ago, Abby. Just knowing there was one more person in the world with a problem like mine would have helped at lot.

FULL OF HOPE

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEW MOTHER": I could write a book on advice to the new mother, but if you want happy, well-adjusted, secure children, never say:

(1) "If you do that once more I'm going to punish you."

(2) "Why can't you be good—like your sister?"

(3) "When daddy comes home you're going to get a licking!"

(4) "If someone calls, say I'm not home."

(5) "Go away and don't bother me. I'm busy now."

West's two-spade call was one of those weak two bids which have come into almost universal use in expert circles. East's two-no-trump response was also standard. This response has nothing at all to do with a desire to play no-trump but is a forcing bid designed to elicit further information from partner.

If South had passed, West would have rebid to three spades to show a very good weak two bid. These bids show 6 to 12 high card points and West had 10 and a very good suit. He made the same bid over South's three club call.

The rest of the bidding was normal enough. East's jump to six spades was based on the thought that his partner would hold only one heart and would also hold the queen of diamonds and North's final seven club bid was made because the thought that West would make his contract.

It was a good save. East and West made one club, two diamonds and a heart and collected a 700-point penalty, but the slam was there for them.

South told West, "I bid hearts to ask for a lead and a heart lead would have given you the spade slam."

West replied. "So would any other lead. Suppose North opens a diamond. I would win in dummy and draw trumps with two leads. Then I would lead my singleton heart. If North rose with his king, I would lead dummy's queen of hearts through South's ace for a ruffing finesse and eventually ruff my three clubs and discard my one losing diamond on the heart honor. If North ducked, my jack of hearts would force South's ace. I would ruff dummy's two little hearts later on. North's king would fall and I would still get rid of my losing diamond."

"Right," said South. "It seems that we did our best after all."

gullible (GUL-uh-b'l)

easily fooled

Young people are usually gullible until they are taught a few lessons through their own personal experiences.

Many unscrupulous salesmen look for gullible customers so they can sell them their fraudulent products.

Dear Abby

'Appearance' Fine Index

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBEY: A kid named Allen came over to see me because my parents think I'm too young to date. I'm 14, but am very mature for my age. Well, when my father met Allen he told me he didn't want to see him around again unless he had a shave and a haircut. It so happens that Allen plays with a band and he HAS to wear his hair like that. But I told him what my father said anyway, and about that time the band broke up, so Allen got his hair cut.

Now, my father says he doesn't like Allen because he never stands up when an older person comes into the room, and he doesn't look clean, and he dresses like a freak, and blah, blah, blah, etc. My father is just looking for things to pick at because he doesn't like him.

How can I get my father to realize that the way a guy looks is none of HIS business. Allen is a good kid and I like him. Please help me.

LIKES ALLEN

DEAR LIKES: The way a "guy" looks may be none of your father's business, but the kind of fellows who call on his 14-year-old daughter is probably the most important business a father has.

A person's appearance is a fairly reliable index to his attitudes, habits, morals, and character. Trust your father's judgment in these matters. You won't regret it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "NERVOUS AND AFRAID'S" letter brought back memories of those terrible days when I, too, was nervous and afraid. Nervous about every situation, and afraid to face people. I had doubts about my sanity, but wouldn't admit that I needed psychiatric help because I thought I might bring "shame" on my family. Finally I had to be committed to a psychiatric hospital.

It was only for a short time, but during my stay there every shameful act, every reason for guilt feelings that haunted me was brought out into the open, and I was cleansed and reborn again. This I did with the help of a psychiatrist. Later I received help from my clergyman (a rabbi) and a social worker.

Let no one try to tell one who suffers from deep depressions that "it is all in her head." It is very real. There is nothing imaginary about a mental illness. Denying it only prolongs the agony and delays the cure which comes from psychiatric treatment. So tell "NERVOUS AND AFRAID" that she must get help. She owes it to herself, her husband, and her children. Sincerely, "BEEN THERE"

DEAR ABBY: If I had read that letter signed "NERVOUS AND AFRAID" four years ago, I might be well today. I was exactly like the person who wrote that letter. I was so afraid to face people I couldn't even go into a store! I felt so alone.

I wouldn't admit to myself that I was having a nervous breakdown because I was afraid would be "sent away." It's nothing like that. I am seeing a psychiatrist and am living at home with my family. My doctor said if I had come to him earlier it wouldn't take so long to cure me.

Too bad I didn't have the luck to see a letter like that four years ago, Abby. Just knowing there was one more person in the world with a problem like mine would have helped at lot.

TV Shows Bigger Than Ever

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the face of all the competition, variety shows have become ornate television extravaganzas with elaborate scenery, tricky camera work, dancing girls and boys and big name stars introducing big name guest stars. Along came NBC's new "Music Hall" Wednesday night with a change of pace—a return to the older, simpler style but without, unfortunately, very stimulating results.

The first of the weekly programs concentrated primarily on Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass. Alpert, who seems to have the poise of a reigning monarch when blowing his trumpet, is almost diffident in reading stilted lines from the cue cards. TV Shows Bigger Than Ever

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the face of all the competition, variety shows have become ornate television extravaganzas with elaborate scenery, tricky camera work, dancing girls and boys and big name stars introducing big name guest stars. Along came NBC's new "Music Hall" Wednesday night with a change of pace—a return to the older, simpler style but without, unfortunately, very stimulating results.

The first of the weekly programs concentrated primarily on Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, Alpert, who seems to have the poise of a reigning monarch when blowing his trumpet, is almost diffident in reading stilted lines from the cue cards. Louis Armstrong turned up for a song or two and there was a pretty young girl singer named Robin Wilson.

From the outset, the emphasis was on the band. There was some effort to place the musicians in an interesting background—which turned out to be on top of what looked like a number of outsize gift-wrapped packages. There was also an abundance of those incredibly unflattering close-up shots of singers in action—shots that show every blemish and even the inlays of their teeth.

Jackie Vernon, the dead-pan comic, was somehow injected into the proceedings and played an off-key trumpet number which was considerably more painful than amusing.

A band, of course, is an unwieldy object around which to build a show with pace and style, but it can be done—it was done, in fact, with Alpert and his men last season in one of the most imaginative special programs of the year.

With all the interest centered on the premieres of new series, returning programs are almost being overlooked.

Wednesday night, however, had only one new show making its debut and it seemed like a good time to see NBC's "Run For Your Life."

Paul Bryan, the man under the medical death sentence, seems to be as healthy as he was three years ago when he started to cram a lifetime of adventure into the few months he had left. It is also obvious that his original $100,000 fortune is holding out pretty well since he lives pretty high, roams the world and charters boats and planes on whim.

This season Bryan—played with stoic intensity by Ben Gazzara—started out chartering a plane, and wound up being kidnaped by some Cubans returning to their homeland on a purported rescue mission.

There was a lot of sneaking around in the dark and drawing of guns before it turned out they weren't free Cubans at all but Communists involved in a plot to assassinate Castro. At the end, there was a suggestion that it was all a plan to knock off Castro so that Che Guevara—the Castro aide who disappeared some years ago—could take his place as dictator.

It was an interesting idea, but merely tossed in to help tie up loose plot ends. "Run For Your Life," however, is usually a fast-paced, intelligently written adventure hour made believable by the good acting of Gazzara.

Teachers Collective Bargaining Vote Data, Polls Listed

Polling places for a secret ballot election to chose an organization to act as the exclusive bargaining agent for the teachers' negotiating unit in the Kingston School District Consolidated, campaign rules and other items pertinent to the issue have been released by the Board of Education.

The Board at its September meeting approved requests for an election to chose an exclusive bargaining agent or to determine that the staff does not wish such representation.

Balloting on Oct. 13

The election is scheduled for Oct. 13 and polls will be open from 2:30 to 5 p. m.

Voting groups and polling places are listed as follows: Kingston High School, Vocational Building, Myron J. Michael, Sophie G. Finn and Meagher Schools will vote at the High School Field House; Multi-Media Center and John F. Kennedy School staff will vote at the Kennedy School library; J. Watson Bailey and Harry L. Edson Schools will vote at the library of the JWB school.

Schools 7 and 8, Brigham and George Washington Schools will go to the polls at the Home for the Aged; Lake Katrine, Chambers and Emma Wygant Schools will vote at Ulster Co. No. 5 firehouse or at the Town of Ulster Library; Anna Devine and Port Ewen Schools will vote at the Port Ewen School cafeteria; Tillson School in the gymnasium of that school, and Hurley School staff will vote in the school gymnasium.

The American Arbitration Asssociation will conduct the election. A meeting with representatives of the AAA has been set up for 7:30 p. m., Thursday, Sept. 21, and representatives of the Kingston Teachers' Federation, the Kingston Teachers' Association, the Board of Education and officers of the central administration will attend the session.

With the help of the AAA, the form of the final ballot will be determined at the meeting and final arrangements for the election will be made.

To Watch Polls

Two poll watchers from each teachers' groups will be assigned to each polling place. They will vote as absentee voters or as arranged by the AAA. Special teachers will vote with the school to which they are assigned to complete the school day on Oct. 13.

Ballots will be counted at places selected by the AAA and a majority of votes cast will determine the winner. If a runoff election is necessary, the mechanics of this runoff will be decided at later date.

Ira M. Shaw, associate superintendent for business management has been given responsibility for the compilation of the registration list, a copy of which will be presented to the president of each of the teachers' organizations.

The KTA and KTF presidents will review names on the lists and report errors to Shaw, and corrections may be made only after agreement among Shaw and the two teachers' organization presidents.

Campaign rules note that no campaign literature is to be distributed on election day; each organization may, after checking for conflicts with the school principals, may arrange for meetings of members of the teacher unit during lunch hour and at the close of school; each organization shall be allotted equal space for display of campaign material and free access to teachers' mailboxes; each orgaization shall make every effort to see that its members conduct the election campaign in a manner designed to cause the least possible change in normal school activities; with the exception of reading and posting official election information, no employe who is not a member of the negotiating unit shall participate in the campaign.

Headed by KTF

The movement which ultimately resulted in plans for the election, was spearheaded by the KTF after it was initially proposed in the spring of 1962 by the then KTF president, Richard Cowin.

Vernon L. Outwater, incumbent president of KTF, said in a recent statement that "the unrelenting efforts of the KTF, through scores of encounters with the Board, not only here in Kingston but through the courts of this state and the publicity it received, was unquestionably a contributing factor in the passage of the public employes legislation this past spring.

"Throughout our struggle to obtain a secret ballot election for the teachers in Kingston, the Board of Education maintained the consistent position that they could not act in the absence of specific legislation. Under the leadership of Board president, Arthur Whithall, the Board this summer made every effort to implement the letter and spirit of the Public Employes Fair Employment Act.

"In discussions conducted this summer among Board members, Federation and Association members, it was evident to all, that the Board's only wish was the transition from informal talks to collective bargaining be made as efficiently and effectively as local conditions would permit.

"As president of the KTF, it is my pleasurable duty to express publicly the satisfaction felt by the hundreds of teachers in Kingston who signed the two petitions requesting a representative election."

Teachers Collective Bargaining Vote Data, Polls Listed

Polling places for a secret ballot election to chose an organization to act as the exclusive bargaining agent for the teachers' negotiating unit in the Kingston School District Consolidated, campaign rules and other items pertinent to the issue have been released by the Board of Education.

The Board at its September meeting approved requests for an election to chose an exclusive bargaining agent or to determine that the staff does not wish such representation.

Balloting on Oct. 13

The election is scheduled for Oct. 13 and polls will be open from 2:30 to 5 p. m.

Voting groups and polling places are listed as follows: Kingston High School, Vocational Building, Myron J. Michael, Sophie G. Finn and Meagher Schools will vote at the High School Field House; Multi-Media Center and John F. Kennedy School staff will vote at the Kennedy School library; J. Watson Bailey and Harry L. Edson Schools will vote at the library of the JWB school.

Schools 7 and 8, Brigham and George Washington Schools will go to the polls at the Home for the Aged; Lake Katrine, Chambers and Emma Wygant Schools will vote at Ulster Co. No. 5 firehouse or at the Town of Ulster Library; Anna Devine and Port Ewen Schools will vote at the Port Ewen School cafeteria; Tillson School in the gymnasium of that school, and Hurley School staff will vote in the school gymnasium.

The American Arbitration Asssociation will conduct the election. A meeting with representatives of the AAA has been set up for 7:30 p. m., Thursday, Sept. 21, and representatives of the Kingston Teachers' Federation, the Kingston Teachers' Association, the Board of Education and officers of the central administration will attend the session.

With the help of the AAA, the form of the final ballot will be determined at the meeting and final arrangements for the election will be made.

To Watch Polls

Two poll watchers from each teachers' groups will be assigned to each polling place. They will vote as absentee voters or as arranged by the AAA. Special teachers will vote with the school to which they are assigned to complete the school day on Oct. 13.

Ballots will be counted at places selected by the AAA and a majority of votes cast will determine the winner. If a runoff election is necessary, the mechanics of this runoff will be decided at later date.

Ira M. Shaw, associate superintendent for business management has been given responsibility for the compilation of the registration list, a copy of which will be presented to the president of each of the teachers' organizations.

The KTA and KTF presidents will review names on the lists and report errors to Shaw, and corrections may be made only after agreement among Shaw and the two teachers' organization presidents.

Campaign rules note that no campaign literature is to be distributed on election day; each organization may, after checking for conflicts with the school principals, may arrange for meetings of members of the teacher unit during lunch hour and at the close of school; each organization shall be allotted equal space for display of campaign material and free access to teachers' mailboxes; each organization shall make every effort to see that its members conduct the election campaign in a manner designed to cause the least possible change in normal school activities; with the exception of reading and posting official election information, no employe who is not a member of the negotiating unit shall participate in the campaign.

Headed by KTF

The movement which ultimately resulted in plans for the election, was spearheaded by the KTF after it was initially proposed in the spring of 1962 by the then KTF president, Richard Cowin.

Vernon L. Outwater, incumbent president of KTF, said in a recent statement that "the unrelenting efforts of the KTF, through scores of encounters with the Board, not only here in Kingston but through the courts of this state and the publicity it received, was unquestionably a contributing factor in the passage of the public employes legislation this past spring.

"Throughout our struggle to obtain a secret ballot election for the teachers in Kingston, the Board of Education maintained the consistent position that they could not act in the absence of specific legislation. Under the leadership of Board president, Arthur Whithall, the Board this summer made every effort to implement the letter and spirit of the Public Employes Fair Employment Act.

"In discussions conducted this summer among Board members, Federation and Association members, it was evident to all, that the Board's only wish was the transition from informal talks to collective bargaining be made as efficiently and effectively as local conditions would permit.

"As president of the KTF, it is my pleasurable duty to express publicly the satisfaction felt by the hundreds of teachers in Kingston who signed the two petitions requesting a representative election."
